COURT DECISIONS
OF 1936

Compiled and Digested with Comment

By HERBERT T. SILVERBERG

Cases dealing with the motion picture industry are comparatively few in number. This is due to three facts: First, the industry's youth; second, its partiality to compromise; and, third, its development of standardized routines, rigidly controlled from centralized home offices.

The hundreds of thousands of opinions constituting the literature of the law are minutely digested, indexed and correlated under main headings such as negligence, contracts, patents, etc., but not according to particular businesses. No one has yet attempted a complete collection of cases dealing with the motion picture industry.

Accordingly, a compendium of cases dealing with motion pictures can only be collated by a review of all of the opinions emanating from all the courts in the nation as they are published. When it is understood that during the year 1936 alone, more than 25,000 opinions were published in the United States, the magnitude of the task of examining and sifting therefrom those opinions dealing with motion picture production, distribution, exhibition and related lines will be appreciated.*

The opinions digested deal with the following subjects:

PRODUCTION

- Plagiarism and Other Copyright Infringements
- Employment Contracts of Executives, Artists and Others
- Unfair Competition (Titles, Trade-names & Good Will)
- Rights of Privacy (Civil Rights Law and Libel)
- Literary Property
- Patents
- Studio Equipment
- Laboratory Deals
- Negligence (during shooting)
- Taxation
- Workmen's Compensation

DISTRIBUTION

- Anti-Trust Suits
- Copyright Infringement
- Exhibition Contracts
- Taxation
- Workmen's Compensation
- Leases and Other Real Estate Contracts

EXHIBITION

- Lottery (Bank Night)
- Censorship
- Copyright Infringement
- Film Delivery
- Libel
- Negligence
- Patents
- Sunday Laws
- Talkie Equipment
- Taxation
- Trade Unions
- Workmen's Compensation
- Zoning Laws

* In addition, a number of unreported opinions has been sent to me by my many good friends at the "motion picture bar." I take this opportunity to thank them and to ask attorneys everywhere to send copies of opinions dealing with "picture or show business" in which they may have participated.

PRODUCTION

PLAGIARISM AND COPYRIGHT CASES

Playwright Against Producer—Unconscious Plagiarism—Fair Use—Piracy of Dramatic Expression Without Dialogue

Sheldon and Barnes v. Metro-Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, et al.[1]

Plaintiffs wrote an original play ("Dishonorable Lady") based upon a famous murder trial. Someone else later wrote an original novel ("Letty Linton") based upon the same trial. Plaintiffs' play was performed in New York. The defendant producer who wanted to buy the movie rights, studied it and submitted it to the "Hays Office" for censorship approval which was refused. The matter of buying the play was then dropped.

Subsequently, the producer bought the film rights of the novel and made a picture. Plaintiffs sued claiming the picture was an infringement of the play. The producer denied that the play was used to produce the picture.

The Circuit Court of Appeals decided in plaintiffs' favor.[2]

The Court etched the similarity of character, sequence of details and parallelism of incident common to the play and picture (not contained in the trial or novel) and said that even though the dialogue differed or was changed, the dramtic significance of the scenes was the same almost to the letter. It said further:

> "True, much of the picture owes nothing to the play; some of it is plainly drawn from the novel; but that is entirely immaterial; it is enough that substantial parts were lifted; no plagiarist can excuse the wrong by showing how much of his work he did not pirate. We cannot avoid the conviction that if the picture was not an infringement of the play, there can be none short of taking the dialogue."

COMMENT

The Court said that fair use means that one may copy the theme or ideas of a work but not its expression. The Court held that dramatic expression is not limited to the words used but applies to a similarity of the sequence of details if taken from another's copyrighted work even though the taking was not a conscious one. In other words, if a book, play or scenario is submitted to a producer who turns it down and subsequently uses a substantial part of its material in producing a picture, he is guilty of copyright infringement even though he took it from the recesses of his mind and honestly forgot its source, for as the Court said:

> ". . . nobody knows the origin of his inventions; memory and fancy merge even in adults. Yet unconscious plagiarism is actionable quite as much as deliberate. . . . Speech is only a small part of a dramatist's means of expression; he draws on all the arts and compounds his play from words and gestures and scenery and costume and from the very looks of the actors themselves. Again and again a play may lapse into pantomime at its most poignant and significant moments; a nod, a movement of the hand, a pause, may tell the audience more than words could tell. . . . The play is the sequence of the confluence of all these means, . . . it may . . . be . . . pirated by leaving out the speech, for which a substitute can be found, which keeps the whole dramatic meaning. That . . . is . . . what the defendants have done here. . . ."

Publisher v. Producer—"Exclusive Moving Picture Rights" Include Talkies—Injunction Despite Producer's Investment—Accounting of Profits Despite Previous Sale Offer

L. C. Page & Company, Inc., et al., v. Fox Film Corporation, et al.[3]

In October, 1923, an authoress agreed that her publishers should "have the exclusive moving picture rights to all books by Laura E. Richards, published by them and . . . pay her 45 per cent of the net cash received by them 'through the sale or lease of any or all motion picture rights above mentioned.'"

Shortly thereafter the publisher sold the silent rights in the novel "Captain January" to Principal Pictures.

In 1935 Fox Film Corporation offered to the publisher $20,000 for a "clear title" to "motion pictures and talking rights" in "Captain January," which the publisher accepted subject to its satisfaction with the details of the contract which was never concluded. The producer purchased the silent rights from Principal. It became dissatisfied with the publisher's title to "talking rights" and simply bought off Mrs. Richards. The publisher's rights were thus ignored by the producers who commenced production of a talking motion picture based on the novel. The publisher promptly sued. The Circuit Court of Appeals held an injunction should be granted against exhibition of the picture and said:

> "The defendants had full notice of plaintiff's rights before they began to produce the moving picture, and the plaintiff as exclusive licensee for selling or leasing could compel the copyright proprietor, as a trustee, to sue for an infringement. . . . So the issue is whether the 1923 agreement included 'talking' as well as 'silent' motion pictures. . . . The words 'the exclusive moving picture rights,' were sufficient to embrace not only motion pictures of the sort then known but also such technical improvements in motion pictures, as might be developed during the term of the license, namely, the term of the copyright. . . . The mere fact that the species 'talkies' may have been unknown . . . does not prevent. . . . Hence plaintiff was given the exclusive right to sell or lease talking moving picture rights as well as silent motion picture rights."

COMMENT

The Court held that plaintiff's rights were clear under the 1923 agreement and he was therefor entitled to the remedies as exclusive licensee, to wit, an accounting and an injunction. The Court said that in this accounting the value placed by the plaintiff upon its rights in uncompleted negotiations was wholly immaterial and that if the plaintiff's right was clear a preliminary injunction would be granted. It said that the producers acted with their eyes open, were warned before they began production and the suit was promptly started and that while it might be that they believed Mrs. Richards had the better title they dealt with the wrong party at their own risk. The case was subsequently settled out of court.

Playwright Against Producer—Plagiarism—Test of Copyright Infringement

Atheson v. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corporation, et al.[4]

A playwright sued for an accounting and damages claiming that the defendants' motion picture, "Riptide," infringed on his copyrighted play, "The Penalty of Sex." He contended that the producers had plagiarized the central theme of his play by portraying the "woman tempted" and used identical words.

The Court dismissed the complaint and said:

"The story of the 'woman tempted' can be traced back to the story of Eve. . . . The alleged identical words, in any event, constitute a highly insubstantial portion of each play."

It said[5] that the Copyright Law "is made for plain people; . . . copying which is infringement must be something 'which ordinary observation[6] would cause to be recognized as having been taken from' the work of another . . ."

Novelist v. Producer—Copyright Infringement

In Barry v. Hughes, et al.[7]

Barry, a novelist, sued the producer of "Hell's Angels," claiming that the film infringed the copyrights in his stories. The producer in defense asserted the source of the alleged infringement scenes was a one-act play entitled "Somewhere in Mexico," written by one McKay. The novelist did not refute this but contended that the play was copied from his story.

McKay stated by deposition (during which he was cross-examined) that he had never read Barry's stories or the magazines in which they were published and that the sole inspiration of the play was a story told him in 1915 by a Colonel in Cuba concerning an incident which occurred during the Cuban insurrection. His testimony was corroborated by others.

The Court dismissed the complaint and said:

"Though not free from doubt,[8] the court concludes that plaintiff has not met the burden of proving that McKay copied any part of the play which was the source of defendant's picture from plaintiff's copyrighted story."

Playwright v. Producer—Access—Appropriation

Echevarria v. Warner Bros. Pictures, et al.[9]

The Court granted the producer's motion for a non-suit on the grounds that no access to the plaintiff's synopsis had been shown and that comparison of the synopsis with the photoplay showed no appropriation or similarity.

COMMENT

In Warner Bros. Pictures v. Cosgrave[10] the Circuit Court of Appeals vacated an order impounding the films.

Copyright Infringement Suit—Service of Summons on Branch Manager

Tuttle v. Metro-Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, et al.[11]

A resident of Cincinnati, Ohio, filed suit there in Federal Court against Metro-Goldwyn-Pictures Corporation, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corporation and others, asking for an injunction and an accounting. She claimed that the Metro picture, "Animal Kingdom," infringed upon the copyrightable matter in her book, "Kingdom of the World." Summons was served upon the resident manager of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Distributing Corporation at Cincinnati.

The Court set aside the service pointing out that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corporation, the producing company, and Metro-Goldwyn Pictures Corporation which owned all of the stock of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Distributing Corporation did no business in Ohio.

COMMENT

Copyright suits may be instituted in the district where the defendant or his agent resides or may be found.[12] The Court held that the Distributing Company and its Cincinnati branch manager were not such agents.

Producer v. Infringer—False Accounting—Allowance to Attorneys

Fleisher Studios, et al. v. Freundlich, et al.[13]

A doll manufacturer infringed the plaintiff's cartoon character "Betty Boop." An accounting was ordered.[14]

The special master awarded to plaintiff the sum of $5,540 ($5 for each of the 1,108 dolls found in the manufacturer's possession) and a fee of $15,000 for plaintiff's attorneys. The awards were approved by the Court.

COMMENT

The Court justified the award and fees because the false account filed by the defendants made it impossible to find more infringing dolls and necessitated justifiable work by the attorneys to break the account down. There is an interesting inference in the opinion that a false accounting in a copyright suit brought to the attention of the Court before the accounting is closed may be punishable as a contempt of court.

EMPLOYMENT CONTRACTS

Employment Contract—Producer v. Actress —Injunction—English Rule

Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., v. Bette Nelson (Bette Davis).[15]

A producer had a 52 week contract for Bette Davis' "exclusive services as a motion picture and/or legitimate stage actress" with yearly renewal options and salary increases. She agreed during the term of the contract not to render any similar services without the written consent of the producer who could (if it pleased) extend the term of the agreement for a period equal to the period during which she might fail to perform thereunder.

The actress later declined to be further bound by the agreement and signed up in England with someone else. The producer promptly sued.

The English Court enjoined her from rendering any services for any motion picture or stage producer other than for the plaintiff without the plaintiff's written consent.

COMMENT

The Court overruled the actress's contention that the contract was in restraint of trade because it compelled her to serve the producer exclusively and might endure for the whole of her natural life (because of the renewal options). The Court answered that there was no restraint of trade because the contract concerned what was to happen while she was in plaintiff's employ and not thereafter.

The Court stated the English principle that it would not force a person to specifically perform a contract of personal service but would enforce the provision against her working for someone else as an actress as that would not, in effect, drive her to perform her contract or remain idle. This, unless damages would be the more appropriate remedy. He said it was not proved that she could not employ herself in another line (even though not as profitably) and the fact that she would be tempted to perform the contract was no ground for exception; and an estimation of damages would be difficult.

Employment Contract—Actor v. Producer—Cancellation—"First Billing"

Cagney v. Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.[16]

An actor's contract with a producer was cancelled and the producer restrained from enforcing it because the actor had not been given "first billing" (pursuant to the contract) in connection with the showing of "Ceiling Zero."

COMMENT

It was shown that throw-away heralds reading "See Ceiling Zero . . . starring Pat O'Brien and James Cagney" were distributed by the Downtown Theatre in Los Angeles; that thirty "six-sheets" carrying Pat O'Brien's name above Cagney's name were posted around the neighborhood of the Beverly Hills Theatre on which the marquee showed the name of Pat O'Brien alone on one side and that of James Cagney alone on the other. The two theatres were admittedly operated by a theatre corporation whose stock was all owned by the producer.

This case has been appealed to the Supreme Court[17] and full digest and comment should await the Court's ruling.

There are two other cases in which I do not have the opinions, if any, and they are mentioned in passing. One is the case of Republic Pictures v. Gene Autry in which the trade papers reported that Judge James upheld an order of a Superior Court which restrained Gene Autry from working at any other studio or making any personal or radio appearance until the completion of his contract with Republic on the condition that the producer should furnish a bond of $20,000.00 to answer for any costs and damages which Autry might suffer in the event the producer did not establish its right to an injunction at the trial. The order of the Court provides further that the injunction should be dissolved if the bond was not furnished within five days and be increased in amount upon notice to the producer if good cause was shown.

Another was the case of Paramount v. Goldwyn in which it was reported in the trade papers that Paramount sued Goldwyn for interfering with its contract for Gary Cooper's services and that a demurrer to the complaint was dismissed and Goldwyn ordered to defend.

Employment—Executive—Right to Remove

In re Paramount Publix Corporation Claim of Katz.[18]

Sam Katz had been an officer and director of Paramount-Publix which went into bankruptcy. He filed a claim for wrongful discharge for about $265,500. The bankruptcy trustees objected to the claim. Their contention that the directors of the corporation could remove Katz at their pleasure without liability was overruled by the Court.

COMMENT

New York Stock Corporation Law, Sec. 60, provides that "the directors of a stock corporation may appoint or elect from their number . . . officers, agents and employees, who shall respectively have such powers and perform such duties in the management of the property and affairs of the corporation, subject to the control of the directors as may be prescribed by them or in the by laws. The directors may . . . remove him at pleasure." The Court said that directors may give and then later take away management powers but this does not mean a man may be removed without liability for contract damages.

This case is noted in 6 Brooklyn Law Rev. 247, Dec., 1936.

Employment—Executive—Bankruptcy—Measure of Damages

In re Paramount Publix Corporation (Greenberg v. Paramount Pictures, Inc).[18]

An employee of Paramount was discharged. He sued for ($38,100) salary for the balance of his contract. Paramount was later adjudicated bankrupt. It did not defend the employee's action. He took a judgment for $33,000 plus interest and filed a claim based upon the judgment.

More than a year later, involuntary petitions were filed for reorganization of Paramount. The reorganization trustees objected to the claim.

The Court held that the employee should be allowed the difference between the salary due under his contract and the amount he actually earned elsewhere, from the time of his discharge to the time the contract expired, with interest computed on the difference of each installment.

COMMENT

In this case the hearing was held after the employee's contract had expired. It was therefore simple arithmetic to compute the difference between the amount payable on each salary installment date under the contract and the amount actually earned, plus interest for the difference on each from each such date.

Employment Contract—Joint Venture in Production Deal

Eastman v. Axelbank, et al.[20]

The parties agreed that the plaintiff, Eastman, should edit, cut and title a certain motion picture and advance certain moneys to be returned out of the profits which were to be divided in a prescribed manner. The defendants who had possession of the picture, breached the agreements. Eastman sued to dissolve the venture, for an accounting and a sale.

The Court affirmed a lower court judgment in favor of Eastman and held that the facts evidenced a joint venture (so called) and not merely a contract of employment.

Producer v. Actors' Equity Ass'n for Inducing Cast Not to Perform

Du Roy & LeMaistre, Inc., v. Gilmore.[21]

The producer of a stage play sued the Actors' Equity Association for damages for inducing the members of the cast to refuse further appearances in the play where the lead was not paid her salary. The jury rendered a very substantial verdict but the Appellate Division, by a 3-2 decision, dismissed the producer's complaint.

COMMENT

The contracts between the producer and cast were on the standard Equity form. The play opened on an April 2nd. The operating "nut" exceeded the box office "take." On Saturday, April 4th, the producer told the cast he had insufficient money for the payroll and asked them to play along until the following Saturday. On that (following) Saturday, while the performers were readying to start the matinee, a representative of Actors' Equity Association demanded the back salary for the leading lady and when it was not forthcoming he instructed the entire company not to perform.

The producer sued under the decisions that one is liable for inducing a breach of contract without justifiable cause.

Playwright v. Business Agent—Right to Commissions

Colton v. Oshrin.[22]

A playwright brought an action to set aside an employment agreement with his business agent.

The Court decided in the agent's favor but held that the agent should account for the commissions he had taken on the playwright's California salary (which commissions amounted to almost $20,000) plus about $40,000 which had been loaned by the agent to his own corporation.

COMMENT

The Court interpreted the agreement as not including any "commissions at ten percent for the agent on the playwright's salary in California, with which the agent had nothing to do in procurement or service."

UNFAIR COMPETITION

Distributor v. Producer—Injunction for Unfair Competition By Use of Name "Zombie" in Title

Amusement Securities Corporation v. Academy Pictures Distributing Corporation, et al.[23]

A producer was enjoined from using any title with the word "Zombie" in it and from using any advertising or materials tending to identify its picture, "Revolt of the Zombies," with "White Zombie." Damages and an accounting of profits were also ordered.

COMMENT

Plaintiff bought the distribution rights to "White Zombie" from a producer who later made another motion picture entitled "Revolt of the Zombies."

The two pictures differed as to theme, subject matter, locale and in many other respects. The Court, nevertheless, decided under the facts that the word "Zombie" had acquired a secondary meaning suggestive of "White Zombie" and that the title "Revolt of the Zombies," therefore, was unfair competition.

The case is reported to have been before the court for trial for 14 days.

Unfair Competition—Production—Use of Ziegfeld's Name in Title—Injunction Denied

Coffey v. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corporation.[24]

The administrator of Florenz Ziegfeld's estate applied for a temporary injunction to restrain Metro from using the name "Ziegfeld" in its production "The Great Ziegfeld," claiming the name "Ziegfeld" was an asset of the estate and that its use by Metro was "unfair competition."

The Court denied the injunction holding that no good will attached to Ziegfeld's name when he died.

COMMENT

The Court said that the name of Ziegfeld stood for a type of entertainment entirely personal; that he left no business and the law does not recognize the sale of a name or good will separate and apart from a business. The Court said that the name "Ziegfeld Follies" was competitive, if anything was, and as the use of the name "Ziegfeld Follies" was sold to Ziegfeld's widow any good will in the name of Ziegfeld was disposed of by that sale.

Unfair Competition—Author v. Producer—Identity of Title—Injunction Denied

Kahler v. Paramount Pictures, Inc.[25]

A motion for a temporary injunction to restrain a producer from using the title, "Early to Bed," on the ground that it infringed an identical title used by Kahler on a novel published in 1928 was denied.

COMMENT

The Court held that there was insufficient evidence of irreparable injury or interference with a property right and plaintiff could well wait trial of the action if he was entitled to compensation for violation of any of his rights.

Unfair Competition—Short Subject—Similar Title and Subject

Whitman v. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corporation, et al.[26]

Plaintiffs produced a one-reeler titled, "Inflation," in 1933 and screened it for Loew's (an affiliate of Metro) who rejected it.

Later, Metro produced a one-reeler titled, "Inflation." Plaintiff claimed this was a duplication and constituted unfair competition.

The Court held there was no unfair competition and decided in Metro's favor.

COMMENT

The Court said that inflation was then a common subject and in the public domain. Since it was hardly known, it never acquired a secondary meaning. The title was not copyrighted and Metro had a perfect right to produce a picture on inflation after learning of plaintiff's short, "just as a writer after seeing an article . . . on a timely subject is licensed to write on the identical topic." He pointed out "there was no attempt to produce a replica," and "duplication did not result" . . . "Competition alone is not enough; unfairness must attend the rivalry."

Unfair Competition—Use of Word "Ecstasy" in Title Enjoined

Eureka Productions, Inc., v. Intimate Theatres, Inc., et al.[27]

An injunction was granted restraining the use of the word, "Ecstasy," in the title of the film known as "Ecstasy of Young Love."

A foreign film titled "Ecstasy" was brought to the United States. Its importer publicized his actions in trying to get the picture passed by the censorship approval of governmental authorities. This publicity would, of course, help in vending the exhibition rights to it. The defendants advertised their picture, "Ecstasy of Young Love," with the word "Ecstasy" accented in heavy type and it was claimed that this was done to take advantage of the publicity given the foreign picture. The lower court said:

> "The publicity which the banning of "Ecstasy" received does not entitle the plaintiff to protect that name by a temporary injunction. More than foreign use and local publicity must be shown. [27a]

While the foreign film had not yet been shown in the United States, the Appellate Division reversed the lower court and restrained use of the word as unfair competition.

COMMENT

After the temporary injunction was granted, the importer made a motion to punish the distributor and exhibitor of the picture "Ecstasy of Young Love," alleging a contempt of court by wilful violation of the injunction. The Court of Appeals by memorandum decision affirmed a denial of that motion.

Artist—Dance Routine Not Copyrightable—Unfair Competition

Revel v. Pritchard.[28]

The Court refused a temporary injunction to restrain defendants from imitating a certain dance formula and routine which plaintiffs had invented.

COMMENT

He said that a stage dance was not a dramatic composition under statutory copyright[29] nor under the common law and could only be protected (if at all) against unfair competition if defendant "palmed off" its act as that of the plaintiffs'.[30]

Injunction Against Use of Name French Theatre Guild—Unfair Competition

Theatre Guild, Inc., v. DeVestal, et al.[31]

Use of the name "French Theatre Guild" was enjoined.

COMMENT

The Court held that the plaintiff, Theatre Guild, Inc., had spent a lot of time and money to make favorably known its name and standing in connection with the production of plays. While plaintiff had not yet produced any plays in French, yet the term "Theatre Guild" had acquired such significance in the mind of the public that use of the term, even prefixed by the word "French" might prove a deception.

Injunction Against Photographer Using Name of Producer

Eugene D. Petry, operating a portrait studio business as Warner Studios, Washington, D. C., was directed by the Federal Trade Commission among things to discontinue use of the trade name "Warner Studios" or words "Movie Lighting Equipment" or "New Motion Picture Film," to avoid misrepresentation to the public that the studio was connected with the Warner Studios in Hollywood.[32]

In Paramount v. Paramount Movie Photo, Inc., the Special Term Judge in Supreme Court, N. Y. County, sued to enjoin Paramount Movie Photos, Inc., of New York City from using the name Paramount, and the application for injunction was granted.

RIGHTS OF PRIVACY (CIVIL RIGHTS LAW AND LIBEL)

Unfair Competition—Civil Rights Law—Newsreel of Fat Women Exercising

Sweenek v. Pathe News, Inc.[33]

A gymnasium proprietor offered a free course of exercises with unique apparatus, to women weighing over two hundred pounds. A newsreel was taken of the women exercising. One of the women sued the film company for $10,000 damages, contending that publication of the reel violated her right of privacy under the Civil Rights Law.

Defendant argued that the film was a newsreel containing matters of public interest and plaintiff consented to its taking. The Court dismissed the complaint.

COMMENT

The Court ruled that the picture did not cross the border line of public interest in view of the concern of so many women in increased weight. He said, "the amusing comments which accompanied the pictures did not detract from their news value. If they made the plaintiff appear ridiculous and exceeded the privilege of fair comment, then her action is for slander or libel, but not under the Civil Rights Law." Oral, not written, consent was given, but the Court said that the action left the impression of being an afterthought on the plaintiff's part.

New York Civil rights Law, Sec. 51, provides against use in that state of a person's name or picture for purposes of advertising or trade without his written consent.

An interesting development in motion picture law during the past year has been the large number of cases by members of the public who have sought damages and injunctions against showings of motion pictures in which they have been included.

Producer and Public — Use of Crowd Scene in Picture Without Consent of Individual Members of the Crowd—Rights of Privacy—Civil Rights Law

Cook v. Twentieth Century Fox Film Corporation.[34]

An eighteen year old boy appeared in five feet of film in the picture, "15 Maiden Lane." He sued and applied for a temporary injunction. The Court denied the injunction and ordered an early trial.

COMMENT

The Court said:

"Although the acts of the defendant may constitute a literal violation of the Civil Rights Law, it is seriously questionable whether they violate the spirit and purpose of that statute."

The action was later settled for $70. The Court distinguished the Blumenthal case in which there was a close-up view of a street vendor alone. See 1934 Year Book of Motion Pictures, page 686.

Bull Fighter v. Producer—Civil Rights Law—Libel and Slander Damages

Franklin v. Columbia Pictures Corp.[35]

An award of damages to a bull fighter against a producer for using his name and picture without consent was affirmed by the New York Court of Appeals without opinion.

COMMENT

The complaint alleged (1) violation of the Civil Rights Law, (2) libelous matter contained in the moving picture and (3) slander contained in the accompanying remarks of commentator. The trial judge granted an injunction restraining the producer from using the name or producing motion picture films of the plaintiff within the State of New York and awarded $7,000 as damages. This was later reduced to $5,000 on appeal.[36]

Golfer v. Producer—Civil Rights Law—Consent to Transfer

Redmond v. Columbia Pictures Corporation.[37]

A professional golfer, named Redmond, sued Columbia Pictures for $50 000 claiming that he gave a private exhibition of trick shots for Fox Movietone News for which he received no pay, and that Columbia Pictures had shown these shots in a picture entitled, "Golfing Rhythm," without his written consent.

Columbia, in its answer, asserted that "Golfing Rhythm" was one of a series of films portraying events of public interest and Redmond consented to unlimited use of the pictures by Fox which gave Columbia permission to use them in "Golfing Rhythm."

The Court held:

"If the action which is pictured is one involving public news, the Civil Rights Law was not violated . . . but defendant must allege that the consent to Fox was in writing, and unless that consent specifically waived a transfer in writing, that the subsequent consent to defendant was in writing. The damages in this type of case are ordinarily punitive; here wholly so. The oral consent, . . . should . . . be pleaded in mitigation as a partial defense."

COMMENT

The Court said that if Redmond's unlimited permission to the newsreel company was in writing, Columbia would not be required to get Redmond's permission to use the shots, written consent from Fox sufficing. If the decision is good law, such a written consent will permit a producer to farm out the shots to others.

Production—Reference to Psychic in Pictures as Cassandra—Protection of Civil Rights Law Against Use of a Stage Name Derived from Mythology—No Libel Shown

Davis v. R.K.O. Radio Pictures, Inc., et al.[38]

Plaintiff in her legal name, Claire H. Davis, brought action against a producer under the Civil Rights Law and for libel.

In her complaint she alleged that she practiced her profession as a psychic, palmist, lecturer, author and actress under the name of "Cassandra," which had acquired a secondary meaning as applying peculiarly to her and that in the producer's motion picture (Bunker Bean), "Cassandra was represented as an illiterate, slovenly, low grade person and as a faker. In the film, Bunker is shown being duped by Countess "Cassandra's" pretentions to psychic powers. The Court dismissed the complaint.

COMMENT

The Court said that the Civil Rights Act did not apply to any assumed or stage name of the plaintiff who had never changed her legal name which was the only one for which she could claim protection and that there was no reference to Claire H. Davis, her legal name, throughout the picture.

The Court said that plaintiff did not claim that the actress playing the part of Countess Cassandra was made up to look like her or to mimic her in any way and that she (plaintiff) did not claim to have ever assumed the name of Countess Cassandra even as a stage name. The Court said:

"The defendants had as much right to use the name "Cassandra," [39] in their motion picture, for a character representing a fortune teller or an alleged psychic as the plaintiff had to assume that name "as psychic and palmist."

The Court said that so far as the libel action was concerned, the dialogue did not reflect upon, or relate to, the plaintiff; there was no reference in the picture to her legal name nor to her as Cassandra and that plaintiff did not allege that her photograph was used or that "Cassandra," in the film, looked or acted like her.

The Court pointed out that there was no claim of unfair competition in the use of the name "Cassandra" or otherwise. The vigor of the Court's arguments is such that it leads one to believe that he holds that under the Civil Rights Law only a person's real full legal name and not an assumed or stage name may be protected. If the Court intended to make such a ruling, its importance is unquestionable.

Civil Rights Law — Unfair Competition — Betty Boop Character-Complaint Dismissed

Kane v. Fleischer.[40]

Plaintiff sued a cartoonist and others claiming a violation of her right of privacy under the Civil Rights Law and for unfair competition by their use of the cartoon character, "Betty Boop." The complaint was dismissed.

COMMENT

The case was tried out and the Court held with the cartoonist that the character "Betty Boop" was not a picture or caricature of the plaintiff and that the cartoonist did not unfairly compete with her.

Civil Rights Law—Right to Use of Actress's Name and Portrait

Lengyel Perfume, Inc., v. Paramount Productions, Inc.[41]

A perfume manufacturer sued a producer for $25,000 for an alleged breach of warranty of authority to permit the perfumer to use the name and picture of Marlene Dietrich in exploiting his perfume.

The Court, in the course of an interlocutory motion in the case, held that if there was "no written consent of Miss Dietrich, the contract between plaintiff and defendant was illegal."

COMMENT

The Court said that the perfumer in effect claimed that the producer deceitfully represented its rights to permit use of the actress's picture. The Court held that unless that permission was in writing, the plaintiff could not rely on it, "for Civil Rights Law, 50 and 51, make the use of the picture without written permission a crime and nobody can rely on permission to commit a crime." The Court said further that if the plaintiff spent a lot of money, it was his own folly because, even if the producer had authority to give the actress's consent, "plaintiff could not use the picture until the consent was given in writing."

LITERARY PROPERTY

Declaratory Judgment—Ownership of Performing Rights

Kalman v. Shubert.[42]

A composer alleged that he owned five operettas; that he offered, in writing, the performing rights in them to the defendant upon payment of certain specified royalties; that defendant did not accept the offer or pay the royalties but defendant nevertheless claimed that the instrument created a binding agreement which gave defendant the exclusive performing rights. The composer asked for a declaratory judgment declaring the rights of the parties in the operettas.

The Court, at Special Term, dismissed the complaint on the theory "that the plaintiff 'has . . . an adequate remedy . . . by existing forms of actions,'" which was affirmed by the Appellate Division.[42a]

Upon appeal, the judgment dismissing the complaint was reversed by the Court of Appeals which held that the complaint stated a cause of action calling for a declaratory judgment.

COMMENT

The Court held that the writing in the hands of the defendant prevented the composer from selling or negotiating a sale of his rights therein since a prospective buyer would not want to buy a law suit and the plaintiff required affirmative relief to remove this cloud on his title.

The Court pointed out that the composer did not have an adequate remedy at law because he could not sue for breach of a contract which he claimed did not exist, nor, for damages for failure to accept his offer. For a like reason, he could not sue in equity for a recission or accounting. He could not sue for plagiarism because defendant had not performed the operettas, and the composer should not be required to sit by and wait for the defendant to pirate his property; that the operettas had a present value which might disappear if public taste changed and an injunction would not help since defendant might never attempt to exercise the performing rights, being satisfied to prevent competition from the operettas with other compositions in which he was interested.

The decision is very important. If any of the parties in the Captain January case (supra) had applied for a declaratory judgment, the rights of the parties in the "moving picture rights" and the extent thereof could have been declared by a court and a costly suit for copyright infringement and its consequences could have been avoided. It ought to be borne in mind, however, that the Court of Appeals in the Kalman case reached its decision on April 14, 1936, and reversed the Lower Court decisions to the contrary thereby. The Captain January case was decided on April 6, 1936, so that the remedy of declaratory judgment had not yet been declared to be available.

PATENTS

Goffered Color Films—Rejection of Patent for Ambiguity

In re Andre Oswald.[43]

The Court rejected all the claims of an application for a patent for "Goffered Films" ("Goffered" means honeycombed or indented like a waffle). The application related to the art of motion pictures in natural colors taken on an ordinary film which carried on one face thereof microscopic lenses which photographed separately and accurately complementary colors coming from a three-color zone filter.

COMMENT

The Court held that the patent application did not contain a sufficient disclosure of the alleged invention and, while there might be novelty in the applicant's construction, it was not properly described or claimed, and the application was rejected. This case teaches the lesson that ambiguity in the specification and claims of a patent or patent application can often defeat the entire patent.

Patent—Natural Color Film—Black and White Sound Track—Invalidity

Cambridge Trust Co. . . . and Technicolor, Inc., v. Coe (Commr. of Patents).[44]

The Court sustained a rejection of claims in a patent application relating to a motion picture film having scenes depicted thereon in natural colors, together with a black and white sound track on the margin for reproducing the sounds accompanying the scenes.

COMMENT

The Court held, "The concept of a film having colored pictures and a colored sound track was obvious from the prior art; therefor a mere variation in the film by substituting a black and white sound track, which was known to be superior, was such an obvious step to one skilled in the art that it does not rise to the dignity of invention." The Court simply decided that aggregating a number of elements to bring about an obvious result was not invention. To be a patentable invention, the aggregation must effect an unexpected and unforeseen result.

Patents for Developing, Toning and Drying—Invalidity

Cinema Patents Co., Inc., v. Columbia Pictures Corp. and William Horsley Film Laboratories, Inc.[45]

A producer and a laboratory were charged with infringement of a process claim and several apparatus claims of two patents[46] relating to methods and means for developing, fixing, washing and drying motion picture films. The Court decided in defendants' favor.

COMMENT

The Court found that the process claim consisted of a combination of three well-known old elements and produced an expected result, therefore invalid.

The Court also found that defendants' machine did not infringe the apparatus claims because a claim to a combination of old elements, materials or parts is not infringed unless they are all mentioned in the claim and are used and coact in substantially the same way to produce substantially the same result (whatever that means!).

STUDIO EQUIPMENT

Production—Unwritten Contract for Cameras Not Enforceable

In Mitchell Camera Corporation v. Fox Film Corporation,[47] an oral order for cameras was held to be invalid and unenforceable.

The deal involved over $360,000. The Court adopted the lower Appellate Court holdings that "the contract was one for the purchase and sale of personal property . . . and not a manufacturing contract. Therefore . . . since the alleged contract was one for the sale of personal property of a value in excess of $200, it was one that must be evidenced by a note or memorandum in writing" and that the producer was not liable for the labor services and materials furnished because the producer had not accepted or retained any benefits from them.

COMMENT

The Court was careful to point out that the Grandeur cameras involved (70 mim. size) were suitable for the manufacturer's general trade and not designed according to the producer's special design or requirements and that the manufacturer had refused the producer's request that this type of camera should not be sold to others.

The Court also said that while there was evidence that the producers' representative agreed to send a written confirmation of the order, the manufacturer did not change his position for he simply went on making the cameras and the receiver received no benefit therefrom.

LABORATORY DEALS

Inducing Breach of Contract—Complaint Requisites

Du-Art Film Laboratories, Inc., v. Consolidated Film Industries, Inc.[48]

Du-Art Film Laboratories leased its laboratory and equipment to U Film Laboratories who agreed that all film developing work required by Universal Pictures Corporation in New York should be done in that laboratory. Subsequently, Du-Art sued Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., complaining that Consolidated had obtained the Universal business by getting Universal to repudiate its contract with U Film Laboratories and that Consolidated had enticed employees from the leased laboratory leased to U Film Laboratories by Du-Art into its service.

The Court held the complaint did not reveal a cause of action against Consolidated.

COMMENT

The Court recognized the rule of law to be that damages may be recovered from one who knowingly induces a party with whom the plaintiff had a contract to break the contract but said "the contracts were not with the Universal Corporation . . . What the relationship between U Film Laboratories and Universal was is not stated. . . . So the complaint does not show a cause of action against the defendant . . ."

The Court pointed out that the complaint did not allege a written contract of employment and said: "An employer has no such vested interest in the continuity of his employees' services that he can recover damages from a rival who persuades them to leave his employ and enter the rival's employ; no contract of employment having been broken."

Liability of Laboratory for Prices for Raw Film Stock

Smith & Aller, Ltd., v. Academy Pictures Distributing Corporation & Producers Laboratories, Inc.[49]

Plaintiff agreed to furnish raw film stock to a producer for use in making the photoplay "Revolt of the Zombies." The producer agreed to pay $2,000 for it out of the first gross receipts derived from the picture after a certain laboratory repaid itself a loan of $18,000 and so ordered the laboratory which accepted the instruction. The contract provided that the arrangement would be null and void unless plaintiff received payment in full of the amount due for raw stock which it had furnished to the producer of the picture "Thrill of the Century." The plaintiff was not paid the $2,000 and sued the producer and the laboratory. He claimed the producer liable because the time for payment had passed and claimed the laboratory was liable because it had already received more than $20,000 from the picture. The lab made a motion to dismiss the complaint which the Court denied.

COMMENT

The Court said that the lab undertook to pay the sum of $2,000 for the raw film stock after it had been repaid its loan of $18,000; that the lab had received in excess of $20,000 from the gross receipts and the plaintiff was therefore entitled to recover the price of the film stock. The contention by the lab, that the complaint was defective because it failed to allege that plaintiff had been paid for the raw stock furnished on the picture "Thrill of the Century," was overruled by the Court who said that it was no concern to the laboratory whether the producer paid for its stock previously furnished, as that was part of the contract between plaintiff and the producer and the plaintiff could waive it, more especially as it was clearly one for the benefit of the plaintiff as between it and the producer and not for the benefit of the lab.

Shooting—Injuries—Producer's Control—Liability

In Irwin v. Klein[50] a motorcycle policeman was injured while acting as escort for an automobile which was being used in taking some silent atmospheric shots in New York City streets for transparency use in a film which RKO was making in Hollywood.

Paramount had agreed to furnish to RKO "necessary personnel, equipment and materials for the above work . . . to be billed . . . at cost plus . . . service charge of 22 percent . . ."

The policeman sued Paramount, RKO, and Klein who owned the automobile. The Court of Appeals absolved Paramount, but held RKO and Klein liable in damages.

COMMENT

In a prior action by the policeman against the same three defendants, a verdict was rendered against RKO only. Upon appeal, the Appellate Division held Paramount and Klein liable, too, and ordered a new trial.[51] Upon the new trial, judgment was accordingly rendered against all three defendants. This was affirmed by the Appellate Division.[52] Upon appeal therefrom, the Court of Appeals, in the present decision nevertheless held that RKO and Klein were liable, but not Paramount. The Court reasoned that Klein was liable because the auto was used with his permission; RKO was liable because it used the automobile and exercised complete control of the car and its driver at the time of the accident. Regarding Paramount, it said: "So far as concerns the taking of the picture, Paramount's 'business' extended only to furnishing the personnel and equipment, and RKO business began at that point. In that business RKO had sole control and direction and is liable as principal for negligence of its servants. Paramount Publix has no such responsibility."

Negligence — Airplane Scenes — Death of All Shooting Participants—Control—Liability

Parker, et al. v. James E. Granger, Inc., et al.[53]

For use in filming a parachute jump for a picture, a producer (Fox Film Corporation) rented a cabin plane to carry the parachute jumper and two Stinson camera planes to carry the other participants in the shooting. Dual controls were installed and cameras were mounted in the Stinsons. At the dual control of one plane was seated Hawks, the director, and at the other was seated Gold, the assistant director. Six other employees of the producer were divided between the two Stinsons. Before the flight began, Hawks gave directions to the pilots, to fly out a way and then turn back. He (Hawks) said, he would give the signal when to turn, by wiggling the wings of his plane, which is done by a rocking of the wheel back and forth, by the pilot who is actually flying the plane. The planes flew out over the bay near Santa Monica. "The two Stinsons commenced to make a left turn; when the leading one appeared to slide sideways, the tips of the wings on the two planes touched, then their noses came together, there was an explosion, and both planes fell into the ocean carrying to their death all the occupants thereof."

Actions were commenced by representatives of the persons so killed. The cases were tried and the jury rendered a verdict for the defendants. The plaintiffs then made a motion for judgment, notwithstanding the verdicts against them. The trial Court denied these motions. The plaintiffs appealed to the District Court of Appeal which affirmed the ruling of the trial Court.[53a] Upon appeal to the Supreme Court of California, that Court affirmed the lower courts, and decided in favor of the producer and plane suppliers.

COMMENT

The Court pointed out that Hawks and Gold were at the dual controls; when the higher plane side-slipped, the planes came into contact with resulting disaster, so that the crucial question of fact related to the cause of the side slip, which no occupant of the planes was left alive to answer, and, the Court therefrom decided, that the jury must have found that the planes were not in the exclusive control of the defendants, at the time of the accident.

The Court also pointed out, that the Stinson planes had been thoroughly inspected and found to be in good condition, on the morning of the accident. As this fact was undisputed, it reduced the question of negligence, to one of negligence in the operation of the plane, and the Court said that it might very well have been found therefrom, that the defendants were not at the controls and did not thereby cause the accident, and, that in fact, slipping or dropping of a plane, could occur, even without negligence in the operation of the plane.

The plaintiffs claimed that the rule of res ipsa loquitur applied, but were overruled by the Court, which held, that that doctrine was not applicable, since it was found by the jury, from the facts, that the defendants were not in exclusive control of the planes. The Court also held, that the conduct of the pilots and the others involved in the collision would be judged only under the general law of negligence, since there was no state law prescribing rules of air traffic, and that the Federal Department of Commerce regulations did not apply, as the flight was intrastate.

TAXATION

State Income Tax—Copyright Royalties

People ex rel. Rice v. Graves[54] (Tax Comm'r).

In 1928 the United States Supreme Court held copyright royalties were not subject to State income tax. Between 1928 and 1932, Elmer Rice, a playwright, accordingly listed his royalties as non-taxable, in his New York State tax returns. In 1932, the Supreme Court overruled its previous decision, and held, that copyrights were not Federal instrumentalities and the royalties were not immune to State taxation. The New York State Tax Commission, thereupon assessed taxes against Rice, upon the copyright royalties he had received in 1929, 1930 and 1931. Rice paid the tax under protest and instituted proceedings for a refund, but the Tax Commission refused him and the Appellate Division affirmed the ruling and held that "a decision of a court of supreme jurisdiction overruling a former decision is retrospective in its operation, and the effect is not that the former decision is bad law, but that it never was the law."

COMMENT

The Court said that its ruling involved no hardship upon Rice "beyond the payment of those taxes which he would have been required to pay in any event had the discredited decision never been made."

The decision of the Appellate Division was affirmed by the New York Court of Appeals[55] without opinion and the Supreme Court of the United States refused a review.[56]

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION

Production — Workmen's Compensation Award Under N. Y. Law to a Flying Cameraman Injured While Working in Another State

In Matter of Alexander v. Movietone News, Inc.,[57] a compensation award was granted under the New York laws, to a cameraman who had been injured in the course of his employment, while flying over Sequoia National Park. The Appellate Division affirmed the judgment, on the ground that his work on the flight was incidental to his employment in New York State.

DISTRIBUTION

ANTI-TRUST SUITS

Anti-Trust—Exhibitor v. Distributors—Contract Provisions—Double Features—Minimum Admission Prices—Clearance—Injunction Denied

Shubert Theatre Players Co. v. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Distributing Corporation, et al.[58]

An exhibitor in Minneapolis applied for a temporary injunction, charging a conspiracy by distributors doing business in Minnesota. He claimed that the license contracts prohibited exhibition of their motion pictures as part of double feature programs and required the exhibitor to charge a specified minimum admission price.

The Court denied the exhibitor's application.

COMMENT

The Court, in his findings, traced the advance of the motion picture industry. He pointed out that the first silent feature films introduced some twenty years ago, cost from fifteen to forty thousand dollars to produce, whereas the average talking feature film presently, cost one hundred fifty thousand to a million dollars to produce; that the revenue life of a film was relatively short; that over 50 percent of all distribution revenue was usually obtained from the first runs throughout the country and the distributors therefore had a direct interest in admission prices, not only because of the high cost of production, but also to protect its percentage exhibition deals and its first run exhibitors from ruinous competition.

The Court found from the showing on the affidavits before him, that the policy of the distributors respecting the establishment of a minimum admission price and the prohibition of double features in that vicinity, was based on their experience and had for its purpose a better return to the distributors for their copyrighted films. He said the zoning of the theatres, was not due to the distributors' desire to injure the plaintiff, but to advance their own interests. Further, none of the distributors individually distributed enough motion pictures to monopolize the product; the restrictions in the license contracts regarding admission prices and double features, did not tend to substantially lessen competition or to create an illegal monopoly in contravention of the anti-trust laws, if such contracts were promulgated by their individual interests and uninfluenced by any understanding with any other distributor.

The Court had before him the decision in the Perelman case (infra), in which the inclusion of a double feature provision in exhibition contracts was declared to lessen competition in violation of the Anti-trust Laws.

Anti-Trust Suits—Prohibiting Double Features in Exhibition Contracts—Distributors Enjoined

Vitagraph, Inc., et al., v. Perelman.[59]

An exhibitor sued Vitagraph, RKO, Paramount, Metro, Fox and United Artists for an injunction to restrain their alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Laws by prohibiting double features in their exhibition contracts. The injunction was granted by the District Court. The distributors appealed. Upon the appeal, the lower court's decree was affirmed.

COMMENT

The Court said that a common means of attracting audiences to theatres, operated by exhibitors, was to offer two full length motion pictures, at one performance, for one admission; that the lower court found, prohibiting double features, tended to create a monopoly and to lessen competition, by restraining the independent theatres from purchasing from the defendant's competitors and that the insertion of the restrictive clause, in the contracts, was the result of a conspiracy among the major companies. The Court said further:

"The double feature clauses undoubtedly reduce the production of full length motion pictures. So great is the public demand for the defendants' films that independent theatres must exhibit them in order to stay in business. If they do exhibit features of one . . . they must agree not to display at the same time a feature of another producer. This naturally prevents exhibitors from purchasing films from producers who are in competition with the defendants and destroys the opportunity of those independent producers to produce and sell more films. The necessary and inevitable tendency of the conspiracy or combination is to produce a material and unreasonable restraint on interstate commerce."

A motion by the distributors for a rehearing is now pending before the Court.

Anti-Trust Suit—Clearance and Zoning—Complaint Dismissed

Rolsky, et al., v. Fox Midwest Theatres, Inc., et al.[60]

After a protracted trial, the Court dismissed the complaint in an action by twelve subsequent run exhibitors who charged a conspiracy relating to clearance and zoning on 1935-36 product in Kansas City.

COMMENT

In Frels v. Jefferson Amusement Co., et al.,[61] according to the trade paper report, the Court sustained a demurrer by the defendants dismissing the complaint in which an exhibitor sued for $547,000 and counsel fees alleging inability to get first run product for his theatres. The Court pointed out there was no attempt to complain of any fixing of prices nor refusal to sell and that it was not alleged that the public was thereby deprived of any commodity controlled by the distributors and in truth the public had unusual advantages in the opportunity to view a variety of films.

Another case was that of Ledirk Amusement Co.,[61a] against the major distributors, in which a motion by the distributors for dismissal for non-jurisdiction in the Federal Court at New Jersey, where the distributors did not have offices, was denied.

Anti-Trust Suits—Acquittal of Criminal Charge Does Not Bar Injunction Suit

United States v. Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., et al.[62]

The United States brought a civil suit in equity to enjoin an alleged violation of the Anti-Trust Law by conspiring to restrain Interstate Commerce in motion picture films.

The defendants moved to dismiss the suit on the ground that they had been acquitted in a criminal case previously, which rendered similar the issues in the civil case, res judicata. The Court held that it was a civil action arising out of the same statute as did the criminal action and that the United States Court prosecuted the defendants on the criminal charge and also ask for the civil remedy of injunction and held that the acquittal on the criminal charge was not a bar to the civil action by the government. The Court then denied the motion to dismiss the proceeding. The United States Supreme Court affirmed the decree.[62a]

COPYRIGHT INFRINGEMENT

Distributor v. Smelter—Resale of Old Prints

Pathe Exchange, Inc., v. Snyder.[63]

A distributor sued a smelter for copyright infringement. It claimed that the smelter had bought from the distributor 198 worn out prints, and resold them, instead of smelting them. The lower court held for the defendant and was upheld by the Appellate Court, which held that the testimony conflicted and the distributor had not convincingly identified the films as being the same.

COMMENT

It is customary to break up worn out prints with an axe before selling them to smelters. This was not done by the distributor in the instant case. It is interesting to note that even though the films were worn out, an award, if any, would have been in the amount of at least $250, for each print resold and the court could have awarded, in addition, court costs and an attorney's fee.

Exhibition Contracts—Acceptance—Damages

Paramount Pictures Distributing Corporation v. Gehring.[64]

A distributor accepted by wire, an exhibitor's applications for exhibition contracts. The wire was delivered to the Western Union Telegraph Co. at 2:30 p.m. At 2:45 p.m. of the same day (before he received the distributor's wire of acceptance), the exhibitor sent a wire cancelling his applications. The distributor demanded performance of the contracts. The exhibitor disclaimed responsibility claiming the offers were revoked before they were accepted.

The distributor sued for the full amount of the unplayed contracts. The jury decided in favor of the exhibitor. The distributor appealed to the Appellate Court of Illinois, which ordered judgment for the distributor, in the full amount of the contract.

COMMENT

The Court simply restated the familiar rule of law that the acceptance of an offer becomes complete when it is sent, whereas the revocation becomes such when it is received.

The Court also held that the rule of damages should be the same as for breach of contracts generally. He said, "If defendant had performed her contracts plaintiff would have been entitled to receive $3,073 as the total rent for its films, and we cannot perceive why her wrongful refusal to perform should absolve her. It is only by the payment of that amount that plaintiff will be placed in the position it would have been in had the contracts been performed."

The Court then expressed the interesting opinion, that exhibition contracts are analogous to apartment leases, employment contracts and advertising contracts, in which the prima facia measure of damages is the contract price itself. The Court said that while it was the distributor's duty to mitigate (lessen) its damages, if possible, "it was up to the exhibitor to prove that the distributor could have mitigated the damages".

The Court held the distributor entitled, not only under general principles of contract law, but under the contract itself; there was no proof that the damage clause provided for any illegal penalties and it was not unconscionable or inhibited by law.

Exhibition Contracts—Arbitration—Compelling Identification of Party Liable

In the Matter of Universal Film Exchanges, Inc.[65]

An exhibition contract was signed by one, Bondi, in the name of a fictitious corporation. The contract contained an arbitration clause. The exhibitor discontinued performance under the contract. The distributor wished to enforce it, but was in a quandary. A notice of arbitration to the fictitious corporation and even a default judgment against that corporation would be worthless. On the other hand, the distributor felt that the arbitration board (composed of branch managers and exhibitors), would refuse to grant an award against anyone whose name was not on the contract. The distributor requested Bondi to state the actual person or corporation for whom he had signed it, but the request was ignored. The distributor then procured an order, directing Bondi to appear and submit to an examination, for the purpose of ascertaining and identifying the actual person or corporation, for whom the contract was made. Bondi's motion to vacate the order for his examination was denied and he was ordered to appear to testify, so that the proper party to the prospective arbitration proceeding could be thereby identified.

COMMENT

The Court said, that under the New York statutes, the examination of a third party for the purpose of identifying the proper party, in an action about to be commenced, was proper, (See C.P.A. Sec. 295; Matter of Silverberg, 153 Misc. 126, 273 NYS 831, affid. 243 App. Div. 854, 278 NYS 1019), and held that such an examination could also be had in a special proceeding (C.P.A. Sec. 308), and that arbitration was such a proceeding. (Arb. Law, Sec. 6a).

The ruling is of practical importance and value. Contracts are often signed by an irresponsible agent for a financially responsible, but undisclosed, principal. Generally speaking, an arbitration proceeding brought against such an irresponsible person, results only in an award against that person. It may follow from this decision, that a person actually liable, can be identified, by examination of the person who signed the contract, thereby disclosing the proper party in enabling the arbitrators to render an award against that party. Such an application will not be granted in New York City (Matter of Hufstutler, 220 App. Div. 587), but will be granted everywhere else in New York State, if Justice MacGregor's reasoning and analogy are accepted. ((Matter of Richey, 218 App. Div. 732, (2nd Dept.), Brooklyn, N. Y.) Matter of Kerwin, 246 App. Div. 668, (3rd Dept.))

I appeared for Universal and will forward copy of the briefs used, to any reader hereof, upon request.

Exhibition Contracts—Arbitration—Award Against Undisclosed Principal

Vitagraph, Inc., v. High Amusement Co., Inc.[66]

An exhibition contract was signed, "L. Isenberg, Mgr." The theatre, was in fact, under lease to a then responsible corporation. The contract provided for arbitration of claims or disputes, by four arbitrators; and by an umpire appointed by the American Arbitration Association, in case the arbitrators disagreed. An arbitration was had. The arbitrators disagreed. The claim went to an umpire, who awarded damages against the corporation for the balance of the unplayed contracts.

COMMENT

He decided that the contracts were in fact executed for the benefit of the corporation "which received and retained the benefits of the said contract and performed thereunder until the breach thereof."

This case was not dignified by an opinion. It seems to be good law. Arbitration contracts should bind even undisclosed principals, for the Arbiration Law does not require an arbitration agreement to be signed by the party to be charged and merely requires the agreement to be in writing. The development of arbitration and the possibility of correlating this case with the Bondi case, to require identification of proper parties, is the reason for its inclusion, more especially as I acted for the distributor and can furnish brief and decision to any who may desire it.

Exhibition Contracts—Action by Sub-Licensee—Complaint Against Distributor Dismissed

Wometco Theatres, Inc., v. United Artists Corporation.[67]

An exhibitor sued a distributor for breach of contract in failing to deliver certain films and also for inducing another exhibitor to breach its contract with the plaintiff. The Court of Appeals of George affirmed a judgment for the distributor.

COMMENT

The distributor gave a contract to the Sparks Circuit for certain of its pictures. Sparks agreed with the plaintiff exhibitor to turn over some of them to him. Subsequently, Sparks submitted play dates for one of the pictures, for the plaintiff's theatres. The dates were confirmed. Subsequently, the distributor pulled the dates and re-licensed the picture to someone else for a roadshow. The exhibitor sued for $50,000.00. The distributor made a motion to dismiss the complaint and the motion was granted.

The Court held that the plaintiff was not a party to the contract between Sparks and the distributor, nor was he named in the contract, nor was the contract ever properly assigned to him, and so he had no rights against the distributor. The Court said that if there was any breach of contract, the right of action vested in Sparks and if plaintiff had any remedy, it would be against Sparks, but not against the distributor.

The Court held further, that the distributor had not been guilty of any acts of interference or inducement, even though the distributor had notice that Sparks would be unable to comply with his contract with the plaintiff, because the distributor merely failed to comply with its contract with Sparks and the complaint did not allege that the distributor induced Sparks to break his contract with the plaintiff.

Exhibition Contracts—Place of Trial

Hollywood Film Exchanges, Inc., v. Smalley.[68]

A distributor sued an exhibitor in Erie County, N. Y., where the film exchange was located. The defendant moved to change the venue to Otsego County where he resided, since plaintiff's residence (principal office) was not within Erie County. The distributor made a counter motion to retain the place of trial in Erie County for the convenience of witnesses, which the Court granted.

COMMENT

The Court said the distributor "relies upon the ground that the greater convenience of more material witnesses is in its favor. I agree with this contention and the motion to change the place of trial upon the ground of the convenience of witnesses is denied . . . and the motion to retain the place of trial in Erie County is granted'. . . .

The defendant "challenges the right of the Court to consider upon a motion to change the place of trial to the proper county, a counter-motion to retain the place of trial in the county where the action is brought, but the authorities are to the contrary."

Fox Film Corporation v. Springer.[69]

A distributor sued an exhibitor for the contract price of two pictures shown by the defendants in their theatre. The complaint was dismissed with costs. Upon appeal, the judgment of dismissal was affirmed without opinion.

Exhibition Contracts—Partnership Liability

RKO Distributing Corporation v. Fretz, et al.[70]

A distributor sued three persons, on an exhibition contract signed by one of them, on the theory that they were partners. Upon cross examination, the testimony of one of them disproved any individual liability on his part and the distributor was held bound by the testimony, since it did not produce witnesses to contradict it.

The film salesman testified that he had spoken to one of the defendants about a contract and was referred to another one of them, with the statement that the latter was manager and had charge of picture buys. This was held not to warrant the inference that they were partners and that the manager had authority to bind them individually or as partners.

TAXATION

Sales Tax on Film Rentals

Matter of United Artists Corp. v. Taylor.[71]

The Court held that film rentals for pictures to be exhibited in New York City were subject to the New York City sales tax. Licenses to exhibit films were held not so taxable, where the films were exhibited outside of the city.

COMMENT

The decision has been appealed to the New York Court of Appeals by the distributors because their film rentals for exhibitions in New York City were held taxable under the sales tax; the City officials appealed from the determination that the tax may not be imposed upon films licensed for exhibition outside of New York City, where the contract was executed, and the film exchange is located, in New York City. Trade papers report that about $3,000,000.00 in taxes will become due to the City, in the event the Court of Appeals decides against the distributors.

State Tax on Film Rentals—Interstate Commerce—Not Leviable

Henneford, et al. v. Paramount Pictures Distributing Co., Inc.[72]

The United States Supreme Court refused to review a decision of the Supreme Court of Washington, which held that the distributors doing business in the State of Washington were not taxable by the state upon its gross income, because it was an excise tax and, in any event, the business done by the local exchanges was measured by receipts from interstate commerce.

COMMENT

The decision of the Supreme Court of Washington, which the Court herein refused to review, is digested in the 1936 Year Book at page 819.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION

Workmen's Compensation—Film Salesman —Automobile Accident

Reinhard v. Universal Film Exchange, Inc., et al.[73]

The Court affirmed an order, which denied compensation to a film salesman, who had been injured in an automobile accident, on the ground that the accident did not arise out of and in the course of his employment.

COMMENT

The film salesman worked out of the Minneapolis office. His territory covered North Dakota and the northwestern part of Minnesota. He used his own automobile and was allowed mileage, depreciation on his car and a per diem allowance, in addition to his salary. He claimed that he made a trip to contact an exhibitor, and a young lady through whom he hoped to contact the owner of the local telephone system, so as to arrange for telephone exploitation of certain of his employer's films to be shown by the exhibitor. Apparently he went joy riding with the young lady and after imbibing well, if not wisely, he unsuccessfully attempted to push a truck off the road. The salesman claimed that the accident took place upon the regular route and as his entertainment of the young lady was to earn her goodwill in the proposed deal for the telephone exploitation service, he should not be deprived of his right to compensation.

The Court held, that it would not upset the finding of the referee, in the absence of undeniable preponderance of evidence against it. The Court pointed out that the film salesman was acting "in furtherance of his own and personal frolic rather than in furtherance of his employer's business". It said that "the test is whether he was 'carrying out some purpose of his employment in his master's business' at the time in question?" As the Court said, the salesman's trouble was that he failed to distinguish between a "frolic" and a "detour".

The inference is plain that a film salesman is entitled to workmen's compensation benefits, when he is injured while out on his employer's business, and they were denied in the instant case simply because the salesman was found to have been out on a personal party instead.

LEASES AND OTHER THEATER REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS

Lease—Return and Replacement Provisions —Removal of Fixtures and Equipment by Tenant—Liability

Shafer Bros. Land Co. v. Universal Pictures Corporation.[112]

A commercial building equipped with elevator lift, electric, heating and plumbing fixtures, was leased to tenants who were given permission to alter it into a moving picture theatre. It was provided that the tenants should return the building in the same condition, reasonable use and wear permitting.

The building was converted. A number of structural changes were made. New plumbing, heating and lighting equipment replaced the old equipment which was converted by the tenants to their own use. Subsequently, Universal Pictures bought the personal property in the theatre and the unexpired term of the lease. A new lease was substituted which provided: ". . . . . at the expiration of this lease the lessee shall return said premises to the lessor in the same condition that they are now in and they shall quit and surrender the same in as good state and condition as reasonable use and wear thereof will permit, damage by the elements or fire or other unavoidable casualties excepted."

When its lease expired, defendant's assignee removed the fixtures and equipment and damaged the building so that it could not be rented for use as a moving picture theatre.

Plaintiff sued for the replacement value of the articles removed and the damages to the building. Judgment was rendered for the landlord, and affirmed by the Supreme Court of Washington.

COMMENT

The Court said that when Universal rented the theatre building equipped with permanent fixtures essential to the operation of a theatre, with the obligation to leave them in the condition they were in at the time the lease was executed, "this contemplated the return to the lessor of a fully equipped motion picture theatre and not merely the four walls, the roof and floor of a moving picture theatre building."

Theatre Mortgage—Lease—Equipment and Fixtures—Surrender Clause—Title

McHale v. Rosenblatt.[113]

An equipped theatre, then under mortgage, was leased to an exhibitor. The lease contained a covenant by the exhibitor "to surrender the premises to the lessor at the expiration of the term and lease in as good condition as when received (including improvements of furnishings thereon and excluding equipment), ordinary wear and tear excepted." The exhibitor replaced the equipment with other furnishings and equipment which were presumably new.

Plaintiff, McHale, foreclosed his mortgage and bought in the property at a foreclosure sale. (He also got from the mortgagor a release of his interest in the equipment.) Claiming that the equipment and furnishings passed to him under the foreclosure sale as part of the theatre property, he was granted an injunction to restrain the exhibitor from removing any of it. The decree was affirmed by the Supreme Court of Rhode Island.

COMMENT

The Court held that all of the equipment in the theatre when the lease was made and then replaced by the exhibitor with other equipment were subject to the mortgage up to the time of replacement, "no matter how easily they could be removed." This because they were "installed by the mortgagor, as owner of them and of the property, to fit the theatre for use as such and to form a permanent part of it." The Court said that the new equipment, replacements and other furnishings installed by the exhibitor became subject to the mortgage especially in the instant case where the tenant knew the property was mortgaged (even though his lease supported his claim to remove the equipment).

The Court said in any event there was no evidence that any of the equipment could be removed without diminishing the security which the real estate mortgage would have had, if the new equipment had not been installed and the theatre had remained just as it was at the time when the lease was executed; nor was there proof that McHale would be "unjustly enriched", if all the things in dispute were left where they were.

Action for Deceit—Film Company Not Liable for President's Unauthorized Representations to Negotiate for Theatre Leases

Stoneman v. Fox Film Corporation.[114]

A judgment for $75,000 against a film company was reversed on the following alleged facts: The president and one Blumenthal, represented that the company was interested in Fox Northeastern Playhouses and Fox Metropolitan Playhouses, which had been financed to the extent of twenty million dollars; asked the plaintiff to acquire theaters for them by purchase or lease; plaintiff acquired a number of lease contracts and worked on transactions involving millions of dollars in rentals; the statements were false and the corporations refused to give out the contracts.

The picture company pleaded: a general denial; it had no interest in the stock or property of the two corporations; the statements, if made, were made without authority.

The Court held, "The evidence does not warrant a finding that either Fox or Blumenthal had implied authority to enter upon negotiations with the plaintiff such as are here disclosed or to make the representations upon which he relies. The by-laws of the defendant conferred no such authority either expressly or by implication."

The Court said the business of the corporation had to be managed by its Board of Directors for the highest welfare of the corporation and stockholders, and the control could not be delegated to Fox. The representations related to transactions involving the expenditure of such large sums of money that they out-stripped the company's ordinary and usual course of business and were not binding upon the defendant, without some corporate action beyond that shown.

Trust Mortgage—Foreclosure by Bank Trustee to Cover Loan from Theatre Company —Decision for Exhibitors—Officers Right to Bind Corporation

First National Bank and Trust Co. v. Blackwood Theater Co., et al.[115]

A theater corporation made a mortgage to secure an issue of $75,000 of bonds, which they turned over to the plaintiff bank as trustee under the mortgage. The company desired to pay its creditors therewith. The bank to whom the corporation was indebted, commenced a proceeding to foreclose the mortgage. The Court ordered the bank to turn the bonds over to the theater company so that they might be delivered to the beneficial owners.

COMMENT

The secretary of the corporation was held to have no right to pledge the bonds to the bank for collection unless he had special authority from the directors and no resolution to the board to that effect was proved. This, more especially as they owed the bank only $20,000 and payment to the bank would have constituted a preference and its claim to the bonds was an afterthought.

Mortgage—Guarantee for Subsidiary Corporation—Indemnity Not Payment

Chicago Title & Trust Co. v. Fox Theaters Corporation.[115a]

A subsidiary of Fox Theaters Corporation, in Philadelphia, borrowed $1,800,000, giving a bond and mortgage to secure the loan. The mortgagor required a guarantee of payment. The Chicago Title and Trust Company agreed to guarantee the payment for an agreed premium, provided Fox Theaters Corporation guaranteed the payment of interest and taxes on the property and the yearly advance premium, which its subsidiary had agreed to pay for the bond of guaranty. The subsidiary company defaulted in interest and taxes to the amount of almost $450,000 and in payment of premiums, for two years. In the interim, receivers were appointed for both the Fox Theaters Corporation and also for the Chicago Title and Trust Company.

Judge Manton held that the receivers for Fox Theaters Corporation were not liable for the amount of defaulted interest and taxes; being liable only for the unpaid premiums, since its obligation was not an absolute guarantee of payment but one of indemnity only; it was therefore obligated for only the amount of loss sustained by the guarantee company; as that company which was in receivership had only paid about $30,000 on its guarantee, Fox was held liable in only that amount plus the two yearly premiums.

Pooling Arrangement Does Not Subject Participants to Liability for Each Other's Lease

Theater Holding Co. v. Loew's, Inc., et al.[120]

Fox Theaters Corporation, which operated the Fox Theater, in Atlanta, made an agreement with a subsidiary of Loew's which operated the Grand Theater in the same city, for both theaters to be exclusively booked, managed and directed by defendant for ten years. Its compensation was to be three percent of the gross receipts. The booking agency was to have custody of the receipts and disburse the same. After deduction of the three percent, the receipts were to be used to pay Fox a rental for its theater and Loew's a rental for its theater. Fox and Loew's were then to split the balance.

Plaintiff, for the landlord, sued for almost two million dollars in damages under the Fox Theater lease, claiming that Fox and Loew's became co-adventurers and liable for the rent when they made the deal. The case was dismissed.

COMMENT

The Court held the deal was merely a pooling agreement and the parties thereby merely agreed to indemnify each other for rent payments but the agreement did not provide that the landlord should be a beneficiary thereof nor for an assignment or assumption of either lease. It said the agreement to share profits and losses was not sufficient to establish liability and said that booking of the theaters under the deal did not change the tenancy, nor did it violate a covenant in the lease against subletting or assignment.

Theatre Lease—Sublease—Collection of Sub-Rents by Landlord Without Notice—Liability of Lessee in Ohio—Bankruptcy

In Re Paramount Public Corporation.[121]

Madison-Toledo Co. v. Paramount Pictures, Inc.

Paramount rented a piece of property in Toledo, Ohio. The lease did not contain the somewhat usual clause for continuing liability of the lessee in the event of reentry by the lessor after default. The lease was assigned to a Paramount subsidiary, which in turn sublet to a Casket Company. All rental payments were made promptly until just before the insolvency proceedings of Paramount. Subrents were collected from the Casket Company by the landlord, without the given consent of Paramount. The Court held Paramount liable for the difference between the subrents collected by the landlord and the amount reserved and due under the lease.

COMMENT

In Ohio, differing from most states, the reentry and reletting of leased premises by the lessor without the lessee's consent, after default, does not constitute an eviction terminating the lease. It merely cuts down the damages recoverable for the default. The Court said that since this was so, even without a covenant permitting it, the landlord could collect the subrents without either notice to or consent of the tenant for the purpose of applying them as credits under the amount due under the lease.

Collapse of Theatre Chair—Res Ipsa Loquitur

In Gross v. Fox Ritz Theater Corporation.[132]

A theater patron was ushered to a vacant chair which collapsed after she had been sitting on it for about twenty minutes.

The Court held under these circumstances the doctrine of res ipsa loquitur was applicable, and the fact that the chair had been borrowed by the exhibitor would not affect the obligation of the principal.

Theatre Construction—Trust Deed—Rights of Building Contractor as Against Bond Holders

Theater Realty Co. v. Aronberg-Fried Co.[116]

Plaintiff agreed to build the Fox Theater and office building in St. Louis, Missouri, for cost plus 6 percent of the cost. To secure funds to pay for the building, the theater company sold to a banker an issue of bonds, secured by a trust deed to the property. The trust agreement provided that the exhibitor company would pay for the building not later than thirty days after it was completed, that after certain deductions, the balance of the money should be reserved and held for final payment of the construction cost and carrying charges, upon the filing with the trustee of certain papers including a written request by the theater company; that the company could not require such payment if it was in default.

The building was completed. All the papers required were filed except the payment request by the theater company. Subsequently, a default occurred in the payment of interest on the bonds.

The Court held that the contractor was entitled to payment of the fund ahead of the bondholders because an "equitable right in favor of the plaintiff attached to the trust fund to the extent of the final payment while the money was still in the possession of the Trustee and before the provisions of the deposit agreement became operative on account of the default."

Malicious Damage of Theatre Property—Criminally Punishable

People v. Reade, et al.[117]

The Court held sufficient a criminal indictment[118] of Walter Reade for an alleged malicious damage of the Astor Theater property after the lease expired.

Oral Lease—Eviction—Damages

Stein v. McGinley, et al.[119]

Defendant gave an oral lease to the plaintiff. He was to pay no rent, but to make improvements in the theater which he could then purchase at the end of the year. The defendant evicted him and he sued. The jury rendered a verdict for damages, which was upheld.

COMMENT

The Court said it was up to the jury to decide whether he was in possession under an oral lease from the defendant; if so, defendant could not deny her right to grant the lease and when she put him out and kept the improvements, she was liable for breach of covenant for quiet enjoyment.

Posting Actress's Picture—Burlesque Theatre Entrance

Louka v. Park Entertainments, Inc.[122]

A burlesque theater owner was held liable for libel where he posted a picture of the plaintiff fully clothed at the top of his gallery display of the "Oriental Beauties" of "Minsky's Mid Summer Follies". She was not in defendant's employ nor performing in his theater nor in burlesque.

COMMENT

The display of the plaintiff's picture injured her reputation and this together with the false implication that she was playing in burlesque was enough to maintain the action. The Court said: "It is plain that the publication could be found to have been made of and concerning the plaintiff even if the defendant knew nothing about the plaintiff. The use of her picture shows that."

The Court held that she could recover all damage fairly to be inferred to have resulted from the publication.

NEGLIGENCE

Negligence cases depend upon their own facts, and, as in past years, will be briefly noted.

In Perry v. Carolina Theater,[123] a boy was bitten by a dog. There was no proof that the exhibitor knew of the dog's presence or that it had failed to exercise reasonable care to exclude dogs. The Appellate Court decided for the exhibitor.

COMMENT

The Court said that they could not find a single case similar to this one, which would seem to argue either that dogs did not frequent theaters; if they did they were well behaved; a vigilant watch was maintained to keep them out; if they did attend theatres and bit people, the people suffered their wounds or their humiliation in silence.

The Court restated the familiar rule that an exhibitor is not an insurer of the safety of his patrons and was required to exercise only that degree of care which, under similar circumstances, would be exercised by an ordinary careful or prudent man. The Court said there was no evidence that the exhibitor left undone what it should have done. It said that since there was no negligence shown, the verdict could be up-held only under the doctrine of res ipsa loquitor and that doctrine does not apply in South Carolina.

Negligence—Exhibitor's Liability for Drunk's Conduct

Daniels v. Firm Amusement Corp.[124]

A drunken patron, without warning, wretched and spewed out upon the plaintiff who found herself an unenviable target. Verdict of damages was sustained.

COMMENT

The Court distinguished between exhibitors and common carriers but said that it was up to the jury to determine whether the alleged mishap was such a contingency which the exhibitor in the exercise of due foresight should have anticipated. The Court said that an exhibitor was a sovereign within the precincts of his domain, but the patron was drunk and the exhibitor could have known this to be so when he entered for as the Court said, "Coming events cast their shadows in advance."

Fingers Caught in Swinging Doors

In Leybold v. Fox Butte Theater Corporation.[125]

A patron's fingers were caught between two ordinary swinging doors while leaving the defendant's theater. She sued and was awarded damages. The judgment was reversed by the Supreme Court of Montana which held in effect that it was not the exhibitor's fault since it was his duty only to use ordinary care to have the premises sale and to warn the patron of any hidden dangers.

Negligence—Aisle Step—Dim Lighting—Damages

In McCartan v. Park Butte Theater Co.[126]

A theater patron stumbled over an aisle step and sprained her ankle. She sued claiming the step negligently protruded in the aisle and was insufficiently lighted.

The jury awarded her $3500. The Court held the questions of negligence and damages proper for the jury to determine in this case.

Fall Down Steps—Dim Lighting—Jury Question

Fox Tucson Theaters Corp. v. Lindsay.[127]

A lady tore the ligaments in and sprained her ankle when she fell down steps running from the lavatory to the floor of the lounge. She claimed it was insufficiently lit. The Court held the question of negligence for the jury and sustained the verdict.

COMMENT

The Court said that an exhibitor must maintain the theaters so lighted that under the circumstances of the particular case, they are reasonable safe for the patrons, and that the kind and amount of lighting necessary depended upon the nature of the place involved and the character of the patron, and unless it could say, as a matter of law, "that the lighting was sufficient in quantity to make it safe," it was a question of fact for the jury in the particular case, as to whether the condition maintained constituted negligence, as an approximate cause of the injury.

The Court further held the theater manager was not allowed to testify whether he had ever known of any other accident at that place on account of defective lighting.

Actor Injured—Entitled to Damages Not Workmen's Compensation

Brosius v. Orpheum Theater Co.[128]

A vaudeville performer fell while doing a comedy cycle act during which he used to climb down a rope which broke, altho the fly man had said it was okey. Damages were awarded to the actor who claimed that the exhibitor was negligent. The exhibitor claimed if the actor was entitled to anything, it was workmen's compensation.

The Court decided against this contention pointing out that the actor's contract was for only one week and that "defendant did not have complete control over plaintiff, who contracted to furnish a 'specialty' in his customary manner" and was an independent contractor.

The Court said the exhibitor owed the performer the duty of using reasonable care in selecting and maintaining such apparatus for his use and whether he discharged this duty was for the trial jury to determine. The award of damages accordingly was upheld.

In Bowes v. Hawthorne Amusement Corp.,[129] an actor who was struck by hoisting equipment during a performance was held entitled to recover damages for the injuries sustained.

In Malco Theaters, Inc., v. Murphy.[130]

A pedestrian stumbled over a barrel hoop concealed in some debris which exhibitor, who was reconstructing his theater, had left on the sidewalk. Judgment against the exhibitor was affirmed.

Open Trap-Door—Liability—Jury Question

In Hasney v. Stacey Amusement Co., et al.[131]

A pedestrian fell into a trap-door in the sidewalk used as an entrance way into a theater basement.

The Court held that it was up to the jury to decide whether the exhibitor was negligent for leaving its raised lids unguarded and whether the pedestrian was guilty of negligence in failing to observe the open doors.

LOTTERY (BANK NIGHT)

Criminal Prosecutions—Bank Night Lawful in Iowa

State of Iowa v. Hundling.[74]

The Court held in a sweeping opinion that "Bank Night" was not a lottery under the Iowa law.[75]

COMMENT

The Court restated the familiar rule that there are three elements to a lottery. First, a price, second, a determination of the winner by chance, and third, the payment of a valuable consideration for the chance by the participant. The Court recognized, in "Bank Night", the first two elements, but found that there was no payment of a valuable consideration for the chance. The Court held that stimulation of the theater attendance on "Bank Night" did not make the scheme a lottery. He said: "The question is not whether the donor of the prize makes a profit in some remote and indirect way, but rather, whether those who have a chance at the prize pay anything of value for that chance. The Court said that even the corner grocer, who gave candy to neighborhood children, might be prompted by the motive of increased business, but that did not make the gift unlawful, nor would it become so if he gave it only to some children determined by chance. He pointed out that in Iowa the public officials were selected by chance when there was a tie vote and squarely held that profit accruing indirectly to the exhibitor was not a substitute for the requirement that the one who has a chance to win the prize must pay a valuable consideration for the chance in order to make the scheme a lottery. The decision has received law review notice.[76] It is interesting to note that the exhibitor allowed only 2½ minutes for the winner to come up.

Bank Night Plan Legal in New Hampshire

State v. Eames.[77]

The Court held Bank Night legal in New Hampshire.

COMMENT

The case was decided on an agreed stipulation of facts. The Court said that if the great majority of people paid for the privilege of participating, it would be considered an evasion, but free participation was a reality and the New Hampshire statute,[78] definitely requires payment to be given, for the chance to participate, in order to constitute a lottery.

Lottery—Bank Night Legal in Tennessee

State v. Crescent Amusement Co.[79]

The Court held that Bank Night was not gaming or a lottery.

COMMENT

The Court said that in Tennessee as in Iowa, the statute prohibiting lotteries did not define a lottery.[80] It held, for definition, that "in order that a transaction may be a lottery, three elements must be present; consideration, prize and chance."

The Court said: "We do not, . . . express our approval of the very widespread custom of distributing money at moving picture theaters, on what is variously called 'Bank Night', 'Opportunity Night', etc. Such practice has been denounced in more than one theatrical magazine, and showmen have denounced the screen lottery. There is good reason to support the often-expressed view of our best informed citizens that the practice in question is detrimental to the show houses themselves, as well as hurtful to the public morals. No doubt many of the most faithful patrons of the pictures are anxious to see the fad pass, and the houses devoted to their proper function of wholesome entertainment. But, under our statutes, we are not authorized to declare the practice to be gaming or the operation of a lottery."

Bank—Night—Lottery—Jury Question

Commonwealth v. Wall.[81]

The Supreme Court of Massachusetts held that "the essence of a lottery is a chance for a prize for a price. . . One may give away his money by chance, and if the winner pays no price, there is no lottery. . . On the other hand, a game does not cease to be a lottery because some, or even many, of the players are admitted to play free, so long as others continue to pay for their chances." The Court then said that it was up to the jury to decide whether those who paid for admission were paying in part for the chance of a prize.

COMMENT

The Court said that its conclusions did not conflict with those reached in the Eames or Hundling cases (supra), since the parties stipulated in the latter cases that "free participation is a reality" whereas "the jury in the instant case could find that it was not a full and complete reality on as favorable basis as paid participation." The Court held, however, that the "indirect advantage to the theater of larger attendance is not in itself a price paid by participants."

Bank Night Legal in New York State

People v. Shafer.[82]

An exhibitor running "Bank Night" was convicted of conducting a lottery.[83] Upon appeal, the County Judge ordered him discharged. The Court said the patron's "participation in the drawing was absolutely free and there was no violation of the law." This decision was affirmed by the Court of Appeals by a closely divided Court (4-3).

COMMENT

The Court cited the Hundling and Eames cases (supra) with approval. He differentiated the Miller case (infra), because it was there necessary to purchase a ticket of admission in order to participate.

Bank Night Not Illegal in Indiana—Criminal Prosecution Dismissed

State of Indiana v. Holland.[84]

The Court held that "Bank Night" did not violate the Indiana Lottery Law.[85]

The Court said, "to fall within the injunction of our statute, it is necessary that lottery tickets be sold or that one enters into a lottery scheme or gift enterprise where such tickets are sold."

Bank Night Illegal in Kansas—Exhibitor Enjoined

State v. Fox Kansas Theater Co.[86]

The Supreme Court of Kansas held that "Bank Night" was illegal in that state.

COMMENT

The State successfully brought quo warranto proceedings to restrain the defendant corporation from exercising its corporate franchise in conducting "Bank Night" or any similar device in Kansas. The Court held that in the civil action of quo warranto where a more liberal construction was permitted than in a criminal action, "the indirect benefit derived by the defendant under the "bank night" plan in the way of increased gross receipts from paid admissions, ... is sufficient consideration coming directly or indirectly from those entitled to the chances generally to meet the requirements as to that necessary element in a policy or scheme of drawing in the nature of a lottery. Besides we cannot escape the impression from the intricate and complicated outline of the "bank night" plan, as set out in the answer, and said to have been recognized by the government of the United States as deserving of a copyright and trade-mark, that it is in effect a plan to evade the constitutional and statutory provisions of this state as to lotteries."

The Kansas statute[87] defines lottery as "including schemes for the distribution of money or property among persons who have given or agreed to give a valuable consideration for the chance". It will be noted, that the Kansas statute uses the words given or agreed to give, whereas other statutes read paid or agreed to pay.

Bank Night—Criminal Prosecution

In Roberts v. State,[88] the Georgia Court of Appeals reversed the conviction of an exhibitor who had operated a "bank night" because the indictment which charged that defendant operated a lottery did not say what kind of a lottery or how it was operated.

COMMENT

The Court does not by its decision hold that "Bank Night" is or is not a lottery. However, it was unofficially reported, that this same court on the following day, affirmed a showman's conviction, for conducting "bank night."

Lottery Results Where Participant Must Buy Theater Ticket

People v. Farmer Miller, et al.[89]

An exhibitor in New York, was convicted of maintaining a lottery.[90] The Court described the gift enterprise as follows:

"A patron of the theater buys a ticket of admission which entitles him to witness a motion picture. The holder of this ticket draws another ticket which one of the defendants tears in half, putting one-half into a box and returning the other half to the patron. Another defendant goes upon the theater stage with a wheel, explains its operation, and when the wheel stops at a certain name he picks out a ticket with a number on it and announces that the holder of that ticket is the winner. The third defendant hands the money prize to the winner."

The Court said:

"The issue of law . . . is whether a payment which entitles one to a ticket of admission to the theater plus a chance to win a prize constitutes payment of a valuable consideration for the chance . . . The patron . . . paid his money at the box office and, in return . . . received a ticket entitling him to witness a motion picture and a chance to win a money prize . . . What was he to receive, merely a right to view a picture or that right in addition to a sum of money?"

COMMENT

The decision is noted in XIV N. Y. U. L. q. Review pp. 98-99, (Nov. 1936).

Exhibitor v. Newspaper—Libel for Stating That Patron Won Less Than Exhibitor Advertised—Complaint Dismissed Based on Lottery

H. J. B. Theater Corp. v. Van Ree Publishing Corp.[91]

An exhibitor sued a newspaper publisher for libel because it published an item that a man received $100 at the exhibitor's theater, despite the advertisements that $150 was to be given away, claiming that the publication injured its reputation.

The Court ordered the complaint dismissed since the exhibitor "was conducting an ordinary lottery which is a criminal offense."

COMMENT

The exhibitor seems to have been running a Lucky Number contest, whereby the money was accumulated each week, if the holder of the lucky number was not in the theater at the time the number was announced. This is not an authority against legality of "Bank Night," since it preceded the Shafer case, supra. Then, again, the plan described seems to have required the winner's presence in the theater.

Sweepstakes Night—Suit by Patron Dismissed—Unlawful in Louisiana When Purchase of Theater Ticket Required

Shanchell v. Lewis Amusement Co.[91a]

An exhibitor was sued by a negro patron for the amount of a "sweepstakes" or "bank night" drawing.

Each purchaser of an admission ticket, was permitted to register for participation, in the "sweepstakes" and "bank nights." The winning patron was required to be present in the theater when his name was drawn, to become entitled to the prize. On the night when plaintiff's name was drawn he was refused entrance, "being told that the theater was no longer selling negroes admissions or the right to be present in the theater for the "bank night" drawings and awards."

The Court sustained a judgment against the patron on the ground that the plan constituted a lottery.

COMMENT

The Court said: "We find no difference in principle between the giving of a chance in a "Sweepstakes Night" or "Bank Night" drawing to each purchaser of admission to a moving picture show as was done in this case, and the privilege granted to a customer in a cigar store of punching a hole in a board . . ." (Italics mine).

Exhibitor Granted Injunction Against Competitors' Conduct of Lottery

Sproat-Temple Theater Corp., et al. v. Colonial Theatrical Enterprise, Inc., et al.[92]

The Supreme Court of Michigan granted to an exhibitor, an injunction to restrain his competitors from violating the lottery law,[93] by awarding cash prizes to patrons who held coupons or stubs with numbers corresponding to the numbers on the tickets drawn from a barrel.

COMMENT

The scheme used was not the one known as "bank night." It was the kind of scheme utilized in the Miller case (supra). It is of interest that the Court held a competitive exhibitor entitled to the injunction. The Court recognized, that the drawings and prizes diminished the business of the plaintiff's theaters and increased the business of his competitor.

This case has received law review notice.[94]

Bank Night—Lawful in Texas—Injunction to Competitor Denied

Griffith Amusement Co. v. Morgan.[95]

An exhibitor was granted a temporary injunction against his competitor's use of "Bank Night." The injunction was dissolved by the Appellate Court which held that Bank Night did not constitute a lottery under the Texas law.[96]

COMMENT

The Court said the Texas statutes did not define lotteries; that three elements were essential to constitute a lottery: "(1) A prize in money or other thing of value; (2) its distribution by chance; and (3) payment, either directly or indirectly, of a valuable consideration for the chance to win the prize."

The Court said it was essential to a lottery that something be paid for the chance to win the prize, and said: "The fact that the holder of the drawing expects thereby to receive, or in fact does receive, some benefit in the way of patronage or otherwise, as a result of the drawing, does not supply the element of consideration paid by the chance holder for the chance." The Court held that the facts at bar brought the plan "within the holdings of the Alabama, Colorado, Iowa, California, Tennessee, and New Hampshire cases, as lacking the essential to a lottery of a consideration paid, directly or indirectly, for the chance to win the prize."

Bank Night Plan—Copyright—Trademark—Lottery—Complaint Against Exhibitor Dismissed

Affiliated Enterprises, Inc., v. Gantz.[97]

Affiliated enterprises filed a complaint alleging that the defendant, an exhibitor, was using its plan and system at his theater in Oklahoma and sought to restrain him from its use and for damages and profits realized from its use by him. The Circuit Court of Appeals, affirmed an order of the District Judge dismissing the complaint on demurrer.

COMMENT

The Court said that the copyrighted pamphlet describing the plan was not reprinted, published, copied or sold by the exhibitor even if it was assumed that the copyrighted matter was within the statute. The Court said: "The complaint is that he used the plan and system at his theater in Oklahoma for the giving away of money prizes by lot or chance. The plan or system is not covered by plaintiff's copyright and could not be."

The plaintiff contended that it had registered and recorded the words "Bank Night," as its trademark. The Court said that their examination of the Oklahoma statutes disclosed no authority for the registration and recording of a trademark, for the purpose claimed. Similarly the Federal Laws restricted the use of trademarks to merchandise and they (the Court) failed to find any provision or sanction of the use of trademarks with a plan or system of action. The Court said: "We fail to see that the claimed copyright or trade-mark in anywise supports the bill." The Court after again referring to the plan or system set out in the pamphlets, said: "It is apparent that no one would give prizes if all participants in the drawings paid no admission fees. Show places are conducted for profit. The plan would be wholly worthless as a money-making scheme, both to lessor and lessee. It is further apparent that when non-paying participants and those who pay admissions are each given the same chance at drawing the prize the lucky number may represent one who paid to get in only because of his interest in the drawing. Indeed, that is more than probable. Then how can it be maintained that the supposed evasion converted a lottery or gambling device into a mere altruistic opportunity and occasion to bestow a gift. If not within the literal definitions of those vices, plaintiff's plan and system is too closely akin to have the protection and assistance of a court of equity."

This decision is a grave set-back to the sponsors of the "Bank Night" plan. Certainly, exhibitors in Oklahoma who use the plan, without payment of the weekly charge to Affiliated, are not guilty of copyright or trademark infringement, nor subject to restraint by the Federal Courts. Whether other Courts will follow the decision and rulings of the Court in the instant case, is for the future to determine. Suffice it to say, that the only two Federal Appellate Courts which have passed upon the question, have seemingly held that Bank Night as a system or plan is not protectable under the copyright law.

Bank Night—Parlay Cash Night Using Same System—Copyright Infringement—Unfair Competition—Complaint Dismissed

Affiliated Enterprises, Inc., v. Gruber, et al.[98]

Affiliated Enterprises, who originated the "Bank Night" plan filed a complaint against the "Parlay Cash Night" people claiming infringement of copyright and unfair competition by using and selling a plan substantially the same as Affiliated's system. It alleged "that the language used in defendants' publications is 'substantially identical in all material respects with the language in the plaintiff's copyrighted publications, and compliance with the instructions will result in the operation of a plan or system substantially the same as the plaintiff's.'" The Court dismissed the complaint.

COMMENT

The Court in effect held that the Bank Night people had no property right in the system which they could protect against others, unless their competitors named or palmed off their plan as being the plaintiff's. In other words, it would follow from this decision, that a competitor of the Bank Night proponents may freely sell substantially the same system, if it is not called Bank Night.

The implications of the decision are startling, since Affiliated has developed (according to trade paper reports), from an idea in the brain of an alert Denver booker, into an enterprise which is reported to receive stupendous license fees weekly, for the use of its plan, in over 5,000 theaters throughout the country.

CENSORSHIP

Censorship Ordinances—Right to Show Film Which Is Not Indecent or Immoral—Powers of Police Commissioner

Schuman v. Pickert.[99]

The Detroit police commissioner granted a censorship permit, for exhibition of a film entitled "The Youth of Maxim." Prior to its public showing, the permit was revoked. The trial judge refused to order the permit issued, on the ground that flagrant abuse of discretion by the commissioner, was not proved. The Supreme Court held the trial judge was in error and ordered him to issue a writ of mandamus, directing the commissioner to grant the permit.

COMMENT

The Court held that the legislative body of the city granted the commissioner power of suppression but limited it to "indecent or immoral" pictures.

The Court said: "Deep love for our own form of government is inclined to accentuate our aversion for that of others, but it should not warp our judgment or dull our vision. The petitioner has a constitutional property right to show a film which is not indecent or immoral." The Court said that the film was not indecent and that the picture was not immoral in the ordinary sense of the word even though it was claimed to have a "tendency to support communism or sovietism."

The Court wound up by saying:

"No feeling against foreign political policies or forms of government should be permitted to establish the principle that a police officer may be invested with discretion to determine his own powers of suppression or change the plain terms of his authority. The constitutional method is for the legislative body of the city to clearly define and delimit the power of its officers. By such method the scope of the ordinance may be determined, the validity of the authority tested, and constitutional rights preserved."

Censorship—Test of Obscenity and Indecency

State of Minnesota v. Berger.[100]

An exhibitor was charged with showing an obscene and indecent film known as "Marihuana" in violation of a Minneapolis ordinance.[101] The proceeding was dismissed.

COMMENT

The Court said: The Court is not a censor and has no authority to regulate manners. . . . In the opinion of the Court some of the scenes and language of the play is coarse and the plot is cheap and sensational but that the play uses the language of the street rather than that of a scholar does not itself make it obscene within the law." The Court quoted as his authority the scholarly opinion of Judge Hand in the United States v. One Book Entitled Ulysses, 72 Fed. 2nd. 705.

Censorship—Right of State to Censor Imported Film Despite Federal Customs Approval

Eureka Productions, Inc., v. Lehman, et al.[102]

A statutory court of three judges denied an importer's motion for a preliminary injunction to restrain New York State officials from interfering with the exhibition of the complainant's film, "Ecstasy."

COMMENT

The complainant bought the film in Europe and it was admitted as an import after he screened it before custom's officials. The state censorship authorities in New York refused to pass it. The importer argued "that since the federal authorities admitted the film, determining it not to be immoral within . . . the Tariff Act . . . its exhibition within a state may not later be prohibited by the state authorities."

The Court said: "In regulating the local exhibition of films (by censorship applied equally to all films, domestic and foreign, sought to be exhibited within the State) the State exercises its police power after the article has lost its character as an import and consequently does not invalidly interfere or conflict with the exercise of federal power."

To those who have been discussing uniform federal censorship, Judge Manton's language in which he side-steps the question whether congress can regulate the exhibition of films within a state will be of interest.

Theater License—Commissioner's Right to Revoke for Obscenity

Holly Holding Corporation v. Moss (as Commissioner of Licenses).[103]

The license of a burlesque theater operator was suspended by the New York City Commissioner of Licenses because of allegedly obscene performances. The Appellate Division held that the commissioner had no such authority in the absence of a conviction in the courts.

COMMENT

The Court said that even if the evidence before the commissioner established that the performances were indecent to a full degree, the commissioner had no jurisdiction or authority to revoke the license, in the absence of a conviction under the law, as a condition precedent. The Court held that there was no right of censorship in the commissioner of licenses, so as to enable him to revoke a theater license, on account of a production, which was, in his own opinion, obscene.

COPYRIGHT INFRINGEMENT

Research has disclosed no published cases concerning copyright infringement on the part of exhibitors by means of bicycling, holding-over, or sub-renting of films. The only copyright questions other than those referred to in the preceding portions of this article, are the musical copyrights and especially those cases in which the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers participated.

They are briefly recited:

Joinder of Copyright Actions in Single Complaint

Buck, et al., v. Elm Lodge, Inc.[104]

Copyrighted songs were played at a night club without a copyright license. The music publishers[105] who owned the copyright of the respective songs joined with their exclusive licensee[106] in a single complaint alleging a separate cause of action for each infringement.

The bill was dismissed by the District Judge because neither publisher had any interest in the copyright owned by the other.[107] This decision was reversed upon appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals which held that the causes of action could be united, because both causes of action could conveniently be disposed of together, since any recovery of damages would go to the Society; the infringements occurred at the same date and place and under similar circumstances; and, the defendants set up identical defenses to each cause of action.

COMMENT

The Court recognized that the ruling was different elsewhere, but held that in New York State a separate suit need not be filed for each copyright owner under similar circumstances.[108]

Other cases reported during the year with or without brief comment:

Arnstein v. Marks Music Corporation (82 F. 2d. 275, 28 U. S. P. Q. 426) in which the Court dismissed a complaint which alleged access by the defendant and similarity of the compositions. The Court said "independent reproduction of a copyrighted musical work is not infringement; nothing short of plagiarism will serve."

Wilkie v. Santley Bros. and Leo Feist v. Demarie, both digested in the 1936 Yearbook, have since been respectively dignified by publication in 13 F. Supp. 136 and 16 F. Supp. 827. One of the few criminal indictments for copyright infringement was that of U. S. v. Schmidt, decided during the year and reported at 15 F. Supp. 804 (Schmidt printed bootleg song sheets).

In Cohen v. Richmond, et al. (C. C. A., N. Y., December 7, 1936 (not yet reported), the Court held that an allowance of a reasonable attorney's fee to the prevailing party in a copyright suit, is discretionary, but nevertheless appealable and reduced an award of $2,000 to $400. The Court pointed out that the complaint was insufficient on its face and the motion to dismiss it could therefore have been made at the outset, making unnecessary all the other moves for which the defendant's attorney requested allowance.

FILM DELIVERY

Exhibitor v. Express Company—Delay in Interstate Delivery of Films—Damages Limited to Declared Value

Southeastern Express Co. v. Pastime Amusement Co.[109]

An exhibitor sued an express company "to recover damages for failure to deliver a motion picture film from Jacksonville, Florida, to the theatre at Charleston, South Carolina, in time to be exhibited as advertised." At the time of shipment, the value of the film declared was $50.

The Express Company contended that its liability was limited to $50 under the Carmack Amendment.[110] "The trial court ruled that as the suit was for damages for the interruption of plaintiff's business caused by the delay alleged to be due to negligence, the limitation of liability did not apply." The jury rendered a verdict to the exhibitor for $1,500 and the judgment thereon was affirmed by the Supreme Court of South Carolina.[111] The value of the film declared was $50 and the rate was fixed accordingly.

The United States Supreme Court said that as the shipment was interstate, the federal statute applied to "damages caused by delay in making delivery" and held that "the carrier is entitled to base rates upon value and its compensation should bear a reasonable relation to the risk and responsibility assumed. . . . The broad purpose of the federal act is to compel the establishments of reasonable rates and to provide for their uniform application. . . . The liability . . . is thus governed by the provisions of the applicable tariff and no recovery could be had in excess of the amount permitted by its terms."

Lease Guarantee—Forfeiture—Default Notice—Theatre Lease Interpretation

In re Paramount Publix Corporation.[121a]

Paramount guaranteed two theatre leases. The tenant defaulted in payment of rent payable in advance for the month of January, 1933, and abandoned the premises on January 30th. The landlords then took possession and operated the theatres for their own account from January 31st until the following August, at which time they made a ten-year lease to a new tenant.

The landlord filed claim for the January rent and for depreciation on the theatres (while they (landlords) were operating the theatres). The court disallowed both claims.

COMMENT

The leases provided

(a) Upon default entitling the landlord to declare a forfeiture, Paramount for "a period of two years after such default" would pay a sum equal to the gross monthly rental less whatever the landlord actually received during that period, and

(b) That the landlord might operate in the property during the two-year period and hold Paramount for the difference if its net income was less than the rental prescribed in the lease.

The Court held the right of forfeiture, fixing Paramount's liability arose only after the landlord gave notice and the default in paying rent continued for thirty days.

Respecting the depreciation claim, the landlords realized from their own operation of the theatres a net profit of about $30,000. In their proof of claim, they credited Paramount for only some $6,000 deducting some $24,000 from the income "as the charge for depreciation of the premises."

The Court held the depreciation was not deductible since the landlord could not have deducted depreciation even if the leases had continued without default.

Pistol Explosion—Patron Shot—Liability

Babb, et al., v. Crescent Amusement Co., et al.[133]

A theatre employee who acted as janitor and ticket taker, went to the furnace room to get a cigarette for a patron. He remembered leaving a pistol under a rug on a window sill near the head of the stairs. He reached for it, intending to take it to its usual hiding place. It slipped, accidentally exploded and killed the patron.

The Court held the exhibitor was not liable, since the employee had left his duties as ticker taker and the occurrence was not in the scope of his employment.

It held that an exhibitor is not an insurer and is liable to a patron for an employee's negligent act, only when it is within the scope of his employment.

Patent Relating to Disc Method—Sound Equipment—Not Infringed

Aleograph Co. v. Electric Research Products, Inc., et al.[134]

The Court held a patent[135] covering machines used in exhibiting talking moving pictures, with the disc method, not infringed and granted to a manufacturer and sales agent of sound equipment, an injunction restraining the inventor from bringing further patent suits against buyers and licensees of the machine, since infringement of patent would necessarily be involved.

COMMENT

The patent had been twice before adjudicated as not infringing.[135]

Patents—Motion Picture Screen

National Theatre Supply Co. v. Da-Lite Screen Co., Inc.[137]

A screen company sued a theatre equipment company alleging patent infringement. The lower Court enjoined the defendant from manufacturing or selling the screens. The Appellate Court reversed the decree and held that the patent was void.

COMMENT

The patent called for " 'a moving-picture screen adapted for coordinated sound transmission,' with a 'front light reflecting surface' to project the picture, 'provided with perforations in number and size sufficient to permit passage of sound-waves therethrough of appropriate volume without blurring, while at the same time preserving the light-reflecting properties sufficiently to constitute an efficient screen for the presentation of pictures, the walls of the perforations being at substantially right-angles to the body of the screen.' "[138]

The Court held the patent was void, because the description was so vague and uncertain, that no one could tell from it alone, how to construct the patented device. The Court said that an inventor, when he is given a monopoly on his invention, must in turn, explain the invention in his patent claim, in such clear language, that the public may reproduce it, after his period of patent protection has expired.

Theatrical Program Not a Print Under Copyright Act and Patent Office Rules

In Ex Parte Frontenac Theatre,[139] the commissioner of patents sustained the refusal of an examiner of trademarks to register a print claimed to be used for advertising purposes for theatrical programs.

The commissioner held that a theatrical program itself is not a print within the meaning of the word "print" in the Copyright Act and as defined in rules 28 and 29 of the Patent Office relating to registrations of Copyright and Trademarks.

Other patent decisions included Auditorium Conditioning Corporation v. Warner Bros. Pictures, et al.,[140] involving an air cooling and conditioning patent; Cinema Supplies v. Western Electric Co., et al.,[141] involving improvement in amplifier circuits and Western Electric v. General Talking Pictures,[142] not herein digested because of the likelihood of appeal.

SUNDAY LAWS

Sunday Exhibition—Net Proceeds for Charity—Conviction Sustained

Woods v. The State.[143]

The Georgia Court of Appeals affirmed the conviction of an exhibitor, who showed pictures on Sunday under an agreement to turn over to the city for its hospital fund or other charitable purpose the net proceeds thereof or at least $100 per month. The exhibitor turned over the stated amount each month, although the net proceeds of the Sunday showings did not amount to this sum. The Court said, that the defendant admitted operating his ordinary business on Sunday, which was not justified, in the eyes of the law, by the fact that he donated the net proceeds or more to the city, for worthy charities.

The Court said that it recognized that the exhibitor was seeking to better his less fortunate fellowmen but, in doing so, he was guilty of a plain infraction of the written law.

TALKIE EQUIPMENT

Sound Equipment—Destruction of Theatre by Fire—Exhibitor Nevertheless Liable Under Contract

General Talking Pictures Corporation v. Rinas.[144]

An exhibitor entered into a contract with an equipment company for the installation of a DeForest Phonofilm sound equipment, for a period of ten years at an agreed rental, payable in weekly installments for a period of 104 weeks.

After the equipment had been used for about seven months, a fire destroyed the theatre. The exhibitor then requested the plaintiff to remove its equipment from the theatre ruins. The fire did not reach the equipment. The plaintiff recovered it from the ruins and has held it continuously for the defendant's use. The Court granted a motion for summary judgment for the amount of the entire contract rental.

COMMENT

The Court held that the rental agreement did not provide for termination of liability for the agreed compensation in case the building was destroyed and since such a condition might have been provided against, the liability continued.

The contract also provided that the exhibitor should, in the event of the return of the equipment, be liable to the company for all attorney's fees and other expenses incurred in the collection. The Court held that the attorney's fees were not specified in amount by the contract which left the question of their value a subject of proof at trial, although it granted a partial judgment for the equipment rental under the agreement.

Talkie Equipment—Implied Warranty—Raspy Sound—Decision for Exhibitor

Progressive Finance and Realty Co. v. Stempel.[145]

An exhibitor bought a sound equipment under conditional contract, and paid a certain amount in cash and the balance by a note payable in installments. The note and the conditioinal sales contract were assigned to the plaintiff. The exhibitor defaulted and was sued. In his answer the exhibitor pleaded breach of warranty, failure of consideration and recision. Judgment was given for the exhibitor and was affirmed on appeal.

COMMENT

The exhibitor testified that the sound was raspy, indistinct, and did not synchronize with the picture; he asked the equipment people to remove it and he removed the outfit at his own expense when the request went unheeded. Like testimony was given by a number of other witnesses for the exhibitor.

The Court held: "There was unquestionably an implied warranty in the sale of this machine that it would accomplish the purpose for which it was made. . . . And the testimony of the witnesses . . . shows a breach of this warranty . . . it was worthless for any purpose, so that there was an utter failure of consideration. Moreover, upon discovering the breach of warranty, defendant tendered a return of the machine and thus rescinded the contract of sale, which he was clearly entitled to do."

The contract provided that the exhibitor waived any right to defend any action brought by an assignee thereof to recover payments due under the contract and agreed that any demands on his part against the equipment company should be independent of any action by such an assignee as against him (exhibitor). The Court held this provision void against public policy.

Conditional Sales Contract—Unfiled—Rights of Creditor With Knowledge

Holt Motor Co. v. R. C. A. Photophone, Inc., et al.[146]

An exhibitor bought an automobile under a conditional sales contract. On the same day and at the behest of a sound equipment company which had a judgment against the exhibitor the sheriff seized the automobile. The Court held against the equipment company.

COMMENT

The Court held that under the Minnesota law a conditional sales contract is void as to the buyer's creditors, unless the contract is filed as in the case of a chattel mortgage. But, if the creditor levying upon the property had actual knowledge of the unfiled conditional sales contract or could be charged with such knowledge, he was not protected by the statute. It said further that where the conditional sales contract was made in good faith, without intent to hinder, delay or defraud creditors, the levying creditor such as the sound equipment company in the instant case had the burden of proving that it acted without actual notice or knowledge of the unfiled contract.

Talkie Equipment—Conditional Sales Contract—Validity

Capital Motion Picture Supply Corp. v. Mapes-Bergen Amusements, Inc.[147]

An equipment company sold certain motion picture projection parts to an exhibitor under a conditional sales contract. Believing that the parts were personal property, the equipment company recorded this contract which merely stated that the property should be kept by the buyer at the theatre and not removed therefrom without the seller's consent. There was no statement filed with the contract, describing where the real estate was located and that the equipment was to be affixed thereto, since such a statement is required only when the equipment so sold becomes part of the realty.

The exhibitor was dispossessed under his lease and the mortgages on the theatre property were foreclosed. The mortgagee who bought in the property at the foreclosure sale, then sold it to the defendant, who refused to turn over the projection machine equipment parts to the equipment company, which had not yet been paid therefor.

The Court held that, since the trial judge had decided that the equipment was part of the realty and there was evidence to support that finding, it would not be reviewed on appeal. It said further that the statement contained in the conditional sales contract, did not meet the requirements of Section 7 of the Uniform Conditional Sales Act and that filing of the contract, without the accompanying statement signed by the equipment company, describing the location of the real estate and that the goods were to be affixed thereto, did not protect the equipment company's title in the goods, as against the defendant, who subsequently purchased the real estate.

COMMENT

This case may well be read together with

McHale v. Rosenblatt, digested with the lease cases (supra) respecting the real nature of talking equipment as fixtures.

Real Estate Taxes—Refund Because of Over-Assessment—California Computation—Cash Value

Orpheum Circuit, Inc., v. Los Angeles County.[148]

An exhibitor was granted a refund of taxes paid upon an over-assessment, under a California statute which authorizes such a refund where the assessment exceeds the actual cash value. The Court held that actual cash value meant full cash value, rather than the actual value.

COMMENT

The California political code provides for refund of any taxes "paid upon an assessment in excess of the actual cash value of the property."

The Court directed judgment for the exhibitor, since "actual cash value" meant "full cash value," which was less than the appraised or actual value of the building.

Real Estate—Liability of County Treasurer and His Bondsmen to Exhibitor for Failing to Present Check Until Bank Failed

Kansas Amusement Co. v. Eddy, et al.[149]
Heywood v. Same.

An exhibitor delivered a check to the county treasurer, in payment of the first half of his year's real estate tax and received a receipt acknowledging payment. The check was not deposited. About two months later the bank failed. The county treasurer then cancelled the tax receipt for non-payment of the check. To prevent the sale of its property for taxes, the exhibitor paid the taxes to the county treasurer, under protest, and sued the treasurer's bondsmen, charging that the failure to promptly deposit the check had damaged him in the amount of the check. The insurance company bondsmen contended its liability was limited to breaches of official duty imposed by law; the county treasurer did not have to accept checks for taxes or to present them for payment, and failure to present the check for payment, did not violate any official duty. The Court held for the exhibitor since "there was a positive duty on the county treasurer to deposit the checks in question within a reasonable time."

COMMENT

The Court said that once the county treasurer received a check and gave a tax receipt therefor he owed a duty to the county to present the check for payment to get the cash in the bank within a reasonable time. To hold otherwise would mean that a treasurer could take a friend's check for taxes and hold it indefinitely or until the friend's bank account could better stand the drain of cashing it, which would thereby deprive the county of interest and occasion the risk incident to the later collection.

Income Tax—Fifty Percent Extra Tax on Income of Corporation Formed to Avoid Surtax on Shareholder

A. D. Saenger, Inc., v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue.[150]

A. D. Saenger formed a corporation to hold his half of the stock in the theatre company. His corporation took the cash dividends and passed them on to him individually in the shape of loans.

The Court said that he could not postpone his income taxes by leaving his dividend with his corporation, since the situation was equivalent to leaving money on deposit in a bank and assessed a fifty percent tax on the corporation's income, under the relevant statute.[151]

Corporation Income Taxes—Merger—Deductions

Motion Picture Capital Corporation v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue.[152]

The Court held that a corporation's expenses of organization, increase in capital, fees for listing on the New York Stock Exchange, and legal fees and expenses for its merger with another corporation, were not deductible.

COMMENT

The corporation was organized in 1923. Its expenses of (1) organization and for (2) subsequent increase in capital totaled about $60,000 and (3) fees for listing on the New York Stock Exchange were treated as non-deductible capital items when paid out. The corporation subsequently merged with another company in 1929, paying about $13,000 for (4) legal fees and expenses. All of these items were claimed as deductions for the year 1929, on the ground that the first three were business losses then incurred and the last was a deductible expense. The Court disallowed all the deductions.

The Court said the items were not losses, but simply part of the capital cost to the corporation for its personal advantages, and likened them to commissions paid by a corporation for selling its own stock to obtain capital, even though its net return from the sale was thereby lessened. The Court also held that the merger expenses were not deductible since "expenses to be deductible must be incurred by a taxpayer in doing the ordinary and necessary things his business requires to be done to make it function as such. These expenses were incurred in connection with the taxpayer's business, but were not necessary in the ordinary course of its conduct. On the contrary, they were made necessary by its decision to carry on its business no longer."

In Harlou, Inc., Quinral, Inc., v. Taylor,[153] a motion by exhibitors for a temporary injunction, to restrain the comptroller of New York City from collecting the two percent sales tax, was denied. The order of denial was affirmed by the Appellate Division without opinion.

COMMENT

The companion case to this was that of United Artists Corporation v. Taylor, digested with the distribution cases herein. It is believed that both cases will be decided by the New York Court of Appeals.

TRADE UNIONS

Union Projectionist Discharge—Exhibitor's Liability

Barth v. The Addie Co., Inc., and Harry Sherman as President of Local No. 306.[154]

An exhibitor contracted with a union "for the exclusive employment of its members as moving picture machine operators" . . . and that the exhibitor should not discharge any member of the union without two weeks' notice; "except that any employee may be discharged at any time by paying to him, in advance, two weeks' salary."

The exhibitor reduced the wage schedules in the contract and paid the union men at the lower rates against their protest. One of the men commenced an action against the exhibitor for breach of the union contract. He subsequently received a two-week notice, but continued to work under protest, until he was discharged without cause and replaced by another union man.

The trial Court rendered judgment for the employee. "For the period up to his discharge, the plaintiff recovered the difference between what he was paid and his wage as fixed by the contract ($360.89). This was right. For the balance of the contract term (26 weeks) he recovered his contract wage ($52.65 per week) in the sum of $1,368.90. This, in his case, was error."

COMMENT

The Court recognized that the plaintiff was not paid the two weeks' salary and even assumed that he was discharged without notice to the union but held that under the contract ". . . any loss . . . consequent upon his being discharged was to be liquidated at the money equivalent of what he would have earned under the contract in the next two weeks."

Union Contract—Exhibitor Enjoined Hiring Others

DeAgostina, as President of the Allied Motion Picture Theatre Owners Union, v. Haruth Amusement Corp.[155]

Judgment was affirmed for a union, which sought to enjoin an exhibitor from employing as motion picture machine operators, any person not furnished by the Union under its agreement with The Independent Theatre Owners Association, Inc., of which the exhibitor had become a member.

COMMENT

Anyone interested in the New York City union situation at the time, will find an interesting 15-page opinion in the case of DeAgostina (as President of the Allied M. P. T. O. Union) v. Holmden[156] (as President of the M. P. Machine Operators Union, Local 306 (I. A. T. S. E.)).

Union Picketing for Closed Shop Where Employees Content With Conditions —Picketing Illegal and Restrained in Maine

Keith Theatre, Inc., v. Vachon, et al.[157]

The Court held that an exhibitor was entitled to restrain picketing by picketers, who were seeking to secure unionization and adoption of a union schedule of wages, where the exhibitor's own employees were entirely satisfied with their employment.

COMMENT

When the exhibitor started to operate his theatre, he conferred with union representatives concerning a union wage schedule and operation of his theatre as a "closed shop," but no agreement was made. He conducted the theatre as an open shop. Its wages were less than the union schedule which he claimed were higher than he could "afford to pay and live." His employees were entirely satisfied with their wages, neither struck nor picketed and had no grievance against the exhibitor. The exhibitor did not employ members of any one union, but did not refuse to employ union help, although he would not consent to employ only union laborers. The exhibitor was peacefully picketed "for the sole purpose of compelling the plaintiff (exhibitor) to adopt the so-called closed shop agreement and the union schedule of wages." The pickets went back and forth in front of the theatre with printed signs that the theatre was unfair to organized labor and urging the public not to patronize the house.

The Supreme Court of Maine held that the picketing should be enjoined. It stated for the first time the position of the State of Maine with regard to picketing for the purpose of unionizing a theatre. It said that the employees had a right to strike for increases in wages, but the purpose of this picketing to compel the exhibitor to adopt the so-called closed shop agreement was not a lawful purpose, since the picketing was not done by his employees who were satisfied with their employment, but by agents of the unions, who had no contract nor relationship with the plaintiff or his employees.

The Court did not directly decide the question whether it would have restrained the exhibitor's employees from picketing but very definitely held that it would restrain peaceful picketing by these "strangers."

It will be noted that the Courts have divided as to whether a strike to unionize a shop or to compel the discharge of a non-union employee in pursuance thereof is legal or illegal. New York, Illinois, California, Minnesota and some other states hold such a strike legal. Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and New Jersey hold it illegal. It would seem from the instant opinion that Maine has lined itself up with the latter group of states.

Classification of Union Members Invalid

In Cameron, et al. v. International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees and Moving Picture Operators, et al.,[158] the Court held that the classification of Trade Union members as "seniors" and "juniors" by contract giving the seniors the prior right to employment, was an abuse of power, as it constituted an unreasonable restraint of the constitutional rights of the junior members and an arbitrary interference with their liberty of contracts.

COMMENT

The opinion is complete but of interest only to trade unionists. It simply deals with union membership internally; not with relation to theatre operation. The Supreme Court of the United States refused to review the decision.[159]

In Geddes v. Pinzel, as president of Moving Picture Machine Operators Union, Local No. 223, a projectionist sued the Union. The Court adjudged that the plaintiff's expulsion from the union was null and void; that he be reinstated as a member and recover from it about $12,000 as damages. The judgment was affirmed without opinion.

Picketing—Criminal Prosecution—Constitutionality

O'Rourke v. City of Birmingham.[160]

An exhibitor was picketed. The picket was prosecuted under an Alabama Statute against picketing and his conviction was upheld.

COMMENT

The picket peacefully walked up and down with a sign which read, "The Ritz Theatre does not employ union men affiliated with the American Federation of Labor." It seems that the stage hands had been locked out. The Appellate Court held that the statute was constitutional and valid.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION

Workmen's Compensation—Dancer—Replacement of Broken Tooth Compensable

In the Matter of Eddie Belmont v. Paramount Publix Corporation, et al.[161]

The claimant was a dancer in the Paramount Theatre. While walking off the stage, she tripped over a cable, causing a lamp to fall, which struck her on the head and injured her teeth. One of the teeth was extracted.

The Court held that the cost of replacing the tooth was payable by the insurance company under the New York Workmen's Compensation Law.[162]

Ensemble Dancer—Injury Compensation and Medical Bills

Moorman v. Central Theatres Corporation.[163]

A twenty-three-year-old ensemble dancer was injured while performing a fan kick. The insurer's physician examined her. Later, her family physician sent her to a hospital, where she had a private room and careful attention.

The Workmen's Compensation Commission made findings of fact and rulings of law that she had sprained certain ligaments; had no permanent injuries; that the exhibitor and insurer attempted to furnish her with medical aid but "she choosed to employ own doctors, hospital, etc.," and allowed her only twenty-six weeks for temporary total disability and nothing for hospitalization or medical expenses. This latter decision was concurred in by the St. Louis Court of Appeals.

COMMENT

The Court said that the nature, extent and duration of injuries sustained by an employee under the Missouri Workmen's Compensation Law was for the Commission to find, and its findings and award were conclusive upon the reviewing court, if sustained by competent evidence.

The Court held that she was disentitled to an allowance for her hospital and medical expenses, because, "The granting or denying by the Compensation Commission of an allowance to an employee for medical aid is a finding of fact, and therefore, if supported by sufficient competent evidence, . . . cannot be set aside because against the weight of evidence." The Court pointed out that the Missouri Workmen's Compensation Act provides for medical, surgical and hospital treatment for the first ninety days after an injury or disability and "if the employee desires, he shall have the right to select his own physician, surgeon, or other such requirement at his own expense," and since there was evidence that the employee refused the medical attention offered by the theatre owner and called in her own doctors upon whose advice she sought hospital care, choosing her own hospital and character of private room, she did so at her own expense and thereby waived any claim upon her employer for those expenses.

Liability of Exhibitor for Workmen's Compensation When Insurance Company Fails

Pink v. Isle Theatrical Corporation.[164]

An exhibitor was covered for Workmen's Compensation liability, and owed the insurance company for an earned premium while the policies were in force. During the period covered by the policy, an employee of the exhibitor was injured in the course of his employment and died. An award of workmen's compensation death benefits was thereafter made to the widow. The insurance company later discontinued the compensation payments to the widow and then failed. The exhibitor then made payments on the ward to the widow. The property of the insurer was taken over for liquidation by the New York Superintendent of Insurance who sued the exhibitor for the earned premiums.

The Court held that the inability of the insurance company to pay the award (owing to its liquidation) did not relieve the exhibitor of his liability to pay the earned premium, although he could offset against that premium the amount he was obliged to pay to the widow.

Workmen's Compensation—Status of Case After Theater Employee's Death

In Holtz v. B. F. Keith Detroit Corporation, et al.,[365] a theatre employee was allowed workmen's compensation for an injury. While appeal was pending he died.

The Court held that his death abated the proceeding as to him, but the proceeding was still pending for the purpose of determining the rights of his dependents to compensation.

ZONING LAW

Theatre License—Powers of License Commissioner

Matter of Goelet v. Moss (Comm'r of Licenses).[366]

The commissioner of licenses in New York City was ordered to grant a property owner's application, for the approval of a site, for a proposed motion picture theatre, in a very swank neighborhood.

COMMENT

The Court pointed out that the exhibitor's character was not assailed; a theatre at that point would not endanger public welfare, safety, health or morals; and the zoning laws of the City of New York would not be violated by erecting the theatre.

The objectants argued that in the absence of an existing city plan, the given section of Park Avenue should be maintained as a high-class residence and retail business thoroughfare by excluding the theatre, as logical city planning would preclude a theatre.

The Court said: "We hold that the Zoning Law is the controlling authority as to what uses the owners may make of their property in a given district and the uses to which the property may be put. Whether the erection of a theatre in a space which has been left free by the law for such purposes would depreciate property values is not a matter of concern of the commissioner of licenses of the city of New York. . . . We think the charter and ordinances show no intention of mixing police duties and zoning duties when the commissioner passes on applications for this sort of license. The history of the statutes governing the licensing of theatres in this community confirms our opinion that the duty of the licensor is to consider the question from the standpoint of public health, safety and morals only and not as a problem in city planning."

"How I have helped shape the Careers of hundreds of stars of the stage, screen and radio."

NED WAYBURN

Have you ever wondered how the stars of the stage, screen and radio achieved their success? Do they seem to have a glamorous gift which others don't possess? If that is what you think I would like to tell you more about it. For twenty-five years I have been connected with the "show business," and have had the privilege of training hundreds of girls and young men, many of whom are the great stars of to-day. Most of these people were just like anyone else to begin with. The same training that brought them success is available to you.

You are invited to visit the Ned Wayburn studios and learn about the many wonderful opportunities to prepare for a career.

All instruction under the personal supervision of Ned Wayburn

STAGE DANCING for adult girls and women. Morning, afternoon or evening classes.

TWICE WEEKLY EVENING CLASSES for business and school girls.

CHILDREN'S SATURDAY DANCING COURSES—rounded training. Also CHILDREN'S ONCE WEEKLY DOLLAR CLASSES Mondays to Fridays.

REDUCING and BUILDING UP classes at 10:30, 3:30, 7:30, Mondays to Fridays. Ned Wayburn's famous "Limbering and Stretching" courses.

BALLROOM DANCING—Private instruction or your own exclusive classes.

RADIO CLASSES and private lessons for children and adults.

NATIONAL COVERAGE Localized

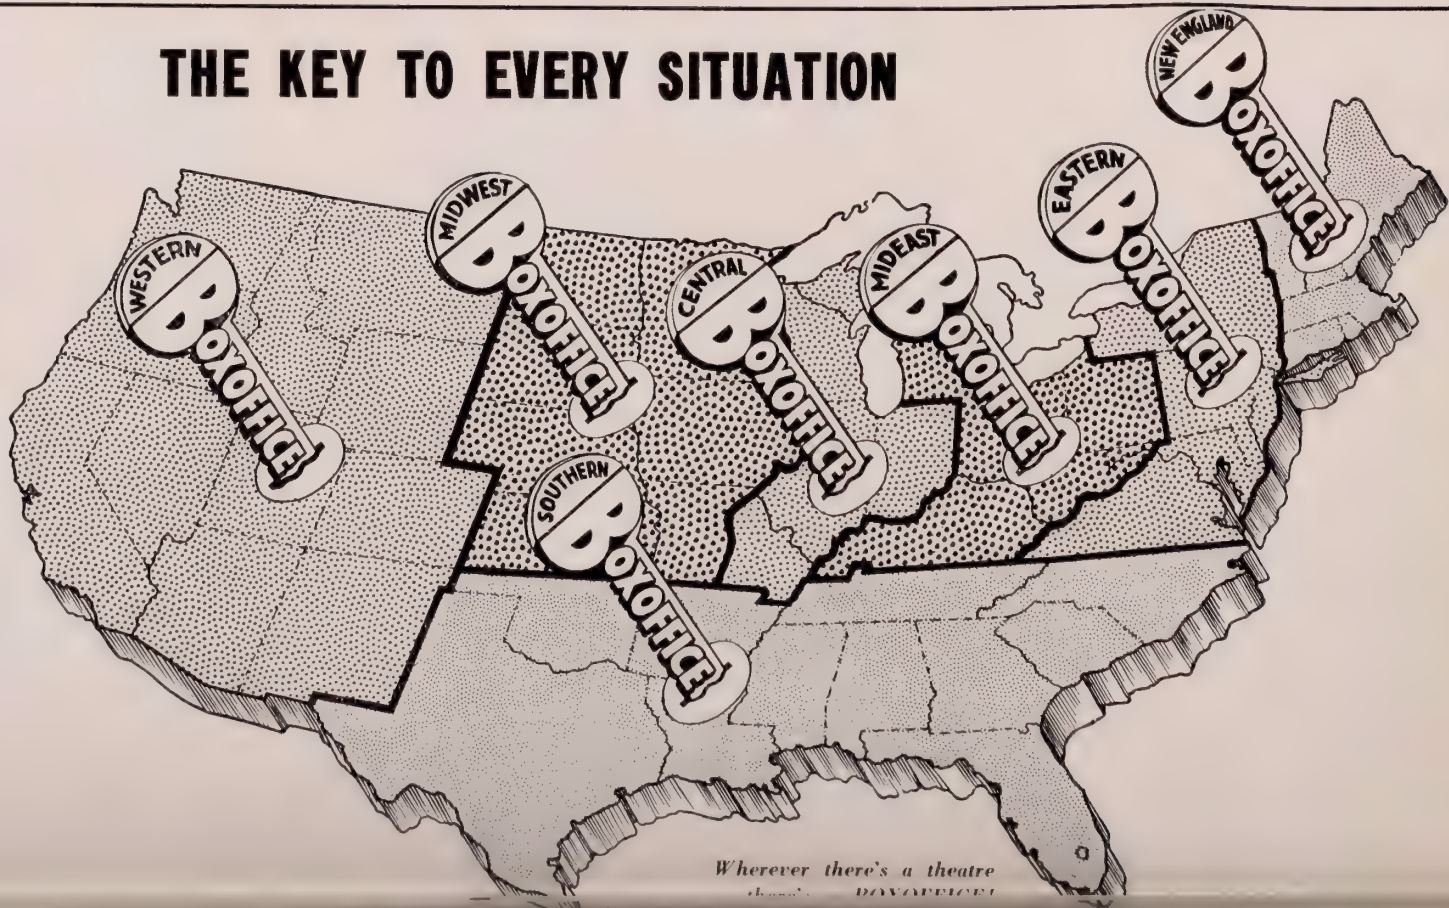
THE KEY TO EVERY SITUATION



BOXOFFICE bears the distinction of being the only trade paper in the Motion Picture Industry that is constituted to provide either "National" or "Spot" market coverage—or both. In any case, it offers a complete service to the advertiser. Its position in the theatre industry is, therefore, unique.

The national advertiser is provided with national coverage through the use of all seven editions of BOXOFFICE and The Modern Theatre section; or at his option, he may choose his territory. There need be no waste circulation or duplication of trade coverage. BOXOFFICE is prepared to do the job thoroughly and most economically.

Significantly, the advertiser who is not interested in complete coverage, owing to limited fields of operation, is not compelled to pay for circulation that is of no value. It is not necessary to advertise to Boston if Dallas territory is the desired sales expansion sector —and so on throughout the various geographical divisions of theatre trade.

The national advertiser who is interested in both national and local coverage—the latter for the purpose of stimulating local sales activity on the part of his distributors—will find the localized feature of BOXOFFICE directly supportive to the effect of his national advertising. Furthermore, this factor provides an opportunity for the local dealer or sales representative to tie in effectively and economically with the national campaign, by using space in the edition covering his territory concurrently with the appearance of the national advertising in The Modern Theatre section.

The Modern Theatre section of BOXOFFICE appears every fourth week (13 times yearly) in all seven sectional editions. Therefore, it provides national trade coverage only. However, with each issue in which the Section appears as a BOUND-IN supplement, there is always opportunity to localize by using one or more of the sectional editions. It can usually be arranged to place such advertising in proximity to the position of The Modern Theatre section.

The geographical divisions of BOXOFFICE coverage are shown on the map above. An efficient corps of well-trained trade news reporters and staff editors is maintained in each of the seven territories. Each of the sectional editions contains, in addition to news of national import, eight or more pages of strictly local trade news and reports of current events which are not duplicated in other editions. All contents are carefully edited and condensed for the reading convenience of the busy theatre owner.

BOXOFFICE is "the exhibitor's home-town paper." It comes first in his regular reading habits. Consequently, it qualifies as a most effective medium through which to claim the attention of the entire trade.

Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America

ACTIVITIES in 1936

Principal office: 28 West 44th St., New York City. Other offices at 5504 Hollywood Boulevard, Hollywood, Calif., 709 Albee Building, Washington, D. C.; 21 Rue de Berri, Paris, France; and St. James Club, London, England.

THE Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc., was organized in March, 1922, under the presidency of Will H. Hays.

From the first, Mr. Hays emphasized that the support of the public is essential to the production of better motion pictures. Improvement of films has been a continuing process in which both the producers and the public have shared.

In all that the Association has done in its fifteen years of existence, self-regulation has been the constant purpose. Always the aim has been to maintain the integrity of the screen. This is in line with the American tradition of self-discipline, as exemplified in freedom of the press.

After eight years of progressive improvement in film standards, the self-regulative principle was bulwarked by the Production Code, adopted in March, 1930, and the Advertising Code, adopted in June of the same year, both of which continue in force.

Through his Open Door policy, Mr. Hays has interested thousands of community leaders in the industry's efforts at self-improvement. He has given assistance to public groups trying to encourage audience demand for the best entertainment.

Better films councils and committees are operating independently in thousands of communities all over the country. These groups act as leaders in their localities in efforts in behalf of better pictures.

The activities of the Association cover a wide area and include the self-regulation of advertising, community service, conservation, foreign markets, public information, theatre service and title registration.

PRODUCTION CODE ADMINISTRATION

Self-regulation of motion picture production evolved gradually from early beginnings in 1922 when the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America was founded.

Several progressive steps to establish higher standards of production culminated in the adoption on March 31, 1930, of the Production Code, which is still in force.

This Code, a voluntary agreement entered into by the member companies, acknowledges the producers' responsibility to the public and asks in return "a sympathetic understanding of their purposes and problems and a spirit of cooperation that will allow them the freedom and opportunity necessary to bring the motion picture to a still higher level of wholesome entertainment for all the people."

The Code machinery of self-regulation operates at four points:

1. The original story or play is submitted to the Production Code Administration for suggestion and criticism before the first screen adaptation is written.
2. When the script is completed, it is submitted for a check with Code requirements.
3. In the early stages of production, members of the Production Code Administration staff are often called in to discuss sequences that present problems.
4. After this careful reviewing all along the way, the finished picture is reviewed and, if it meets Code requirements, a certificate of approval is issued.

The Code machinery is available to all producers, foreign or domestic, whether or not they are members of the Association.

From July 15, 1934, to December 1, 1936, the Production Code Administration issued a total of 3,975 Code certificates, including feature pictures and short subjects. The Hollywood office issued 1,704 certificates for feature pictures and 990 for short subjects. The New York office, which reviews foreign as well as eastern productions, issued 186 certificates to features and 1,095 to shorts.

How well the Production Code Administration has performed its function in maintaining both Code standards and the integrity and vigor of the screen as a medium of entertainment is evidenced by the steady stream of high quality pictures that continues to flow from the studios.

Now in its 16th year

The only publication in the country covering the serious use of motion pictures in education.

ADVERTISING ADVISORY COUNCIL

The Advertising Code, adopted on June 6, 1930, applies to all press books, newspaper advertising, trailers, outdoor display, novelty distribution and other forms of motion picture exploitation issued by member companies. Its general principle is: "Good taste shall be the guiding rule of motion picture advertising."

Mr. Hays established an office for code enforcement, but there was such a volume of detail that it was necessary to expand the organization. This was done November 17, 1933, when the Executive Committee of the Association met at the call of Mr. Hays to organize the Advertising Advisory Council.

To secure uniform interpretation of the Code, all advertising material is submitted in advance to the Council at the Hays office in New York or its branch in Hollywood.

Because of the close cooperation of company advertising directors— each of whom, as a member of the Council, is directly responsible for his own advertising—there have been fewer and fewer rejections each year, indicating the improved quality of advertising. Out of 107,353 stills submitted in the past year, 829, or less than 1 per cent, were discarded or retouched to meet Code standards. Of 11,930 advertisements, 347 were rejected or revised. Of 12,092 exploitation ideas, 18 were found unsuitable. Only 61 posters out of 2,050 submitted had to be changed and there were but two deletions in 859 trailers.

Approximately 85 per cent of motion picture advertising originates with member companies of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America. The remaining 15 per cent has, in large measure, followed the lead of the Association.

TITLE REGISTRATION BUREAU

Early in the life of the Association, a plan was adopted for the registration of motion picture titles. This served the dual purpose of avoiding objectionable titles and preventing harmful similarity of titles with resulting confusion on the part of producers and public. As now constituted, a voluntary system of arbitration is provided within the industry for the settlement of disputes as to conflict or priority of titles and this method of registration has become an important part of the industry's system of self-regulation.

Approximately 10,000 motion picture titles are on registration with the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America at the present time, and more than thirty producing or distributing companies regularly register their titles with the Association. New registrations range from half a dozen to as many as fifty a day, with a daily average of approximately fifteen.

THEATRE SERVICE DEPARTMENT

The Theatre Service Department studies and analyzes the trade practices, trade relations, methods of theatre operation and the structure of industrial organization in the industry. Active contacts are maintained with local exhibitor organizations throughout the country to assist them in developing in constructive ways their own usefulness and service to the local theatre owners in their own State and zone. Statistics and data are assembled and information supplied to units in the industry for various uses.

Effort is constantly made to help exhibitors and exhibitor associations to bring about a better and broader understanding of industry matters and the commercial practices essential and peculiar to the picture business, and to build good will for the local motion picture theatre.

FOREIGN DEPARTMENT

Through the medium of the Foreign Department, the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America assists members in securing fair treatment in the distribution of American films abroad. In the past fifteen years, the Association has taken a leading part in successful negotiations to solve difficulties due to restrictive legislation.

The department keeps member companies closely informed on legislative and economic developments in foreign markets.

CONSERVATION DEPARTMENT

Thanks to the campaign carried on through the years by the Conservation Department, there were only two fires in motion picture exchanges in the United States in 1936—both of them inconsequential. No one was injured and no film was damaged. Because of the perfect functioning of fire doors and sprinkler systems, both fires were confined to the rooms in which they started.

In addition to protecting film from fire and other hazards in exchanges, the department has just completed a check-up on 4,000 places other than theatres where pictures are shown in the country to assure that necessary precautions are being taken against fire. More than 300 booths were installed as a result of the survey.

The department was responsible in large measure for the adoption of the 2,000-foot reel last September.

This department also gave technical assistance when the National Archives were constructed in Washington to house a collection of motion pictures of permanent historical value, and has continued to cooperate in problems related to the protection of films.

COMMUNITY SERVICE DEPARTMENT

Through the Community Service Department, directed by Carl E. Milliken, Secretary of the Association, Mr. Hays cooperates with Better Films Councils, clubs, universities, schools, churches and other public groups.

More than one million items of printed and mimeographed informational material have been sent on request to individuals and local groups interested in the best in picture entertainment.

Picture reviews issued by public groups are circulated throughout the United States and in several foreign countries.

The material thus furnished is multiplied enormously through the activities of socially minded public groups, civic and educational leaders. In the course of the year, some 10,000 public addresses were made by local motion picture chairmen. Radio stations carried approximately 4,000 programs recommending current pictures. More than 500 newspapers with a combined circulation of twenty million carried lists of recommended pictures based on the lists issued by the central previewing committees. Chain telephone committees organized by local councils carried the news of important motion pictures throughout the community.

The result has been two-fold: stronger public support for the better pictures and higher quality of production.

Two Educational Projects

In the field of education, the Community Service Department has lent support to two important projects, photoplay appreciation and character education.

With the opening of the new school year, it is estimated that nearly five million pupils are enrolled in photoplay appreciation classes in Junior and Senior High Schools. Teachers report as a result of four years of experiment and experience that analysis of feature motion pictures under faculty guidance stimulates greater interest in the study of literature, hisory, geography and the sciences.

The technique now used in photoplay appreciation classes has been worked out in cooperation between educators and producers. An official reviewing committee of the National Education Association selects current motion pictures that have significant classroom value and a subcommittee prepares study guides. So great has been the interest that study guides have attained a circulation of 500,000 on an important picture.

An experiment has been carried on for several years in the field of character education under the guidance of the Committee on Social Values in Motion Pictures, which includes: Dr. Howard M. LeSourd, dean of the Boston University Graduate School, chairman; Dr. Florence Hale, former president National Education Association; Dr. Mark A. May, Director, Institute of Human Relations, Yale University; Dr. Frank N. Freeman, professor of Psychology, University of Chicago; and Dr. Miriam VanWaters, penologist, member Harvard Crime Survey.

The committee has assembled excerpts from feature photoplays into a series of twenty one-reel pictures called "Secrets of Success." Each illustrates some problem in conduct and serves to stimulate thinking and discussion. After being tested in 16,000 discussion groups in the course of the past two years, the experiment was extended into new fields this year.

Coordinates Previewing Groups

One of the important functions of the Community Service Department is to act as a coordinating agency for the various previewing groups, made up of civic leaders and organization representatives interested in motion pictures as community entertainment and as a social and moral force. These function both in Hollywood and in New York. They see and evaluate practically the entire film output and publish their reviews both in individual pamphlets for the use of their own organizations and in a joint list which is published by the Association under the title of "Selected Motion Pictures."

West Coast Preview Committee

The largest organization previewing on the West Coast is the West Coast Preview Committee, made up of the following representatives of national, state and local organizations:

National Society Daughters of the American Revolution. (Mildred Lewis Russell (Mrs. Richard R.), Preview Chairman, Motion Pictures, 7110 Hillside Ave., Hollywood, Calif.).

National Society of New England Women. (Mrs. David H. Ray, National Councilor, 1235 First Avenue, Arcadia, Calif.)

General Federation of Women's Clubs. (West Coast Committee. Mrs. William A. Burk, Chairman, 359 N. Bronson Ave., Los Angeles, Calif.)

California Congress of Parents and Teachers, Inc. (Mrs. Leo B. Hedges, Chairman, 6235 Mt. Angelus Ave., Los Angeles, Calif.)

National Council of Jewish Women. (Los Angeles Section. Mrs. Florine Wolfstein,

Southern California Council of Federated Church Women. (Mrs. M. F. Thomson, Chairman, 1124-D 17th St., Santa Monica, Calif.)

The California Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. (Mrs. Odessa Davis, General Motion Picture Chairman, 1552 South Canfield Avenue, Los Angeles, Calif.)

American Legion Auxiliary. (Pauline E. Ellison (Mrs. Max), National Motion Picture Preview Chairman, 1735 E. Tenth St., Long Beach, Calif.; Mrs. Mildred Amundsen, Report Chairman, 11047 Sarah St., North Hollywood, Calif.)

These groups previews pictures at the Hotel Roosevelt, Hollywood.

East Coast Preview Committee

The East Coast Preview Committee has a membership of individuals affiliated with many national, state and local organizations, all of whom are active previewers. While not directly under the aegis of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, it functions in cooperation with that organization and Mrs. William Dick Sporborg of Port Chester, New York, who is chairman of Legislation for the General Federation, is its chairman. The group holds bi-monthly Council meetings and monthly Institutes for Preview Study at which the members receive direct instruction in the technique of previewing.

Other Preview Groups

One of the most important preview services is that maintained by the Cleveland Public Library which reviews films to determine those which are suitable for library "bookmarks," containing suggestions as to accompanying books. "Bookmarks" prepared by the library as a result of these previews are made available to other libraries and are published monthly in "The Motion Picture and the Family," a publication of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America going to approximately 30,000 civic leaders throughout the United States. This service has been expanded through the issuance of a monthly publication, "Books and Films," written by Mrs. Ina Roberts, publicity director of the library, which conveys suggestions as to how librarians may utilize current films to stimulate interest in reading; also through a weekly broadcast sponsored by the Office of Education of the Department of the Interior which is given on a national network. Inquiries about the library previewing service should be addressed to Mrs. Ina Roberts, 11118 Clifton Blvd., Cleveland, Ohio.

The Boy Scouts of America previews pictures in New York for publication in its magazine, "Boys' Life." Communications regarding this service should be addressed to the Boy Scouts of America, 2 Park Avenue, New York, N. Y.

Mrs. Leon A. McIntire, of New Jersey, chairman of the Better Films Committee of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, heads a group made up of members from New York, New Jersey and Connecticut which regularly previews films and circulates its evaluations to the membership of the organization through its national publication and other media.

The increasing artistry of musical films has led to the creation of the Preview Board for Musical Films by Mrs. Ruth Haller Ottaway, former music chairman and now president of the National Council of Women of the United States. The reviews are sent to the 19 member organizations of the National Council of Women which represent a combined membership of 3,000,000 and are also published in "Selected Motion Pictures."

Films with a social work theme are regularly previewed by representatives of the Social Work Publicity Council, with headquarters in New York City, and the Council's evaluations of these films are circulated to more than 900 social work agencies in cities and towns throughout the United States.

One of the most important and rapidly expanding preview services was that which was originally inaugurated by the National Council of Teachers of English, and which has now expanded until it is the official previewing service of the entire Secondary Education Department of the National Education Association and therefore the official mouthpiece on films for many thousands of teachers throughout the United States. The preview group sees pictures which seem adapted to study guides for classroom use and issues such guides on a limited number of approved pictures.

Various Preview Lists

In addition to the preview lists already mentioned, the following are also circulated: the Daughters of the American Revolution edits a weekly guide; a concise list of films with audience ratings is prepared by the National Society of New England Women; motion picture evaluations are prepared by the General Federation of Women's Clubs (West Coast Committee); the reports of the California Congress of Parents and Teachers appear monthly in the California Parent-Teacher Magazine and weekly in the Los Angeles School Journal; the Los Angles Section, National Council of Jewish Women, edits a monthly report; the Women's University Club publishes a special monthly list; the Southern California Council of Federated Church Women edits a monthly report.

Probably the most widely circulated preview list is "Selected Motion Pictures" published by the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America at the request of East and West Coast Preview groups. This reaches each month approximately 30,000 civic leaders who rebroadcast the information it contains through such media as local newspapers, schools and library bulletin boards, local telephone committees, radio stations and announcements in clubs, community organizations and from church pulpits, so that these evaluations of films reach millions of people throughout the United States, all of whom have an active interest in films and are potential promoters of the higher grade of product turned out by the industry.

"Motion Picture and the Family"

In addition to "Selected Motion Pictures" the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America has another monthly publication, "The Motion Picture and the Family." Published in midmonth, this carries six regular departments. These are the Cleveland Library bookmarks; "Movies for the Pupil and Teacher," in which Sarah McLean Mullen, motion picture critic for "Scholastic Magazine," reviews feature films which are of distinct interest and value for classroom discussion; "Lessons from the Movies," in which Dr. Howard M. LeSourd, dean of the Boston University Graduate School, appraises current films from the standpoint of social values; "What's Next in Hollywood?" in which Mrs. Thomas G. Winter of the Community Service Department of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America calls attention to notable films in the process of production; and "A Clubwoman Chats on Films for the Family," in which Mrs. William Dick Sporborg, chairman of the East Coast Preview Committee, adjudges the industry output from the viewpoint of the civic leader.

The Association's two publications are available free of charge to Better Films Councils, the motion picture chairmen of local organizations interested in special types of entertainment and to those desiring to use the information in community motion picture work.

Motion Picture Councils

It is estimated that approximately 6,000 motion picture councils and committees exist in the United States whose primary function is to stimulate interest in and patronage of films of the higher type. These groups frequently mobilize in support of photoplays of especial merit, particularly those which are based on literary classics, which have social import or are of such unusual artistry as to commend themselves to civic organizations.

A recent development resulting in large measure from the introduction of photoplay appreciation into the curricula of secondary schools has been the formation of large numbers of photoplay appreciation clubs and junior motion picture councils. Many of these junior groups regularly preview films, publish their evaluations in the school papers and post them on the bulletin boards. They also stimulate in every possible way patronage of the higher type of films.

CODE OF ETHICS

TO GOVERN THE MAKING OF TALKING, SYNCHRONIZED AND SILENT MOTION PICTURES

Formulated by the Association of Motion Picture Producers, Inc., and The Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc.

Motion picture producers recognize the high trust and confidence which have been placed in them by the people of the world and which have made motion pictures a universal form of entertainment.

They recognize their responsibility to the public because of this trust and because entertainment and art are important influences in the life of a nation.

Hence, though regarding motion pictures primarily as entertainment without any explicit purpose of teaching or propaganda, they know that the motion picture within its own field of entertainment may be directly responsible for spiritual or moral progress, for higher types of social life, and for much correct thinking.

During the rapid transition from silent to talking pictures they have realized the necessity and the opportunity of subscribing to a Code to govern the production of talking pictures and of reacknowledging this responsibility.

On their part, they ask from the public and from public leaders a sympathetic understanding of their purposes and problems and a spirit of cooperation that will allow them the freedom and opportunity necessary to bring the motion picture to a still higher level of wholesome entertainment for all the people.

GENERAL PRINCIPLES

1. No picture shall be produced which will lower the moral standards of those who see it. Hence the sympathy of the audience shall never be thrown to the side of crime, wrongdoing, evil or sin.

2. Correct standards of life, subject only to the requirements of drama and entertainment, shall be presented.

3. Law, natural or human, shall not be ridiculed, nor shall sympathy be created for its violation.

PARTICULAR APPLICATIONS

I. CRIMES AGAINST THE LAW

These shall never be presented in such a way as to throw sympathy with the crime as against law and justice or to inspire others with a desire for imitation.

1. Murder.
   a. The technique of murder must be presented in a way that will not inspire imitation.
   b. Brutal killings are not to be presented in detail.
   c. Revenge in modern times shall not be justified.
2. Methods of Crime should not be explicitly presented.
   a. Theft, robbery, safe-cracking, and dynamiting of trains, mines, buildings, etc., should not be detailed in method.
   b. Arson must be subject to the same safeguards.
   c. The use of firearms should be restricted to essentials.
   d. Methods of smuggling should not be presented.
3. Illegal Drug Traffic must never be presented.
4. The use of liquor in American life, when not required by the plot or for proper characterization, will not be shown.

II. SEX

The sanctity of the institution of marriage and the home shall be upheld. Pictures shall not infer that low forms of sex relationship are the accepted or common thing.

1. Adultery, sometimes necessary plot material, must not be explicitly treated, or justified, or presented attractively.
2. Scenes of Passion.
   a. They should not be introduced when not essential to the plot.
   b. Excessive and lustful kissing, lustful embraces, suggestive postures and gestures, are not to be shown.
   c. In general, passion should so be treated that these scenes do not stimulate the lower and baser element.
3. Seduction or Rape.
   a. They should never be more than suggested, and only when essential for the plot, and even then never shown by explicit method.
   b. They are never the proper subject for comedy.
4. Sex perversion or any inference to it is forbidden.
5. White slavery shall not be treated.
6. Miscegenation (sex relationship between the white and black races) is forbidden.
7. Sex hygiene and venereal diseases are not subjects for motion pictures.
8. Scenes of actual child birth, in fact or in silhouette, are never to be presented.
9. Children's sex organs are never to be exposed.

III. VULGARITY

The treatment of low, disgusting, unpleasant, though not necessarily evil, subjects should be subject always to the dictate of good taste and a regard for the sensibilities of the audience.

IV. OBSCENITY

Obscenity in word, gesture, reference, song, joke, or by suggestion (even when likely to be understood only by part of the audience) is forbidden.

V. PROFANITY

Pointed profanity (this includes the words, God, Lord, Jesus, Christ—unless used reverently—Hell, S.O.B., damn, Gawd), or every other profane or vulgar expression however used, is forbidden.

VI. COSTUME

1. Complete nudity is never permitted. This includes nudity in fact or in silhouette, or any lecherous or licentious notice thereof by other characters in the picture.
2. Undressing scenes should be avoided and never used save where essential to the plot.
3. Indecent or undue exposure is forbidden.
4. Dancing costumes intended to permit undue exposure or indecent movements in the dance are forbidden.

VII. DANCES

1. Dances suggesting or representing sexual actions or indecent passion are forbidden.
2. Dances which emphasize indecent movements are to be regarded as obscene.

VIII. RELIGION

1. No film or episode may throw ridicule on any religious faith.
2. Ministers of Religion in their character as ministers of religion should not be used as comic characters or as villains.
3. Ceremonies of any definite religion should be carefully and respectfully handled.

IX. LOCATIONS

The treatment of bedrooms must be governed by good taste and delicacy.

X. NATIONAL FEELINGS

1. The use of the flag shall be consistently respectful.

2. The history, institutions, prominent people and citizenry of other nations shall be represented fairly.

XI. TITLES

Salacious, indecent, or obscene titles shall not be used.

XII. REPELLENT SUBJECTS

The following subjects must be treated within the careful limits of good taste:

1. Actual hangings or electrocutions as legal punishments for crime.
2. Third degree methods.
3. Brutality and possible gruesomeness.
4. Branding of people or animals.
5. Apparent cruelty to children or animals.
6. The sale of women, or a woman selling her virtue.
7. Surgical operations.

RESOLUTION FOR UNIFORM INTERPRETATION

(Adopted June 13, 1934)

1. When requested by production managers, the Motion Picture Producers & Distributors of America, Incorporated, shall secure any facts, information or suggestions concerning the probable reception of stories or the manner in which in its opinion they may best be treated.

2. That each production manager shall submit in confidence a copy of each or any script to the Production Code Administration of the Motion Picture Producers & Distributors of America, Incorporated (and of the Association of Motion Picture Producers, Inc., California). Such Production Code Administration will give the production manager for his guidance such confidential advice and suggestions as experience, research, and information indicate, designating wherein in its judgment the script departs from the provisions of the Code, or wherein from experience or knowledge it is believed that exception will be taken to the story or treatment.

3. Each production manager of a company belonging to the Motion Picture Producers & Distributors of America, Incorporated, and any producer proposing to distribute and/or distributing his picture through the facilities of any member of the Motion Picture Producers & Distributors of America, Incorporated, shall submit to such Production Code Administration every picture he produces before the negative goes to the laboratory for printing. Said Production Code Administration, having seen the picture, shall inform the production manager in writing whether in its opinion the picture conforms or does not conform to the Code, stating specifically wherein either by theme, treatment or incident, the picture violates the provisions of the Code. In such latter event, the picture shall not be released until the changes indicated by the Production Code Administration have been made; provided, however, that the production manager may appeal from such opinion of said Production Code Administration, so indicated in writing, to the Board of Directors of the Motion Picture Producers & Distributors of America, Incorporated, whose finding shall be final, and such production manager and company shall be governed accordingly.

NATIONAL BOARD OF REVIEW

ACTIVITIES in 1936

THE National Board of Review of Motion Pictures is a group of men and women of all ages, representing a wide variety of professions and callings, who serve without remuneration as a body whose aim is to express the reactions of the intelligent public to motion pictures, and to spread appreciation of the best that the motion picture produces both as entertainment and as a cultural and educational force. It was organized in 1909 by the People's Institute of New York City. It reviews films and distributes information about them to individuals and affiliated citizen groups in various parts of the country who do local work in conducting a constructive program of community cooperation in the advancement and uses of the motion picture. The National Board of Review is opposed to all forms of censorship, and believes firmly in selection and classification —a plan it was the first to evolve—as the most effective and constructive method of creating a public appreciation and demand for good films. The National Board of Review activity is carried on through various committees:

General Committee

The General Committee is the group developed out of the original group organized in 1909. Matters of general policy may be referred to it and it acts regularly in an advisory capacity. A few new members are added to this Committee each year.

Executive Committee

The Executive Committee is composed of members of the General Committee and is charged with the formation of policies, election of members, expenditure of funds and supervision of all administrative affairs.

The Chairman of the National Board of Review is elected from among the membership of the Executive Committee, and ratified by the General Committee. The present Chairman is Dr. George W. Kirchwey, Director of the Department of Criminology, New York School of Social Work, former Dean of the Law School of Columbia University and former Warden of Sing Sing Prison.

Two new members well known in New York City public life, Langdon Post and Joseph M. Price were added to this Committee during the year. Mr. Post is Tenement House Commissioner of New York City, Chairman of the New York City Housing Authority, and a member of the Board of Directors of the National Association of Housing Officials. Mr. Price is Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the City Club of New York and was Chairman of the Independent Fusion Committee which took part in the nomination and election of Mayor LaGuardia. Two former Executive Committee members are continuing their membership on other committees, Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, on the General Committee and Frederic C. Howe on the National Advisory Committee. The personnel of the entire Executive Committee is listed elsewhere in this book.

Membership Committee

The Membership Committee is the supervising group of the Review Committee personnel. It meets regularly to act upon applications and qualifications of prospective members, continues or terminates the service terms of regular members, and makes recommendations to the Executive Committee for the election of new review members.

Review Committee

The review work is conducted in New York City and performed by trained review groups of men and women, who combine to constitute the membership of the Review Committee, numbering over 300 persons and representing a great variety of professions, activities and interests. Through this Committee personnel, in its work of film review, selection, classification and recommendation, a constant endeavor is made to reflect the intelligent public opinion of the country. These members, like all other members of the National Board of Review, serve entirely without pay. The decisions of the committees regarding pictures under review rest upon a majority ballot.

A number of members, following the usual probationary period of study, have been added to this Committee during 1936. Outstanding in the new membership is a large representation from the Schools Motion Picture Committee. Through a number of the members qualifying as Review Committee members the Schools Committee is enabled to cover all forthcoming films and select those which they believe suitable for their recommended Young People's Week End programs.

Committee on Exceptional Photoplays

This Committee, composed of critics and students of the art of the motion picture, is particularly interested in whatever esthetic values can be found in films, as distinguished from mere popular entertainment. It looks at all the better films and publishes criticisms of those thought worthy of discussion. It selects, annually, the ten films considered to be artistically the best of the year, and through the agency of Little Theatres and Motion Picture Councils and Forums seeks to encourage the showing of films that will create a more general appreciation of the motion picture as an important medium of artistic expression. Their selection of the ten best films for 1936 appears in another section of this publication. This is a rotating Committee and new members are added each year.

The Young Reviewers and the 4-Star Clubs

Six years ago the National Board organized a group of boys and girls ranging in age from 8 to 17 years, to review and discuss motion pictures and thus to learn from them directly what the young people themselves think about this art form. The opinions of the Young Reviewers, as this group is called, have been of great educational value in making larger and larger numbers of young people critically conscious of what they see in motion pictures and creating a larger future discerning audience, as well as being an invaluable check for adults to apply to their own ideas of juvenile reactions.

From the Young Reviewers has evolved a more recent motion picture project concerned with boys and girls, known as the 4-Star Clubs. These motion picture clubs are functioning in various parts of the country and the number is constantly growing. Their program of activities is divided into four parts—appreciation, projection, production and community activities. An increasingly large number of these young people's groups are becoming more and more interested in the production of films—newsreels of school activities, community activities, "plot" pictures, etc.

These two youth organizations of the National Board have their own monthly bulletin known as the 4-STAR FINAL which contains news of the various clubs' activities, reviews of current films, general articles on the motion picture, suggested contests and club projects.

National Advisory Committee

Early in 1915 when the Board had passed through its experimental stages and had become established as a nation-wide influence in regard to the motion picture with resultant connections throughout the entire country, there was proposed a committee national in scope and personnel to be known as the National Advisory Committee. The committee formed was an enlargement of the already existing local Advisory Committee. The personnel has changed from time to time in the period of twenty years but it has remained country-wide in representation and opinion and at present numbers fifty-nine members from forty cities.

National Motion Picture Council

The Community Organization Department

The Community or field work of the National Board of Review is conducted under a National Council. This department of the National Board of Review has had, since its organization in 1916, several designations in line with its ever changing and developing program. It was first known as the Committee on Children's Pictures and Programs, having its beginning in the classification and listing of films for youth. As this program of selection grew to cover the need of selective information for the adult as well, the name National Committee for Better Films was assumed. Outgrowing a Committee activity, it became the Better Films National Council, and in 1935, the more descriptive name of National Motion Picture Council was adopted. The designation Better Films was properly descriptive in 1916 but the intervening score of years has brought about a marked improvement in films and a resulting change in approach and attitude toward them. It is the belief of the Board that the present work of a community organization is to unite effectively in a constructive program for the support, study and use both recreationally and educationally of the finer motion pictures now available. Thus the change to the present National Motion Picture Council was made, through the action of the Executive Committee in consultation with the advisory group of the Council. The Council program is carried out through affiliated memberships, both group and individual, service contact groups and correspondents throughout the country. The National Council assists in the organization and program of work of the local groups.

The local Councils follow the plan initiated by the National Board of Review in 1916 of having a membership composed of representatives from many organizations, cultural, educational, recreational, religious and civic, so that they typify the original movement for organized community participation in the best use of the motion picture and the support of the best pictures in the community. They provide a means of unifying and making articulate the wishes of the discriminating public in regard to the motion picture, and offer a coherent and commonly formulated plan which avoids duplication of effort and most effectively integrates the varied and various community interests. A cooperative, constructive program in this way takes the place of destructive or negative criticism.

The objectives of such organizations are:

To demonstrate through the education of public opinion, the effectiveness of selection and classification, instead of censorship, as a means of forwarding the development of the motion picture and its best uses.

To encourage through open meetings, forums, classes and other means, the study of the motion picture as a medium of entertainment, education and artistic expression.

To concentrate the attention of the public on specific worth while films through the publication of a Photoplay Guide to the Selected Pictures being currently shown at local theaters.

To arrange family Friday night or week-end programs of selected films, and junior matinees of pictures particularly suited to the tastes of children, through cooperation with local exhibitors.

To endorse and further the use of visual education through motion pictures in the schools.

To arrange and promote occasional exhibitions of exceptional and cultural films that would not ordinarily be shown in the commercial theaters.

Through its publications, the National Board of Review makes available advance information on the selected pictures and their classifications and on the exceptional pictures to these groups so they can be prepared to organize community support for such pictures.

Although the Community Motion Picture organization is now a long and well established program in theory and in practice, it is still new to many communities and to aid those communities just now beginning such activities the Board prepared this year a series of "briefs" on community organization and program procedure. Six papers are included as follows: "A Plan and a Program for Community Motion Picture Councils," "Constitution and By-law Forms for Community Motion Picture Councils," "Objectives of Community Motion Picture Councils," "Organizations represented on Community Motion Picture Councils," "Committees or Chairmen Conducting Motion Picture Council Activity," "How to Plan Motion Picture Council Meetings," "How to Prepare a Photoplay Guide and Suggestions for a Council Publication," "Suggested Special Activities for Community Motion Picture Councils."

The Board and the Council have sent, in answer to invitation, speakers from the various Committees and the staff personnel to many communities, particularly those not far from New York City, to aid in the formation and development of community organizations and to present various phases of motion picture interest and activity on club, school and other organization programs.

Two members were added to the Council Advisory group during 1936, Mrs. Alonzo Klaw, President of Schools Motion Picture Committee of New York City and Miss Kathleen Crowley, Juvenile Probation Officer of Waterbury, Connecticut, and Director of the Girls' Club of that city.

Publications

"The National Board of Review Magazine," a periodical containing articles of general interest on motion pictures and motion picture activity and reviews of exceptional and selected features and short subjects, is published monthly, except July and August. Because of the pronounced interest of organizations of many kinds in the study of the motion picture, its history and development and the appreciation of the motion picture as a form of art and entertainment, the Magazine is currently carrying a series of articles designed for special group study. "The Weekly Guide To Selected Pictures," giving the most up-to-date information on the pictures selected by the Review Committee, and the "Weekly Official Bulletin" are compiled regularly throughout the year. An Annual Selected Pictures Catalog and an Annual List of Selected Book-Films is prepared. Special lists such as "Selected Films for Boys and Girls," "Books on the Motion Picture," "Musical Films," "Exceptional Photoplays," "Educational Films," and "Foreign Films" are compiled each year from time to time. A listing of the Board's material on community motion picture organization activity is given under the National Motion Picture Council heading.

Two pamphlets descriptive of the Board's organization and functioning are available, entitled: The National Board of Review: Its Background, Growth and Present Status, The National Board of Review: How It Works.

University Study Course on the Motion Picture

The School of Education of New York University, repeated with the opening of the school year 1935-36, the first general course on motion pictures to be part of the accredited work of a university. The course given for the first time in 1934-35 under the joint auspices of the University and the National Board of Review had proven so successful and needful that it was, as a matter of course, continued. Many prominent speakers gave of their time and interest to make the course one both comprehensive and authoritative. The second year having brought a response exceeding that of the initial year the course was again resumed in September 1936 with further subjects added. The National Board of Review Magazine is used as text material for the students.

Universities, Schools and Libraries

The National Board of Review has noted a marked increase in interest in motion pictures and motion picture activities on the part of universities, schools and libraries during 1936. Universities and schools have introduced courses in the motion picture in connection with their English, Dramatic, Journalism, and Modern Language classes, making cinema study a regular part of the curriculum. Much help has been given by the Board in suggesting subjects, publications and films for such study. Plans are under way for introducing a parent-teacher course in the study of the motion picture in a large high school in the Metropolitan area as an initial step in extending such courses.

Libraries have prepared exhibits, special book collections, and book-marks in connection with films adapted from books or having definite book tie-up value, in which the Board's publications and special book lists have been widely used.

Annual Conference

The National Board held its 21st Annual gathering in New York City, February 5th to 8th, 1936 at the Hotel Pennsylvania. The annual meeting began with a yearly luncheon twenty years ago and so great was the response and the demand for lengthier program and discussion periods that in 1925 a conference of 3 days duration was planned, terminating with the Annual Luncheon. Each year has brought a greater interest and the 1936 Conference was extended to four days. This Conference covered four aspects of the motion picture. First, the motion picture as entertainment simply; the general run of movies that go into the theaters for the pleasure of the public, to thrill, or amuse or move—these movies intended for nothing but recreation. Second, the motion picture as a cultural medium, approximating sometimes to the beauty and dignity of art in its form and using material that gives it importance as a commentary on life and the social relations of mankind. Third, as an educational tool, deliberately used for purpose of instruction. Fourth, and probably most important because it covers all the other three, in its relation of youth; how do the movies and the children who see them interact upon each other?

The Conference opened with a review session where members and delegates viewed the Warner film "The Story of Louis Pasteur." A symposium of motion picture reviewers on different angles of film criticism, was the first session program. There were two discussion sessions on "Community Activity in Helping to Develop the Motion Picture." One evening session was given in connection with the National Board's motion picture course at New York University, School of Education, with Prof. Robert A. Kissak, Jr., Director of Visual Education, University of Minnesota, talking on "The Motion Picture's Challenge to Higher Education."

"The Cultural and Teaching Application of the Motion Picture: Progress and Possibilities," was the topic of the second day's Conference with the following subjects and speakers: "Problems of Developing Visual Education in a School System" by Dr. Claude Hardy, Superintendent of Schools, White Plains, N. Y.; "Teaching Visual Education" by Dr. Fannie W. Dunn, Prof. of Education, Teachers College, Columbia University; "Motion Pictures in Medical Education" by Dr. J. F. Montague, Editor, Health Digest, formerly of Bellevue Hospital; "Intergration of Motion Pictures with Visual Aids" by Mrs. Grace Fisher Ramsey, Curator of Visual Education, American Museum of Natural History; "Permanent Film Libraries—Present Development and Possibilities" by Mr. John E. Abbott, Vice-President and General Manager, Film Library, Museum of Modern Art; "Photoplay and Literary Art" by Dr. Walter S. Barnes, Prof. of Education, New York University; "Educational Audio Film Production" by Dr. F. V. Arnspiger, Director of Research, Erpi Picture Consultants, Inc.; "Relating Community Activities with University Interests in Motion Picture" by Prof. Sawyer Falk, Director, Dramatic Activities, University of Syracuse. "The Problem of the Censors," was presented at an evening picture session by Arthur Garfield Hays.

The Young Reviewers and 4-Star Clubs, the youth groups of the Board, described elsewhere in this article, took charge of two sessions of the Conference, an evening review and discussion session, where the 20th Century-Fox picture "Every Saturday Night" was shown, and the Saturday morning session, which was a symposium of young people on motion pictures, covering speeches, papers, reports, etc., given by the various 4-Star Club representatives.

The Annual Luncheon bringing to a climax the Conference offered a program presenting screen celebrities and noted persons in other activities interested in the motion picture. They were: Harry M. Warner, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Edward G. Robinson, John Beal, Blanche Yurka, Harriet Hilliard, Ernest Truex, Tillie Losch, William Bakewell, Virginia Reid, Ben Lucien Burman, Harry Hirschfield, W. G. Van Schmus, Director of Radio City Music Hall, Ed Kuykendall, President of the Motion Picture Theater Owners of America, Langdon Post, New York City Tenement House Commissioner, former member New York Assembly, at one time motion picture critic, New York Evening World, and Dr. Raymond L. Ditmars, Curator of Mammals and Reptiles, New York Zoological Park, producer of films "Living Natural History."

Resolutions

Resolutions growing out of the Conference and expressing the policy and philosophy of the Board's residence and field members were passed as follows:

I. Be it resolved that the aims and program of activity of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures be given the hearty endorsement of this Conference.

II. Believing that a public increasingly educated in the appreciation and support of the better type of films is the surest guarantee of higher standards of picture production, we urge the further development of local Film Councils, drawing upon all cultural and social forces, as the most effective agency for disseminating reliable advance information about films and encouraging patronage of those most worth while.

III. We endorse the program designed to give children and young people the opportunity of participating in the selection and evaluation of motion pictures.

IV. We urge all possible efforts to educate the public in the value of motion pictures and allied visual aids in education and to increase the practical use of these visual aids through instruction of public opinion, to support the instructional film by such methods as demonstations, courses in visual instruction and in motion picture appreciation.

V. We endorse the consistent refusal of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures to accept any form of censorship of the motion picture, direct or indirect or any form of film control but that of free selection as exercised by the individual, and we oppose any extension of legal censorship powers already existing which might be applied to the selection or classification of motion pictures either for children or adults.

SOCIETY of MOTION PICTURE ENGINEERS

ACTIVITIES IN 1936

By S. K. WOLF
PRESIDENT

TIME was when any individual, small group of persons, or small company could start upon any course of development or research, and in many instances arrive somewhere in the work; but that was when the work dealt with fundamentals, when the foundations of modern science and engineering, as we know them, were being laid, and there was little or no background upon which to work.

The years have seen marvelous changes in the situation; the foundations have been laid in most of the branches of science and engineering, and the work today has expanded into the vast upper reaches of an edifice whose foundations may often and easily be lost sight of without serious detriment to those working above. But what is being done above depends upon what has been done before, and to attack problems in science and engineering intelligently requires at every moment a knowledge of, and the proper perspective of all that went before.

So much has been done in the past that if each researcher or experimenter were to proceed upon his own, only in rare instances could he hope to achieve or discover something that someone else had not achieved or discovered before him. That is the situation today, as a result of the vastness of science and engineering—that it is absurd, uneconomical, and unfruitful to attempt to proceed in one's work without a good knowledge of what others have done in the same field; and for that reason, if for no other, the enormous value of technical coordinating agencies can be immediately recognized.

If an engineer working in a studio, or laboratory, or factory were to know nothing of what all his brother-engineers in the field were doing or have done, the progress that he would be able to make would be very small or slow, there would be endless duplication, and frightful waste of effort, time, and money. Sometimes in various industries and branches of art and science numbers of such organizations exist. Sometimes those organizations regard themselves as competitors, and fight each other tooth and nail; but fundamentally they are all working in the same cause; one incites the other to action; another sets example for the others to follow; still others, through competition, arouse the others to greater efforts; and so on. And though some of the organizations may make mistakes at times, they and the others in the field eventually profit by those mistakes, and so the art progresses.

Such thoughts lie at the basis of the activities of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers, established, as is well-known, far back in 1916. The Society has grown and grown, until at the present time it is international, in fact, its membership extending to all countries of Europe, to India, Japan, China, several of the South American countries, Australia, Canada, New Zealand, and others. During the past few years, particularly since the entrance of the SMPE into international standardization, through its membership with the American Standards Association and the International Standards Association, the international force of such wide coordination and collaboration have resulted in great commercial, economic, and social advantages, not only for our own country, but for other countries in the world as well.

Last July at a meeting of the International Standards Association at Budapest, which meeting was attended by the writer, representing the American Standards Association, and by representatives of similar organizations of nineteen other countries of the world, unanimous agreement was achieved in arriving at an international standard for 16-mm. sound-film and equipment. Prior to that time various countries of the world had been going their own ways in designing 16-mm. sound equipment, and although it may be admitted that more than one design may often be possible in order to accomplish a given objective, yet such a variety of designs would not provide as great benefits as would one universal design which would permit equipment of various countries to be interchangeable, and in this case to permit films produced in any country to be used to the best advantage in machines developed in any other country.

The influence of the decision reached at Budapest extends into many branches of life, influencing not only the commercial motion picture fields of producing films or manufacturing equipment, but also the fields of education, sales and other propaganda, etc., and ultimately the mass of the populace who learn from, or are entertained by, the pictures projected from such films and by such equipment upon the screens of the country.

Much of the credit for this achievement extends back to the administration of Dr. Alfred N. Goldsmith, President of the Society for three years, who was instrumental in establishing the Sectional Committee on Motion Pictures under the American Standards Association, and to the administration of Homer G. Tasker, during whose two years as President of the Society the international activities have made marked progress. Credit must also be given to the various companies, technical organizations, and individuals who have contributed splendidly to the work, and to George Friedl, Jr., who represented the American Standards Committee at the international conferences held at Paris and Berlin in 1935.

All these activities bespeak great development of the principle of coordination, not only within the borders of our own nation but throughout the entire world. Another evidence of this growth is the growth of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers even as regards its membership, which now has reached a high peak for all time, and is steadily growing at the rate of several hundred members a year. Another evidence of the fact that the entire world is "getting together" on motion picture problems is found in the wide distribution of the SMPE Standard Visual and Sound Test-Reels, which were developed by the Projection Practice Committee of the Society three years ago. During the intervening time hundreds of reels had been sold, the distribution being, roughly about equally divided between America and Europe. Interest lies not so much in the fact that all those who are purchasing the reels are striving to improve their equipment, technique, processes, and results, as it is that they are all trying to do so according to the same "yardstick," the same basis of measurement and comparison, the same criterion, or datum. By virtue of the international distribution of the test-reels to all the important film, equipment, and producing companies of the world, all tests made with the reels agree with one another. Conformity of results is achieved and a criterion for judging quality and performance of equipment is available, which is as of great importance in establishing the quality of sound motion pictures as is the platinum-iridium bar reposing in a vault at Washington in establishing the length of the meter.

An important step has been taken by the Sound Committee of the SMPE in establishing a special Primary Frequency Standard, as a basis according to which the large recording laboratories of the country may be able to recognize differences occurring in the quality of their recordings, from one studio to another, thus leading to prompt discovery and correction of the underlying causes of such variations and nonuniformity.

The Projection Practice Committee of the Society is engaged in further attempts at coordination, laying the groundwork for the development of a projection code for theaters, which, it is hoped, may ultimately be adopted by all the States of the country, if not entirely, at least in respect to its salient features. State regulation of projection and projection rooms has in the past been a very haphazard, contradictory, and in many instances very arbitrary procedure. The laws of the States conflict among themselves, and even with municipalities within the States. Such a difficulty requires correction, and little argument is necessary to establish the great importance of the work upon which the Projection Practice Committee has embarked.

Supplementing the work of coordination already described, the work of the Projection Screen Brightness Committee is directed toward establishing reference bases of brightness for the picture projected in the theaters of the country, just as the Sound Committee has established its basis of judging the recording and reproduction of sound.

Other Committees of the Society are proceeding in similar directions, and all taken together illustrate clearly the transition of the state of the motion picture industry described at the beginning of this article from sporadic, haphazard, and widely separated, independent efforts, to a vast network of coordination and collaboration, the focus of which lies in such organizations as the SMPE.

Although the depression had its effect upon the SMPE, just as upon all other organizations and companies, the Society was able to continue with its work. For a time retrenchment was necessary, and a diminution occurred in the membership despite the fact that dues were lowered and an additional grade of membership established that would place membership in the Society within the reach of everyone. Fortunately, however, the Society was able to weather the storm very successfully, hardly without furling its sails to any extent, and at the present time the future looks bright and promising. There are some corners of the industry to which the Society has not yet penetrated; not because the Society has not tried, but because those in those branches of the industry do not appear to be very receptive to technical assistance and guidance. It is a most remarkable fact that although the keystone of the motion picture industry lies in the box-office of the theater, the managers of the theaters seem to disregard utterly any engineering technicalities connected with the performances given to the patrons who pay their mites at the box-office. Why that should be, is not very well understood. The exhibitor should know what he is selling.

A great effort is being made, and will continue to be made, to induce theater managers and exhibitors to learn some of the simple facts relating to the picture they are placing upon the screen and the sound that is being reproduced, so that they will understand some of the problems facing the projectionist and be sympathetic toward him and assist him in the difficulties he often encounters in giving to the patrons, for the exhibitor or manager himself, what the manager or exhibitor is trying to sell to the patron. Therefore, managers are urged to get in touch with the Society, to apply for membership in the Society, and to take advantage of everything that the Society has to offer them. There are no restrictions as to membership, and the three grades available—Fellow, Active, and Associate—are available for all grades of experience and accomplishments in motion picture work.

The Semi-Annual Conventions of the Society, this year held at Chicago in the Spring, and Rochester in the Fall, have been further evidence of the Society's increased vigor and growth. The Rochester Convention, particularly, aroused considerable interest, and attracted probably the greatest attendance of all the Conventions in recent years, except perhaps the last Convention at Hollywood in 1935. Next Spring Hollywood will again be the Convention city, and in the Fall of 1937 the Convention will return to New York for the first time in three years.

The monthly technical sessions of the three regional Sections of the SMPE, with headquarters at New York, Chicago, and Hollywood, are continuing to attract considerable interest and very good attendance. The papers presented at the Conventions and Local Section meetings deal with the full range of motion picture engineering problems, including lighting, photography, color, sound recording and reproduction, production, exchange and laboratory methods, and many other subjects.

Started in 1916 as a small pamphlet issued only a few times a year, the publication of the Society has grown until it now embodies several thousand pages a year, published monthly. The Journal is the outstanding technical publication of the motion picture industry, and though during 1934 it was somewhat handicapped by financal limitations resulting from the depression, it has been able to continue its excellent work, and is now growing again quite rapidly, presenting articles by the prominent engineers and researchers of the industry as well as the reports of the Society's technical Committees, alluded to above.

Several years ago the Society established two awards: one known as the Progress Award, which consists of a medal to be presented to an individual, selected by the Board of Governors, who has contributed to the advancement of the motion picture art in a marked degree, and the other the Journal Award, to be presented to the author or authors of the most outstanding paper published in the Journal of the Society during the current year.

At the Fall, 1936, Convention at Rochester, the Progress Medal was awarded to Dr. C. E. Kenneth Mees, Director of the Research Laboratories of the Eastman Kodak Company, and the Journal Award was granted to Mr. E. W. Kellogg, of RCA Manufacturing Company, for his paper entitled, "A Comparison of Variable-Density and Variable-Width Systems."

The headquarters of the Society are located at the Hotel Pennsylvania, New York, N. Y., with which everyone who is interested in the work of the Society or in becoming a member, or obtaining technical information from any technical branch of the industry, is invited to communicate.

M.P.T.O.A. in 1936

By ED KUYKENDAHL
PRESIDENT

THE long, patient and determined efforts of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners of America to secure for all exhibitors reasonable modifications of unfair sales policies and the establishment of practical organized and readily available machinery to prevent abuses and injustices in trade relations achieved results in 1936 that will be of genuine benefit to all theatre owners during the present year.

The collapse of the NRA Code in 1935 made it apparent that the industry was entirely without any effective or practical means of self regulation in trade practice matters. MPTOA conducted a comprehensive survey of the situation, consulting with exhibitors throughout the country for advice and counsel and suggestions, carefully considering the obstacles, both practical and legal, that must be overcome or avoided, and sought to formulate a program that would produce practical benefits and be possible of accomplishment under present circumstances.

At the annual meeting of the MPTOA Board of Directors at the Miami-Biltmore Hotel, on March 5th and 6th, 1936, these suggestions and problems were thoroughly discussed and analyzed and a definite written program was formulated. The MPTOA Executive Committee was authorized and instructed to enter into negotiations with the distributors to make effective this plan.

The general sales manager of each of the distributing companies was invited to meet with the MPTOA Executive Committee at the Cinema Club in New York City on April 16, 1936, at which meeting the written program was presented and explained to them. There followed long negotiations with the sales executives of each of the distributing companies separately, which ultimately resulted in each company publicly announcing the acceptance of most of our proposals, with an immediate modification of sales policies to make them effective.

The MPTOA proposals included:

(1) a minimum unconditional rejection privilege in all contracts for ten or more feature pictures;

(2) establishment of local boards of conciliation for the hearing, investigation and mediation of a wide variety of local complaints and grievances;

(3) a plan to restrain unreasonable clearance;

(4) a plan to restrain overbuying of pictures to deprive a competitor of needed attractions;

(5) a plan to restrain unfair cut-rate competition between theatres;

(6) to prevent unfair non-theatrical competition;

(7) to introduce a short form of exhibition contract, with the intention of ultimately developing a simplified contract;

(8) to abolish the unjustifiable separate score charge;

(9) to prevent the designation of unsuitable pictures for Saturday and Sunday exhibition,

(10) to prevent the forcing of excess short subjects with feature sales.

The meeting of the Board of Directors in Miami was unique in that a full attendance of representative theatre owners gave two full days to a strictly business meeting devoted to intensive discussions of such major matters as organization plans and policies of MPTOA; legislation and taxes, including the block booking legislation then pending before Congress; labor relations and the ultimate effect of the Wagner Connery Act; the music tax and the ASCAP combine; Unfair trade practices and formulating a definite program to remove abuses; improved theatre operation and management, ways and means of increasing theatre attendance; screen participation in the coming political campaign, and others.

The position taken by the MPTOA in opposition to the Neely-Pettengill Bills was unanimously approved by the Board of Directors and the President presented a comprehensive statement of their position to Congress, which contained the only analysis of the practical effect of this legislation on theatre operation that was presented. The MPTOA opposed the Neely-Pettengill Bills as a dangerous piece of legislation, deceptive and misleading in the way it was drawn and promoted, that will do irreparable damage to the small independent exhibitor if enacted because; it will not prevent nor abolish block booking and will actually accomplish none of the purposes it seeks; it will deprive the independent exhibitor in competing situations of the few outstanding successful pictures he now secures; it artificially increases the price he has to pay for the rest; it will have no effect whatever on the maintaining of right moral standards in motion picture entertainment which are fixed and recorded in the film before they enter distribution; it will insure the production of uniformly mediocre films at the studios by tying their hands with rigid advance specifications of what they are going to create and it will enormously increase expensive and unnecessary litigation in our business.

Determined opposition of MPTOA leaders persuaded ASCAP to modify exorbitant demands for an increase in the music tax on motion picture theatres. Organized support was given by MPTOA to legislation in Congress to revise the copyright laws in such a way as to curb this arbitrary extortion.

More and better motion pictures have been produced and released during 1936 which together with improved business conditions have brought about a gratifying improvement in theatre attendance. There is every indication that the improvement will continue through the coming year.

I am deeply grateful to my executive committee and board of directors as well as many other fine men and women within and without MPTOA who have demonstrated their confidence in myself and the purposes of MPTOA by their wholehearted advice and help. Without them no progress could be accomplished.

U. S. GOVERNMENT PRODUCTION ACTIVITIES

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

A small but well-equipped motion picture studio, laboratory and office is maintained by the Department of Agriculture. It is unique inasmuch as it is the only institution of its kind exclusively devoted to the production and distribution of educational pictures of inspection in agriculture, forestry, rural engineering and home economics.

Films produced illustrate how to raise and care for cattle, horses, swine, sheep, poultry and birds; how to produce crops of all kinds, combat destructive insects and disease; cope with engineering problems on the farm; build roads; how to care for the home and health of the family. Additionally the pictures inform as to Federal regulations concerning animals, forests, crops, insects, rural organizations and marketing. Through these films the Department conveys to the public in general and to rural dwellers in particular the latest developments and discoveries emanating from its scientific investigations.

The department's film library numbers nearly 300 subjects. Distribution by the Department is supplemented by the distribution given prints made from the Department's negatives and purchased by state agricultural colleges, departments of visual instruction, foreign governments, and state and national organizations, approximately 500,000 feet being purchased annually.

The majority of films distributed by the Department are available on both 35 and 16 mm. slow-burning stock.

Sound on film pictures are produced by the Department in its own studio. These are available on both 35 and 16 mm. film.

Films produced by the Department are designed to aid in the work of extension and field workers and cooperating state institutions. Their primary use is by or under the supervision of such workers. However, loans are made to farmers' organizations, schools, colleges, churches, theaters and other agencies or persons whenever copies of the desired pictures are available. There are no rental charges; borrowers are required to pay outgoing and return transportation charges.

Department motion pictures are distributed in the States of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana and Wyoming by the Extension Service, State Agricultural College, Corvallis, Oregon; in the States of California, Nevada, Utah and Arizona, by the Extension Division, University of California, Berkeley, Calif. Applications for films from these states should be addressed to the distributor serving them. Applications from other states should be addressed to the Division of Motion Pictures, Extension Service, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE

Bureau of Air Commerce

The Bureau of Air Commerce has only one film at the present time, "Safety on the Federal Skyways," five-reel 16 mm. silent film. Address Department of Commerce, Bureau of Air Commerce, Washington, D. C.

Motion Picture Section

The Motion Picture Section is an informational unit only and has for distribution one film, "Commerce Around the Coffee Cup," in 16 or 35 mm. sound. Data as to sources of films on various subjects or statistical information concerning the motion picture industry throughout the world, may be secured from this section. Address Motion Picture Section, Specialties-Motion Picture Division, Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Washington, D. C.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

U. S. Bureau of Mines; Bureau of Reclamation; Indian Bureau; National Park Service

Work of the Department of the Interior is depicted through motion pictures which are available for exhibition through the Office of the Secretary, Washington, D. C. Prints are loaned at no cost except transportation to and from Washington, D. C., except the Bureau of Mines, whose films are in Pittsburgh, Pa.

The motion picture films of the U. S. Bureau of Mines, covering 55 subjects pertaining to the mineral and allied industries, are widely used. These pictures visualize the Nation's great mineral industries. They tell the stories of petroleum, silver, iron, copper, lead, abrasives, sulphur, asbestos and many other mineral substances.

Bureau of Mines films are produced and circulated under the direction of John A. Davis, chief engineer, information division, U. S. Bureau of Mines, Washington, D. C. Cost of production is paid by cooperating industrial concerns, but the pictures are free from trademarks, trade names, or other direct advertising material. The Bureau's main distributing station is at 4800 Forbes St., Pittsburgh, Pa. Films may also be obtained from the American Museum of Natural History, Department of Public Education, New York, N. Y.

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
Women's Bureau

Functioning under the U. S. Department of Labor, the Women's Bureau engages in production and is now distributing three pictures on problems and conditions pertaining to women workers. Address Women's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor, Washington, D. C.

FEDERAL HOUSING ADMINISTRATION

The Federal Housing Administration is releasing nine subjects in a series of "Better Housing News Flashes." Each subject is 600 feet in length and on 35 mm. film. The pictures deal with opportunities for home buying or modernization of homes or places of business. Address Federal Housing Administration, Washington, D. C.

RESETTLEMENT ADMINISTRATION

The Resettlement Administration has completed a three-reel documentary musical film, "The Plow That Broke the Plains," and has under preparation another production which will be released in the spring of 1937. The second production dramatizing the Mississippi River has not yet been titled. The film is available in either 16 or 35 mm. sound prints. Address: Resettlement Administration, Division of Information, Washington, D. C.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT
Public Health Service

The Public Health Service has available a 12-reel motion picture "Science of Life," which was designed to aid in the introduction of sex education into the high school and college curricula. The film has been used extensively in high school biology classes and has also proven very popular with organizations such as parent-teacher associations, civic associations and women's clubs. It is printed on 35 mm. non-inflammable stock. Temporary loans of the picture can usually be arranged through the various State departments of health without cost, except payment of transporation charges.

TENNESSEE VALLEY AUTHORITY

The Tennessee Valley Authority has from time to time made engineering and progress motion pictures of the development. These center chiefly about the construction program and the conservation work. As a by-product, parts of these progress motion pictures have been assembled into subjects. Address Film Circulation Unit, Information Division, Tennessee Valley Authority, Knoxville, Tenn.

WAR DEPARTMENT

The Army Pictorial Service, an activity of the Office of the Chief Signal Officer of the Army, with offices in the Munitions Bldg., Washington, D. C., handles the production and distribution of all military instructional films, and all historical and general interest pictures of the Army except the post war pictures of aviation activities. The Signal Corps produced approximately 20 reels per year of instructional motion pictures on military subjects designed specifically for class use. A number of silent and sound training films on military subjects are available to the Regular Army, National Guard, Organized Reserves, Reserve Officers Training Corps, and other similar patriotic organizations interested specifically in military training. Lists of available training films of this classification will be supplied upon request to the Chief Signal Officer. Transportation costs on films shipped to other than regular army units are to be paid by the user. No other charge is made for the use of such material.

In addition to the production of training films, the Signal Corps produced a limited number of general interest pictures on the Army which are available for loan to recognized patriotic societies, schools, organizations, etc., upon payment of transportation costs.

The Signal Corps is the custodian of the historical motion pictures of the War Department, and has available for loan a number of subjects of the World War period. These historical subjects are available for loan to patriotic societies, schools, organizations, etc., upon payment of transportation costs. War Department policy does not permit the loan of any of these pictures for showing where an admission charge is made. Lists of all classifications are available upon application to the Chief Signal Officer of the War Department. Sound films are available only in the 35 mm. size, while a number of silent historical and general interest subjects are available also in the 16 mm. size. Because of the limited number of copies of films available, their use is restricted to organizations and groups.

WORKS PROGRESS ADMINISTRATION

The Works Progress Administration has available for free distribution the following motion pictures: "Work Pays America," two reels in 16 mm. only; "Rain for the Earth," two reels in either 16 or 35 mm.; "Hands," one reel in 16 or 35 mm. and "We Work Again," two reels in 16 or 35 mm. In addition, the WPA has produced a limited number of one-reel sound pictures summarizing its program in a specific State or major city. Although this localized approach is still in an experimental stage, a number of such reels are available in either 16 or 35 mm. All of the pictures except "Work Pays America" were produced for the WPA under contract by the Commercial Department of Pathe. Address: Works Progress Administration, Information Service, Washington, D. C.

CHRONOLOGICAL HISTORY OF THE MOTION PICTURE

By L. H. MITCHELL
FILM DAILY Staff

1824. Peter Mark Roget published his paper on the persistence of vision, suggested by seeing glimpses of a passing baker's cart through the slits of a Venetian blind—the theory of motion picture production later demonstrated to be a fact.

1835. Joseph Ferdinand Antoine Plateau of the University of Ghent invented a twirling disc device (the phenakistoscope) whereby a frieze of hand-drawn figures around the rim were seen as a single figure in apparent motion.

1853. Baron Franz von Uchatius, an Austrian officer, combined the disc device with the magic lantern and projected the pictures upon a screen. Plateau and Dr. Simon Ritter von Stampfer of Vienna subsequently perfected the invention of the zoetrope or "wheel of life."

1860. Coleman Sellers of Philadelphia made the first known endeavor to relate photography to the principle of the zoetrope. He mounted photographs of his sons at play on the blades of a paddle wheel, which, when revolved from a given point of view, produced a zoetropic effect. This machine was patented the following year as the kinematoscope.

1864. Louis Arthur Ducos du Hauron in France gave a complete anticipation of the motion picture in a patent application made on April 25.

1870. Henry Renno Heyl, Philadelphia engineer and inventor, applied the Sellers method of photographing to a projecting zoetropic device (applying photography to the invention of Baron Uchatis). This was first exhibited on Feb. 5. It was called the phasmatrope.

1872. Leland Stanford, of California, railway magnate and sportsman, in an attempt to study the gait of a horse, assigned the photographic problem to John D. Isaacs, an engineer on the staff of the Central Pacific Railway, who arranged a battery of cameras with electrical shutter controls, exposures of 1-2,000 of a second being made. The Isaacs apparatus was operated on Stanford's stock farm at Palo Alto by Eadweard Muybridge. The pictures they obtained were an analysis of motion.

1880 (circa). The French painter, Jean Louis Meissonier, heard of the Stanford pictures of a horse in motion and used them in support of his controversy with the French Academy over animal postures. He arranged for the showing of the pictures on a projecting zoetropic machine modeled after the device of Heyl, thus showing the first true motion picture.

1887. Thomas Edison cast about for a device that would do for the eye what his phonograph did for the ear—to hook vision up with sound. His first attempt at a motion picture machine was a phonograph cylinder device on which the pictures were recorded in tiny circular images laid down in spiral courses, like the sound record. The pictures were so small he abandoned this effort and began experimenting with a method of feeding the pictures into the camera on a belt or tape. He experimented with belt films of various composition.

1889. William Friese-Greene of England, patented kinematography, taking pictures on celluloid, the basis for motion picture photography, as various courts have ruled.

1889. George Eastman, seeking a "roll" film for his kodak, began manufacturing a photographic material with a nitro-cellulose base. This was in August. Edison heard of it and by Oct. 6 he came out with the first model of his kinetoscope, the parent machine of the motion picture art. This was a peep-show into which but one person at a time could look. The observer saw a running film the pictures on which were magnified by a lens and illuminated by an electric light behind. The film was about one inch wide, with sixteen frames to the foot, running at the rate of about forty-eight pictures a second, three times the modern rate of images. The Edison standard size of film remains the world standard size today. The length of the film was fifty feet because Eastman supplied it in that length. The arrangement of the sprocket holes by which the film is driven is the same now as in Edison's kinetoscope.

1891. Edison patented his kinetoscope in the United States only. He made no attempt to market it.

1893. Eadweard Muybridge exhibited his zoopraxoscope at the Chicago Columbian Exposition.

1894. Thomas R. Lombard, of Cornelia, Ga., a promoter of the phonograph, conceived the idea of making the kinetoscope a novelty display at the World Columbia Exposition in Chicago in 1892, but the machines were not ready in time and made their first public appearance at a kinetoscope parlor at 1155 Broadway, New York City, on April 14, 1894. The pictures for the kinetoscope were made in West Orange, N. J., in a tiny studio which cost $637.67. Up to this point, Edison had spent $24,118.04 on the invention of the motion picture. During the fall of 1894 several of his machines were exported to Europe and from them sprang the English and Continental development of the motion picture.

1895. Major Woodvill Latham of Virginia, on May 20, gave a demonstration for the New York press of his pantopticon, projecting kinetoscopic film so that more than one person at a time could see the pictures. It was imperfect and he invented a new device called the eidoloscope which had a brief international career.

1895. During the same year Louis and August Lumiere, photographic manufacturers of Lyons, France, produced a more satisfactory projecting machine, the cinematographe, which they patented in France on Feb. 13, demonstrating the machine on March 22.

1895. Thomas Armat of Washington discovered in June the principle of the modern projector, a film movement which gave each successive picture a period of rest and illumination in excess of the period of movement from image to image. His projector was first shown publicly at the Cotton States exposition in Atlanta in September 1895, displaying Edison kinetoscope pictures. It was afterwards known as the vitascope.

1896. The commercial career of the motion picture on the screen began with the presentation of the Armat machine at Koster & Bial's music hall at Herald Square, New York City, on the night of April 23, 1896. It became popular in vaudeville and the length of fim was increased to 1,000 feet (still the standard length), or about the time of a "turn" or "act" in vaudo-ville. The Lumiere influence on the motion picture assumed greater importance: the cinematographe was adjustable, making it a camera, a film printing machine and a projector; it was easily movable about and could record outdoor scenes. The Lumieres sent photographer-exhibitors all over the world obtaining films for the screens of Europe and America.

1896. Censorship of films started over Dolorita's "Passion Dance" in Atlantic City.

1896. The K.M.C.D. Syndicate (E. B. Koopman, H. N. Marvin, Herman Cassler and William Kennedy Laurie Dickson) came out with the mutoscope, a peep-show machine using a card-wheel instead of film, and the American Biograph, a projection machine using a wide film of about eight times the area of the Edison standard. The Biograph was presented publicly at Hammerstein's Music Hall in Broadway, New York City, in November 1896. Differing as widely as possible from the Edison patents, it exerted a wide influence upon the development of motion pictures.

1896. Robert W. Paul of London demonstrated his projector at the Royal Institute on Feb. 28.

1897. In December Thomas Edison instituted a series of suits to protect his patents on the motion picture, machines and film. The legal wars that resulted retarded the development of pictures for many years. The American Mutoscope and Biograph Company, with Wall Street backing, engaged in a bitter patents struggle with Edison.

1897. Enoch Rector, formerly associated with Latham, wished to film the James Corbett-Bob Fitzsimmons championship fight at Carson City, Nev., in its entirety, and built a camera of a new film standard, about an inch and a half wide, which he named the veriscope. He had acquired the Corbett contract from the Latham firm (which had displayed scenes from the Corbett-Courtenay fight to the public in a store room at 150 Broadway) and made use of their "Latham loop," a device to supply slack film to the intermittent motion of the camera, relieving the strains which usually resulted in breakage. By using this "loop" method they made a picture of the fight 11,000 feet in length—by far the longest that had yet been made.

1897. This same year of 1897 saw the first staged motion picture. W. B. Hurd of the Lumiere interests, arrived in New York offering the right to photograph the Passion Play at Horitz. He first offered the contract to Rich G. Hollaman of the Eden Musee, who let it slip through his fingers to Klaw & Erlanger, theatrical producers, who sent a photographic expedition to Horitz. Hollaman saw the resulting picture at its Philadelphia try-out. He hurried back to New York, got together a cast of Broadway actors, and produced a synthetic version of the Passion Play on the roof of the Grand Central Palace. He offered it as the real and authentic Passion Play of Oberammergau, but the hoax was exposed by the New York "Herald". Hollaman had, however, produced the first motion picture fiction story to be staged.

1897. John P. Harris and Harry Davis opened the first of the "Nickelodeons" in Pittsburgh.

1898-99. Edison projectoscope showed scenes of the Spanish-American war.

1899. On Nov. 3, 1899 the Biograph Company attempted the hitherto unheard of feat of photographing an outdoor scene at night, by artificial light. This was the filming of the Jeffries-Sharkey fight at Coney Island. Four hundred arc lamps were used over the ring. The result was successful, proving the independence of the camera from the sun.

1902. Thomas L. Talley opened the first "Electric Theater" in the U. S. in Los Angeles at 10 cent admission.

1903. Edwin S. Porter, an Edison Cameraman who had observed the public response to thrill scenes got the idea of stringing a collection of such scenes on a thread of story. The result was "The Life of an American Fireman," the first serious attempt to picture on the screen a realistic story. It was a marked success, and Porter was fired with ambition to make a train story. The result was "The Great Train Robbery," one reel in length, with a sustained, suspenseful plot. It was a sensation, and the beginning of the "story picture" as we know it on the screen of today. The camera had learned the art of narration.

1906. Biograph abandoned its roof-top daylight studio and established a studio lighted with Cooper-Hewitt mercury tubes. Other producers rapidly followed suit.

1907. D. W. Griffith introduced the close-up, flashback, fade-out and dissolve.

1907. Selig opened first California studio in Los Angeles. First picture was "The Count of Monte Cristo" in 1,000 feet.

1908. The patents war between Edison and Biograph came to an end with the peace of Dec. 18, 1908, with both companies in equal positions of leadership.

1909. The ten producers of motion pictures in the United States formed the Motion Picture Patents Company and instituted a system of cross-licensing. An outgrowth of the Motion Picture Patents Company, under the influence of Jeremiah J. Kennedy, representing the Empire Trust Co., holder of Biograph mortgage bonds, was the General Film Co., through which Kennedy got control of most of the hundred exchanges in the United States and Canada, eliminating tremendius waste in the distribution of pictures.

1909. National Board of Reviews organized by People's Institute of New York.

1909. Mary Pickford joined the Biograph Co. and soon became one of the outstanding players when stars and the exploitation of personality were still unknown.

1909. George Melies, French magician, used motion pictures in his exhibition of magic in "Gulliver's Travels" and "A Trip to the Moon."

1912. The Mutual Film Corporation was formed early in this year by John R. Freuler and Harry E. Aitken. It took in a goodly number of independent film exchanges. Soon afterwards Carl Laemmle and his associates formed the Universal Film Manufacturing Co., and acquired a system of exchanges. Together these two independent companies put up a strong fight against the Motion Picture Patents Co.

1912. The independents won a signal victory against the Motion Picture Patents Co. and the General Film Co. in the decision of Fox vs. the Thomas A. Edison Co.

1912. Famous Players organized and made its first feature, "The Prisoner of Zenda" with James K. Hackett.

1913. David Wark Griffith joined the Mutual Film Corporation with the understanding he could do some producing on his own account.

1914. The Strand Theater, New York City, first of the large theaters devoted exclusively to motion pictures and their presentation, was opened on April 11, under the direction of Samuel L. "Roxy" Rothafel. His screen presentations was the stepping stone to the great picture palaces of today with their surrounding programs of music, dancing and singing.

1914. Paramount organized by William W. Hodkinson.

1915. D. W. Griffith's "Clansman" had premiere at Clune's Auditorium in Los Angeles in February; on March 3 it was shown under the title of "The Birth of a Nation" at the Liberty, New York City.

1915. Famous Players gave Mary Pickford a new contract calling for the hitherto unheard of salary of $2,000 per week and half of the profits.

1916. Mary Pickford demanded a salary of $1,000 per day—$7,000 per week—of Famous Players. She then formed her own company with distribution through Artcraft.

1916. John R. Freuler of Mutual Film Corp. met Ira Lowry's offer of $10,000 a week to Charlie Chaplin, and added $150,000 bonus—$670,000 for a year—and Chaplin accepted.

1917. First National organized by John D. Williams and Thomas L. Tally.

1917. U. S. Supreme Court decision ended active career of Motion Picture Patents Co. on April 9.

1918. Famous Players-Lasky combined.

CENSOR BOARD RULES

The following is quoted from the statutes of the various States:

OHIO

"Only such films as are in the judgment and discretion of the board of censors of a moral, educational or amusing and harmless character shall be passed and approved by such board."

NEW YORK

"No motion picture will be licensed or a permit granted for its exhibition within the State of New York, which may be classified, or any part thereof, as obscene, indecent, immoral, inhuman, sacrilegious, or which is of such a character that its exhibition would tend to corrupt morals or incite to crime."

Newsreels not subject to review.

KANSAS

The board "shall approve such films, reels, including subtitles, spoken dialogue, songs, other words or sounds, folders, posters and advertising matter which are moral and proper; and shall disapprove such as are cruel, obscene, indecent, or immoral, or such as tend to debase or corrupt morals."

In addition to the quotation from the statute, this board has adopted the following rules:

A. Pictures should be clean and wholesome, and all features that tend to debase morals or influence the mind to improper conduct should be eliminated.

B. Ridicule of any religious sect or peculiar characteristics of any race of people will not be approved.

C. Evil suggestion in the dress of comedy characters will be eliminated.

D. Loose conduct between men and women will be eliminated, and whenever possible, barroom scenes and social drinking.

E. A display of nude human figures will be eliminated.

F. Crimes and criminal methods, such as give instruction in crime through suggestion, will be eliminated or abbreviated.

G. Prolonged and passionate love scenes, when suggestive of immorality will be eliminated.

PENNSYLVANIA

"The board shall . . . approve such films, reels or views which are moral and proper; and also disapprove such as are sacrilegious, obscene, indecent, or immoral, or such as tend, in the judgment of the board, to debase or corrupt morals."

VIRGINIA

The board shall issue a license "unless such film or a part thereof is obscene, indecent, immoral, inhuman, or is of such a character that its exhibition would tend to corrupt morals or incite to crime . . . "

MARYLAND

No film to be licensed which is in the judgment of the board ". . . obscene, indecent, immoral, inhuman, sacrilegious or of such character that its exhibition would tend to corrupt morals or incite to crime."

STANDARD EXHIBITION CONTRACT

AGREEMENT of license under copyright made in one or more counterparts between——————————, a corporation (hereinafter referred to as the Distributor), party of the first part, and the Exhibitor, (hereinafter named and referred to as the Exhibitor, operating the theater hereinafter designated), party of the second part,

WITNESSETH: The parties hereto agree as follows:

License

FIRST: The Distributor grants the Exhibitor and the Exhibitor accepts, a limited license under the respective copyrights of the motion pictures designated and described in the Schedule hereof and under the copyright of any matter included in any sound recorded therewith, to exhibit publicly said motion pictures and to reproduce for public performances such recorded sound in synchronism therewith, but only at the said theater for the number of consecutive days specified in the Schedule and for no other use or purpose; provided that the reproducing equipment in the said theater will operate reliably and efficiently to reproduce such recorded sound with adequate volume and high quality; and provided further that if copyrighted musical compositions are included in such recorded sound, the Exhibitor will have at the date or dates of the exhibition of each of such motion pictures a license from the copyright proprietor thereof or from any licensee of such copyright proprietor to perform publicly the said copyrighted musical compositions. If more than one theater is hereinafter designated the said motion pictures are licensed for exhibition at only one of such theaters unless otherwise in the Schedule specifically provided in writing.

Term and Warranty

SECOND: (a) The term of this Agreement shall begin with the date fixed or determined for the exhibition at the said theater of the first motion picture deliverable hereunder and shall continue for a period of one year thereafter unless otherwise in the Schedule provided. The Distributor agrees during said term to deliver to the Exhibitor, and the Exhibitor agrees to exhibit at said theater during said term upon the date or dates herein provided for, a positive print of each of said motion pictures except such as may be excluded as provided in Clauses Fifteenth and Seventeenth hereof. The Distributor warrants that each positive print will be in good physical condition for projection and exhibition, and will clearly reproduce the recorded sound in synchronism therewith if properly used upon standard reproducing equipment. If the recorded sound is not recorded upon a print, all references herein to a print shall be deemed to include the records, discs and any other device upon which sound may be recorded for reproduction with the exhibition of a print.

Damages—Failure to Deliver

(b) If the Distributor shall fail or refuse to deliver, or the Exhibitor shall fail or refuse to exhibit during the term hereof, any of said motion pictures, excepting those which may be eliminated as provided in Clause Fifteenth hereof, and those which may not be generally released as provided in Clause Seventeenth hereof or if the Distributor shall wilfully violate any of the provisions of Clause Seventh hereof or shall deliver to the Exhibitor a print of any motion picture which print shall be determined was not in condition for exhibition and for the reproduction of sound as provided in Clause Second, the Exhibitor or the Distributor, as the case may be, shall pay the damage so caused and if such damage cannot be definitely computed shall pay as liquidated damages a sum equal to the fixed sum herein specified as the rental of each such motion picture or a sum computed as provided in Clause Third (c) hereof, if the rental of any such motion picture is to be determined, either in whole or in part upon a percentage of the admission receipts of said theater or any part thereof or upon a percentage of such receipts and a fixed sum; provided that any claim by the Exhibitor with respect to the condition of a print shall be deemed to have been waived by the Exhibitor unless notice of such claim shall have been given by the Exhibitor to the Distributor's exchange from which the Exhibitor is served, by telephone or telegraph, or in person, immediately after the first public exhibition thereof by the Exhibitor and written confirmation thereof mailed by the Exhibitor upon the same day to the Distributor's said exchange.

Payment

THIRD: (a) Exhibitor agrees to pay for such license as to each such motion picture the fixed sums specified in the Schedule at least three (3) days in advance of the date of delivery of a print thereof at the Distributor's exchange or of the date of shipment to the Exhibitor from another exhibitor, unless after the acceptance of this application by the Distributor such payment shall be otherwise agreed to by the Distributor in writing signed by an officer of the Distributor. All payments hereunder shall be made to the Distributor at the City in which is located the exchange from which the Exhibitor is served.

Percentage Bookings

(b) If the rental of any of such motion pictures is to be determined either in whole or in part upon the admission receipts of said theater or any part thereof, the Exhibitor agrees to pay such rental immediately after the last exhibition upon the last date of the exhibition of each such motion picture or if requested by the Distributor at the end of each day's exhibition. In each such case the Exhibitor shall deliver to the Distributor immediately after the last exhibition upon each date of exhibition of each such motion picture a correct itemized statement of the gross receipts of said theater for admission thereto upon each such date. Such statement shall be signed by the Exhibitor or the Manager or Treasurer of said theater and the Cashier thereof and shall include a statement of such facts and figures as may be provided in the Schedule to be furnished by the Exhibitor, and if requested by the Distributor, shall be made upon forms furnished by the Distributor. Upon the exhibition date or dates of each motion picture an authorized representative of the Distributor is hereby given the right to verify the sale of all tickets of admission to said theater, and the receipts therefrom; and for such purpose shall have access to the theater, including the box-office, and also the right to examine all relevant entries relating to such gross receipts in all the Exhibitor's books and records, and if hereunder it is provided that the Exhibitor make certain expenditures and/or deductions, to examine all entries relating to such expenditures and/or deductions. Such right of access and examination of the Exhibitor's books and records limited as aforesaid, shall continue for a period of four (4) months after the receipt by the Distributor of each such statement. The Distributor agrees, unless such representative is in the continuous employ of the Distributor or employed as a checker, not to employ as a representative for such purpose any person a resident of or employed in the place where the said theater is located, other than a person engaged in business as an accountant. The Distributor agrees that any information obtained pursuant to the provisions of this clause will be treated as confidential, excepting in any arbitration proceeding or litigation in respect to this license.

Liquidated Damages—Percentage Bookings

(c) If the Exhibitor fails or refuses to exhibit any of said motion pictures as herein provided and the rental or any part thereof is to be computed in whole or in part upon a percentage of the admission receipts of said theater, the Exhibitor shall pay the Distributor as liquidated damages for each day the Exhibitor fails or refuses to exhibit such motion pictures, in addition to any fixed sums payable hereunder in respect of such motion picture, a sum equal to such percentage of the average daily gross receipts of such theater on each date any feature motion picture distributed by the Distributor was exhibited thereat during the period of ninety (90) days prior to the date or dates when said motion picture should have been so exhibited hereunder, or if no feature motion picture distributed by the Distributor was exhibited at such theater during said ninety day period, then a sum equal to such percentage of the average daily gross receipts of such theater during the period of thirty operating days immediately prior to the date or dates when such motion pictures should have been exhibited, or prior to the date of such failure or refusal to exhibit any of said motion pictures; provided that if the Exhibitor shall exhibit such motion pictures for less than the full number of days provided for in the Schedule, for each day less than said full number of days, the sum equal to such percentage shall be computed upon a sum equal to sixty-five (65%) of the gross receipts of said theater during the last day of the exhibition thereat of such motion picture. A sworn statement of the said daily gross receipts shall be delivered by the Exhibitor to the Distributor upon demand therefor.

Delivery and Return of Prints

FOURTH: (a) After each of said motion pictures is generally released for public exhibition and becomes available for exhibition hereunder by the Exhibitor, the Distributor agrees to deliver as hereinafter provided, a print thereof to the Exhibitor.

(b) The public exhibition of any of said motion pictures for three (3) consecutive days at prices usually charged for admission to the theater where so exhibited in the territory wherein is located the exchange from which the exhibitor is served, excepting any "road show," "tryout," "preview," or "pre-release" exhibitions thereof, shall be deemed the general release for public exhibition of such motion picture but only in such territory. A "pre-release" exhibition shall be deemed any exhibition because of seasonal conditions making desirable exhibitions in advance of general release as herein defined.

(c) The Exhibitor agrees to exhibit each of said motion pictures in the order of its general release by the Distributor in the exchange territory in which said theater is located. The Exhibitor shall have the right to select any of the motion pictures, excepting the last deliverable hereunder, for exhibition out of the order of its general release, subject to prior runs and/or protection granted other exhibitors, on the date or dates determined as provided in Article Sixth hereof or otherwise agreed upon, but only upon the following conditions (a) that the Exhibitor is not in default hereunder and shall have fully complied with all the provisions, if any, set forth in the Schedule for the exhibition of one or more of said motion pictures at specified intervals; and (b) that the Distributor and the Exhibitor shall then agree upon the date or dates upon which all of the motion pictures generally released prior to the general release of such motion picture and available for exhibition hereunder shall be exhibited by the Exhibitor, which date or dates shall be within thirty (30) days from the first exhibition date of the motion picture to be exhibited out of the order of its general release; or in the alternative the Exhibitor shall then pay to the Distributor the license fee for each of such motion pictures then generally released and available for exhibition hereunder, and as to any thereof which shall not be exhibited by the Exhibitor within thirty days from the first exhibition date of the motion picture to be exhibited out of the order of its general release, the grant of the run and protection period in respect thereof shall be deemed waived by the Exhibitor. Upon the failure or refusal of the Exhibitor to exhibit any of such motion pictures then generally released and available for exhibition hereunder within said thirty day period or to pay the license fee thereof, the right of the Exhibitor to thereafter select for exhibition any motion picture out of the order of its general release shall be forfeited. The provisions of this paragraph (c) shall not be deemed to limit or qualify the provisions of Article Sixth hereof excepting as in this paragraph (c) specifically provided.

(d) The Distributor shall make deliveries hereunder to the Exhibitor or to the Exhibitor's authorized agent, by delivery at the Distributor's exchange, or to a common carrier, or to the United States Postal authorities. If deliveries are made to a carrier or to a post office, they shall be made in time for prints to reach the place where the said theater is located in time for inspection and a projection thereof before the usual time for opening said theater.

(e) Exhibitor agrees to return immediately after the last exhibition on the last date of exhibition licensed, each print received hereunder, with its reels and containers, to the exchange of the Distributor from which the Exhibitor is served or as otherwise directed by the Distributor in the same condition as when received, reasonable wear and tear due to proper use excepted. Exhibitor agrees to pay all costs of transportation of such prints, reels, and containers from the Distributor's exchange or the last previous exhibitor having possession of the same, and return to the Distributor's exchange; or if directed by the Distributor, to ship such positive prints elsewhere than to the Distributor's exchange transportation charges collect. It is agreed that the delivery of a positive print properly directed and packed in the container furnished by the Distributor therefor, to a carrier designated or used by the Distributor and proper receipt therefor obtained by the Exhibitor, shall constitute the return of such positive print by the Exhibitor.

(f) If Exhibitor fails to or delays the return of any positive print to the Distributor or fails to forward or delays forwarding (as directed by the Distributor) any such print to any other exhibitor, the Exhibitor agrees to pay the Distributor the damage, if any, so caused the Distributor and in addition the damage, if any, so caused such other exhibitor. The Exhibitor shall have the right to participate in any compromise of or intervene in any arbitration or legal proceeding based upon any claim for such damage asserted against the distributor by another exhibitor; notice of which shall be given the Exhibitor by the Distributor.

Loss and Damage to Prints

FIFTH: The Exhibitor shall pay to the Distributor a sum equal to the cost of replacement at the Distributor's exchange for each linear foot of any print, lost, stolen or destroyed or injured in any way in the interval between the delivery to and the return thereof by the Exhibitor in full settlement of all claims for such loss, theft, destruction or injury. Such payment, however, shall not transfer title to or any interest in any such positive print to the Exhibitor or any other party, nor release the Exhibitor from any liability arising out of any breach of this agreement. The Distributor shall at the option of the Exhibitor repay or credit to the Exhibitor any sums paid by the Exhibitor for any lost or stolen print, excepting "news reels," upon the return of such lost or stolen print to the Distributor within sixty (60) days after the date when the same should have been returned hereunder. The Exhibitor shall not be liable for the damage or destruction of any print, provided the Exhibitor establishes such damage or destruction occurred while in transit from the Exhibitor and delivery thereof was made as hereinabove provided. The Exhibitor shall immediately notify the Distributor's exchange by telegram of the loss, theft or destruction of or damage or injury to any print. If any print shall be received from the Exhibitor by the Distributor or any subsequent exhibitor in a damaged or partially destroyed condition it shall be deemed to have been so damaged or destroyed by the Exhibitor unless the latter, immediately after the first public exhibition thereof shall have telegraphed the Distributor's exchange that such print was received by the Exhibitor in a damaged or partially destroyed condition, and setting forth fully the nature of such damage and the amount of footage so damaged or destroyed.

Selection of Play Dates

SIXTH: Unless otherwise agreed upon or unless definitely specified or otherwise provided for in the Schedule, the exhibition date or dates of each of said motion pictures shall be determined as follows:

1. Subject to prior runs and/or protection granted or hereafter granted by the Distributor to other exhibitors and within a reasonable time after a print or prints of any of said motion pictures are received at the exchange of the Distributor out of which the exhibitor is served, and provided the Exhibitor is not in default hereunder, the Distributor shall mail to the Exhibitor a notice in writing of the date when each such motion picture will be available for exhibition by the Exhibitor (which date is hereinafter referred to as the "available date"). Such notice shall be mailed to the Exhibitor at least fifteen (15) days before the available date therein specified.

2. Within fourteen (14) days after the mailing of such notice, the Exhibitor shall select an exhibition date or dates not theretofore assigned to another exhibitor or other exhibitors, within the period commencing upon the available date and ending thirty (30) days thereafter and give to the Distributor written notice of the date or dates so selected.

3. Upon the failure of the Exhibitor to so select such date or dates the Distributor shall designate such date or dates by mailing written notice thereof to the Exhibitor.

Protection and Run

SEVENTH: The Distributor agrees not to exhibit or grant a license to exhibit any of said motion pictures for exhibition in conflict with the "run" or prior to the expiration of the "protection period" if any in the Schedule specified at any theater therein named or within the territorial limits therein specified. Such period of protection as to each of said motion pictures shall be computed from the last date of the exhibition thereof licensed hereunder. If protection is granted against a named theater or theaters indicating that it is the intention of the Distributor to grant such protection against all theaters in the immediate vicinity of the Exhibitor's theater then unless otherwise provided in the Schedule, such protection shall include any theater in such vicinity thereafter erected or opened.

Description of Pictures

EIGHTH: (a) The Distributor shall have and hereby reserve the right in the sole discretion of the Distributor to change the title of any of the said motion pictures to make changes in, alterations and adaptations of any story, book or play and to substitute for any thereof any other story, book or play. The Distributor also shall have and hereby reserves the right to change the director, the cast or any member thereof of any of said motion pictures.

(b) The Exhibitor shall not be required to accept for any feature motion picture described in the Schedule as that of the following named star or stars any motion picture of any other star or stars:————————————————nor to accept any other feature motion pictures in place of any thereof in the Schedule which are designated "no substitutes," provided that not more than twenty (20%) per cent of the total number of feature motion pictures specified in the Schedule, other than the motion pictures of said star or stars, are so designated. The right of rejection conferred on the Exhibitor by this Clause is in addition to the right of exclusion provided in Clause Fifteenth hereof.

(c) The Distributor warrants that none of said motion pictures are reissues of old negatives, old negatives retitled or foreign produced by a foreign producer, excepting those specifically specified as such in the Schedule; and further that none of said motion pictures contains or will contain any advertising matter for which compensation is received by the Distributor, or any subsidiary or affiliate of the Distributor.

Advertising Prior to First Run

NINTH: (a) If the Exhibitor is granted a subsequent run of the said motion pictures the Exhibitor shall not advertise any thereof by any means of advertising prior to or during the exhibition of any one of said motion pictures by any other exhibitor having the right to a prior run thereof and charging admission prices higher than the prices charged for admission to the Exhibitor's theater, excepting advertising inside the theater not intended for removal therefrom by the public, unless the first date of exhibition hereunder of any such motion picture shall be within fifteen (15) days from the last exhibition date of such prior run exhibition, in which case the Exhibitor shall have the right to advertise such motion picture provided the Exhibitor does not in any advertising state that the prices charged for admission are or will be less than the admission prices charged by the Exhibitor having the first or prior run of such motion picture. Nothing in this Clause shall be deemed to prohibit the Exhibitor from advertising generally all of said motion pictures as a group but such general advertising shall not refer to any one of said motion pictures during its exhibition by any other exhibitor having the first or immediately prior run thereof, excepting as herein provided.

(b) The Exhibitor shall not advertise by any means of advertising any of said motion pictures which may be roadshown by the Distributor and not excepted and excluded from this license, until after the completion of such roadshowing in the United States, and then only as permitted in paragraph (a) of this Clause.

(c) For a breach of the provisions of this Clause the Distributor shall have in addition to all other rights the right to exclude from this license any motion picture advertised in violation of the provisions hereof by written notice to such effect mailed to the Exhibitor and upon the mailing of such notice the license of such motion picture shall terminate and revert to the Distributor, unless arbitration is herein provided for and immediately upon the receipt of any such notice of exclusion the Exhibitor by written notice given to the Distributor shall deny breaching any of the provisions of this Clause, in which case the question of fact raised by such denial shall be determined by arbitration.

Acceptance by Distributor

TENTH: Until accepted in writing by an officer of or any person authorized by the Distributor and notice of acceptance sent to the Exhibitor this instrument shall be deemed only an application for a license under Copyright, and may be withdrawn by the Exhibitor any time before such acceptance. Unless such notice of acceptance is sent the Exhibitor by mail or telegraph within fifteen (15) days after the date thereof, if the said theater of the Exhibitor is located East of the Mississippi River, and within thirty (30) days after the date thereof if located west of said river, said application shall be deemed to have been withdrawn. The deposit by the Distributor of any check or other consideration given by the Exhibitor at the time of application as payment for any purpose or the delivery of a print of any of said motion pictures shall not be deemed an acceptance hereof by the Distributor.

Changes in Writing

ELEVENTH: This license agreement is complete and all promises, representations, understandings and agreements in reference thereto have been expressed herein. No change or modification hereof shall be binding upon the Distributor unless in writing signed by an officer of the Distributor, excepting in an emergency and only then, a change or modification may be consented to in writing but only by the representative of the Distributor managing the Distributor's exchange out of which the Exhibitor is served provided such change or modification does not change or modify the run, and/or protection period, or decrease any rental, or eliminate any motion picture specified in the Schedule.

Assignment on Sale of Theater

TWELFTH: This license shall not be assigned by either party without the written consent of the other, provided, that if the Exhibitor sells the said theater or transfers any interest therein and is not in default hereunder, the Exhibitor may assign this license to the purchaser of the theater or of such interest without the written consent of the Distributor but any such assignment shall not be valid or of any effect hereunder unless a written acceptance thereof by the assignee assuming the obligations of the Exhibitor shall be delivered to the Distributor. Any such assignment shall not release the Exhibitor from any liability hereunder unless such release from liability is consented to by the Distributor in writing.

Taxes

THIRTEENTH: The Exhibitor shall pay to the Distributor upon demand, any tax, fee or other like charge now and/or hereafter imposed or based upon the delivery and/or the exhibition of prints of motion pictures and/or upon the sums payable under this license by the Exhibitor to the Distributor. If under any statute or ordinance any such tax, fee or other like charge is or shall be payable or paid by the Distributor and the exact amount payable hereunder by the Exhibitor is not therein definitely fixed or cannot be exactly determined, then the Exhibitor shall pay such part of any such tax, fee or other like charge paid or payable by the Distributor as shall be fixed in the manner determined by the then President of the American Arbitration Association.

Prevention of Performance

FOURTEENTH: If the Exhibitor shall be prevented from exhibiting or the Distributor from delivering any of the said motion pictures for causes beyond their direct control then this license in respect to each such motion picture shall terminate and revert to the Distributor without liability on the part of either party, provided reasonable written notice of such termination and the cause thereof is given.

Option to Exclude if Group Licensed

FIFTEENTH: (a) If the total number of feature motion pictures offered to the Exhibitor by the Distributor, at one time, shall have been licensed by the Distributor hereunder, and the rental of each thereof averages less than Four hundred ($400.00) Dollars, the Exhibitor shall have the right to exclude from this license, first not to exceed five (5%) per cent of the total number of feature motion pictures licensed hereunder; thereafter to further exclude not to exceed five (5%) per cent of said total number; and/or lastly to further exclude not to exceed five (5%) per cent of said total number; the aggregate number of feature pictures so excluded in no event to exceed fifteen (15%) per cent of the total number licensed hereunder; provided that the Exhibitor is not in default hereunder and shall have fully complied with all of the provisions, if any set forth in the Schedule for the exhibition of one or more of said feature motion pictures at specified intervals; and provided further that the Exhibitor shall give to the Distributor written notice of the Exhibitor's election to exclude any of said feature motion pictures not later than fourteen (14) days before the date or dates fixed for its exhibition hereunder and at the same time: (1) as to each feature motion picture excluded in the first five per cent of the total number so excluded to pay to the Distributor the rental therefor specified in the Schedule; (2) as to each feature motion picture included in the five per cent of the total number thereafter so excluded to pay to the Distributor one-half of the rental thereof specified in the Schedule; and (3) as to each feature motion picture included in the five (5%) per cent of the total lastly so excluded there shall be added to the rental of the motion pictures then remaining to be delivered hereunder an amount at least equal to the aggregate of the rentals of the motion pictures so lastly excluded, apportioned equally to each or to any one or more thereof, selected by the Exhibitor upon notice to such effect given to the Distributor, and the exhibition period specified in the Schedule of each of such motion pictures so selected may be, at the option of the Exhibitor upon written notice to such effect, ratably extended for such number of days as the rental thereof specified in the Schedule plus the amount added as herein provided, permits; provided that if there shall be no motion pictures then remaining to be delivered hereunder, the Exhibitor shall pay to the Distributor the rental therefor specified in the Schedule. In computing such number of days fractions of more than one-third shall be deemed one day.

For the purpose of determining whether or not the average rental of any of the motion pictures, the rental of which is to be computed in whole or in part upon a percentage of the receipts of the Exhibitor's theater, is more or less than $400.00, the rental of each such motion picture shall be deemed to be the average amount of the license fees paid by the Exhibitor to the Distributor for each feature motion picture distributed by the Distributor and exhibited at said theater during a period of one year prior to the term hereof and of which the rental was computed in whole or in part upon a percentage of the receipts of the Exhibitor's theater.

(b) On or before the fifteenth (15th) day after the end of each three (3) months' period of the term of this license, the Distributor shall repay to the exhibitor a sum equal to the amount paid by the Exhibitor to the Distributor as rental of the feature motion pictures first excluded by the Exhibitor as provided in Paragraph (a) of this clause, during such three months' period provided that during such three months' period the Exhibitor shall have exhibited as herein provided, all of the feature motion pictures licensed hereunder then generally released and available for exhibition hereunder by the Exhibitor, excepting those, if any, excluded as provided in this clause and shall have paid to the Distributor at the time herein specified the rental of each thereof.

(c) For the purpose of computing the sum required to be paid by the Exhibitor to the Distributor as provided in Paragraph (a) of this Clause for any motion picture, the rental or any part of which is to be computed in whole or in part upon a percentage of the receipts of said theater, shall be deemed to be that amount or part thereof which is equal to such percentage of the average daily gross receipts of such theater on each date any feature motion picture distributed by the Distributor was exhibited thereat during the period of ninety (90) days prior to the date of the Exhibitor's written notice to exclude such feature motion picture, or if no feature motion picture distributed by the Distributor was exhibited at such theater during said ninety (90) days' period, then the rental or part thereof shall be deemed to be that amount or part thereof which is equal to such percentage of the average daily gross receipts of said theater during the period of thirty (30) operating days immediately prior to the date of said written notice to exclude such feature motion picture.

(d) In computing said percentages of the total number of feature motion pictures fractions of less than one-half shall be disregarded.

(e) Upon the failure or refusal of the Exhibitor to fully and completely comply with each and every condition hereinabove in this Clause specified and upon which the Exhibitor is granted the right to exclude any of the feature motion pictures licensed hereunder, or provided the parties hereto have agreed to arbitration as provided in Clause Twentieth, or as provided in any other existing license agreement between said parties, and the Exhibitor shall fail or refuse to arbitrate any claim or controversy arising hereunder or thereunder, or to comply with any award in respect thereto, such right to exclude any feature motion picture and thereafter to exclude from this license additional feature motion pictures, shall thereupon forthwith terminate and shall not again be granted hereunder during the term hereof.

(f) Upon the exclusion of each of the feature motion pictures permitted by the provisions of this Clause the run and protection period, if any, granted the Exhibitor in respect thereto shall be deemed waived by the Exhibitor and the license thereof shall thereupon terminate and revert to the Distributor.

First Run Exhibitions

SIXTEENTH: (a) If the Exhibitor is granted a first run of the said motion pictures, the Exhibitor shall exhibit each of the feature motion pictures excepting those described in Paragraph (d) of this Clause within the period beginning with the date scheduled and announced by the Distributor for the general release of each feature motion picture in the territory wherein is located the exchange of the Distributor out of which the Exhibitor is served and ending one hundred and twenty (120) days thereafter, notwithstanding any provision of Clause Sixth hereof to the contrary. If the first exhibition date of any of the said motion pictures shall occur on a date later than ninety (90) days after its scheduled and announced general release date, then the period of protection of such motion picture shall be reduced so as to expire one hundred and twenty (120) days after said scheduled date of its general release. If the Exhibitor is granted a first run of the said motion pictures and the Exhibitor fails to exhibit any feature motion picture within said period of one hundred and twenty (120) days, the grant of the said first run and the protection period in respect thereof shall be deemed waived by the Exhibitor and the license fee as to such feature motion picture shall thereupon forthwith become due and payable to the Distributor, with the right to the Exhibitor to exhibit such feature motion picture as hereinafter in Paragraph (e) of this Clause provided.

Second Run Exhibitions

(b) If the Exhibitor is granted a second run of the said motion pictures and any other exhibitor having been granted the first-run thereof immediately prior to such second run fails to exhibit any of the feature motion pictures, excepting those described in Paragraph (d) of this Clause within the said period of one hundred and twenty (120) days specified in Paragraph (a) of this Clause, the Exhibitor shall exhibit each such feature motion picture within the period beginning with the date of the expiration of the said one hundred and twenty (120) days' period and ending fourteen (14) days thereafter, notwithstanding any provision of Clause Sixth hereof to the contrary. If the Exhibitor is granted a second run of the said motion pictures and the Exhibitor fails to exhibit any feature motion picture within said fourteen (14) days' period the grant of such second run and the protection period if any in respect thereof shall be deemed waived by the Exhibitor and the license fee as to such feature motion picture shall thereupon forthwith become due and payable to the Distributor with the right to the Exhibitor to exhibit such feature motion picture as hereinafter in Paragraph (e) of this Clause provided.

Subsequent Runs Exhibitions

(c) If the Exhibitor is granted a run subsequent to a second run of the said motion pictures and any other Exhibitor having been granted the second run thereof immediately prior to such subsequent run fails to exhibit any of the feature motion pictures, excepting those described in Paragraph (d) of this Clause within the said period of fourteen (14) days specified in Paragraph (b) of this Clause the Exhibitor shall exhibit each feature motion picture within the period beginning with the date of the expiration of the said fourteen day period and ending seven (7) days thereafter, notwithstanding any provision of Clause Sixth hereof to the contrary. If the Exhibitor is granted a run subsequent to a second run of the said motion pictures and the Exhibitor fails to exhibit any feature motion picture within said seven (7) day period, the grant of such subsequent run and the protection period if any in respect thereof shall be deemed waived by the Exhibitor and the license fee as to such feature motion picture shall thereupon forthwith become due and payable to the Distributor with the right to the Exhibitor to exhibit such feature motion picture as hereinafter in Paragraph (e) of this Clause provided.

Extended Runs

(d) Any of the motion pictures which shall have been exhibited at any theater in the said territory for more than one show week prior to the run granted the Exhibitor shall be excepted from the provisions of this Clause and of Paragraph (b) of Clause Fourth.

Exhibition After Revocation of Run and Protection

(e) Upon the waiver of the grant of the run and/or the protection period of any feature motion picture as provided in Paragraphs (a), (b) or (c) of this Clause, the Exhibitor upon payment of the sum or sums payable hereunder as provided in this Clause for the license to exhibit such feature motion picture, shall have the right to exhibit the same hereunder upon a date or dates not in conflict with any run and/or protection period granted or hereafter granted to other exhibitors, upon written request mailed or delivered to the Distributor within sixty (60) days after the last date upon which such feature motion picture should have been exhibited by the Exhibitor as provided in this Clause. Failing to make such request within said period of sixty (60) days the license to exhibit such feature motion picture granted hereunder shall terminate and revert to the Distributor.

If the provisions of this Clause shall in anywise be in conflict with the provisions of any other license agreement made and entered into by the Distributor with any other exhibitor prior to September 1, 1933, the provisions of this Clause shall be deemed to be subordinate and subject to the provisions of such other license agreement.

Pictures Not Generally Released

SEVENTEENTH: If any of the said motion pictures described in the Schedule, excepting those, if any, which may be roadshown by the Distributor, shall not be generally released by the Distributor for distribution in the United States during the period beginning..... and ending..... each such motion picture shall be excluded from this license, upon written notice to such effect given to the Exhibitor by the Distributor prior to fifteen (15) days before the end of said period, unless the Exhibitor shall give written notice to the Distributor not later than thirty (30) days after the end of said period that the Exhibitor elects to exhibit hereunder all such motion pictures if generally released during the year immediately following the end of said period. If such notice of election is given as aforesaid the Distributor shall deliver and the Exhibitor shall exhibit each of such motion pictures upon the terms and conditions of this license excepting that any thereof which are not so generally released within the said following year shall also be excepted and excluded from this license. In such case the Distributor may exhibit and license for exhibition each of such motion pictures so excluded when and where desired by the Distributor and all claims of the Exhibitor in respect thereof are hereby expressly waived and the Distributor released and discharged therefrom by the Exhibitor.

EIGHTEENTH: If the Exhibitor shall fail or refuse to pay the rental of any of such motion pictures as provided in this license or to furnish statements of the receipts of said theater, if any, are required hereunder, or to give the Distributor's representative access to the said theater or its box-office and/or the Exhibitor's books and records relative to motion pictures the rentals of which are based upon the said theater's admission receipts as herein provided, or if the Exhibitor shall exhibit or permit the exhibition of any of said motion pictures at any time or place other than as herein specified, or if the Exhibitor becomes insolvent or is adjudicated a bankrupt, or executes an assignment for the benefit of his creditors, or if a receiver is appointed for any of the property of the Exhibitor, or if the Exhibitor voluntarily or by operation of law should lose control of the said theater or of his said interests therein making it impossible for the Exhibitor to exhibit the said motion pictures at the said theater, then upon the happening of any one or more of said events, the Distributor may at its option, (1) terminate this license agreement, or (2) suspend the delivery of additional motion pictures hereunder until such default or defaults should cease and be remedied. It is agreed that the exercise of any of said remedies by the Distributor shall be in addition to and without prejudice to any right or remedy of the Distributor against the Exhibitor at law or in equity and/or otherwise provided for in this license agreement.

Cutting or Alteration of Prints

NINETEENTH: The Exhibitor shall exhibit each print in its entirety and shall not copy, duplicate, sub-rent or part with possession of any print. The Exhibitor shall not cut or alter any print, excepting to make necessary repairs thereto, or when required by any duly constituted public official or authority or with the written or telegraphic consent of the Distributor. The Exhibitor, however, may cut the print of a news reel, and in such case shall completely restore all parts cut thereform, prior to the return thereof to the Distributor or shipment elsewhere if so directed by the Distributor, in the same condition as received by the Exhibitor.

Optional Arbitration Clause

OPTIONAL CLAUSE: The following Clause Twentieth is optional with the parties hereto. If it is desired to make such clause a part of this license, the Exhibitor and the duly authorized representative of the Distributor shall sign their respective names where indicated immediately following this paragraph and unless so signed the said Clause shall be deemed excluded from this license agreement.

It is agreed by and between the parties that Clause Twentieth, providing for voluntary arbitration of disputes arising hereunder, shall be included as a part of this license.

Representative of the Distributor duly authorized to agree to the following Clause Twentieth.

Exhibitor.

Arbitration

TWENTIETH: The Exhibitor and the Distributor, respectively, freely and voluntarily agree that as a condition precedent to the commencement of any action or proceeding in any court by either of them, to determine, enforce or protect the legal rights of either hereunder, each shall submit all claims and controversies arising hereunder for determination by arbitration to an Arbitration Board (hereby expressly waiving the oath of the arbitrators) which shall consist of four members, each of whom shall be engaged in the motion picture business, and two of whom to be appointed by the Exhibitor, and the remaining two to be appointed by the Distributor.

Upon the written request of the Distributor or the Exhibitor for the arbitration of any dispute or controversy arising hereunder, the party making such request shall name therein two arbitrators stating the business address and business or business connection of each and shall designate therein the date, time and place of the hearing of such controversy. The date of such hearing shall not be earlier than seven (7) days from the date of sending of such notice, unless it shall be claimed in such notice that irreparable injury will result unless there is a speedy determination of such controversy in which case such hearing may be designated to be held earlier than said seven (7) day period.

Within five (5) days after the mailing of such request for arbitration, the party upon whom such request is made shall name two arbitrators in a written notice mailed or delivered to the other party, stating therein the business address and business or business connection of each arbitrator. If either party fails or refuses to name the arbitrators as herein provided or if any arbitrator so named shall fail or refuse to act, or be unable to serve or shall be challenged and others are or another arbitrator qualified and then available to act is not then appointed, others or another arbitrator may be appointed by the other party as the case may be.

No member of the Arbitration Board shall hear or determine any controversy in which he has an interest direct or indirect and any member having such interest shall be disqualified to act.

If the arbitrators or a majority of them are unable to reach a decision, then they, or a majority of them shall immediately select an umpire who shall not be engaged in the motion picture business. In such case the hearing before the umpire shall be at such time and place as the umpire shall designate and shall be had before the umpire alone, the arbitrators not to be permitted to attend the hearing before the umpire. If the arbitrators or a majority of them are unable to agree upon the selection of an umpire, the American Arbitration Association shall be requested to make such selection.

The Arbitration Board shall have general power to determine such dispute or controversy as shall be submitted, to make findings of fact in respect thereof and to direct specific performance of a contract, and/or that the same has been breached in whole or in part, and/or that damages on such account shall be paid. The Board of Arbitration shall have the power only to give force and effect to the provisions of this license agreement and the rights or obligations of the parties thereunder, provided that if after a full hearing of any controversy submitted for arbitration hereunder, excepting any submission to an umpire designated as hereinabove provided, the arbitrators or a majority of them are of the opinion that because of unusual circumstances arising after the execution of this license agreement and beyond the direct control of the parties hereto disclosed at such hearing, a strict enforcement of the provisions of this license agreement would impose undue hardship upon one of the parties, the arbitrators or a majority of them may recommend in writing to the parties a settlement of such controversy upon such terms and conditions deemed by the arbitrators fair and just. If such settlement is not agreed to by the parties within five (5) days after the receipt of a copy of such recommendation, the controversy shall be deemed withdrawn from the arbitrators and shall be submitted with a written statement of all of the facts adduced at the hearing before the arbitrators together with all documentary evidence, to the National Appeal Board in New York. The disposition by the National Appeal Board of any such recommendation shall be final and binding upon the parties hereto.

The hearing of any such controversy shall be had before the Arbitration Board in the city wherein is situated the exchange of the Distributor from which the Exhibitor is served, unless the parties agree in writing that such hearing be had in some other place. If either party fails or refuses to submit to arbitration any such claim or controversy, the other party may apply to a United States District Court, or to any other Court, including a court of a state in which such hearing would otherwise not be had, for an order to proceed to arbitrate in which case such hearing shall be had in such place as the court to which such application is made may lawfully direct.

The parties hereto further agree to abide by and forthwith comply with any decision or award of the arbitrators, or a majority of them and consent that any such decision or award shall be enforceable in or by any Court of competent jurisdiction pursuant to the law of such jurisdiction now or hereafter in force.

If the Exhibitor shall fail or refuse to submit to arbitration any such claim or controversy or to abide by and comply with the award of the arbitrators in respect thereto, within seven (7) days, the Distributor may at its option suspend the deliveries of the motion pictures provided for in this and in each other existing license agreement between the parties hereto and/or terminate this and each such other license agreement; and upon such termination the aggregate of the license fees of all motion pictures specified in this and any other such license agreement then not exhibited forthwith shall become due and payable by the Exhibitor.

If the Distributor shall fail or refuse to submit to arbitration any such claim or controversy or to abide by and comply with the decision or the award of an Arbitration Board in respect thereto within seven (7) days, the Exhibitor may at the option of the Exhibitor terminate this and any other existing license agreement between the parties hereto by mailing a notice to such effect to the Distributor within seven (7) days after such failure or refusal; and the Exhibitor shall have the rights and remedies provided in Clause Second (b) for failure to deliver motion pictures.

Any such termination by either party shall be without prejudice to any other right or remedy which the party so terminating may have by reason of any breach by the other party to this or any other existing agreement between the parties.

Each of the parties hereto, without notice to the other, may apply to any Court having jurisdiction to make this agreement to arbitrate a rule or order of such Court.

Evening: Adults, orchestra—balcony—children.

Matinees: Adults, orchestra—balcony—children.

If during any such period less than said admission prices is charged, the Distributor in addition to all other rights hereunder shall have the right: (a) to immediately terminate the license of the motion picture then being exhibited, by written notice to such effect to the Exhibitor and upon the giving of such notice, the license of such motion picture shall forthwith terminate and revert to the Distributor; or (b) provided the Exhibitor is granted herein a period of "protection" to reduce such period by not to exceed one-half in respect to each of the motion pictures thereafter deliverable hereunder; or (c) provided no period of protection is specified in the Schedule to withhold for a period not to exceed sixty (60) days' notice of the date when each motion picture thereafter deliverable hereunder will be available for exhibition by the Exhibitor; and as to each such motion picture the "run" thereof, if any, granted the Exhibitor, shall be deemed revoked and the Exhibitor agrees to exhibit each such motion picture after notice of the available date thereof upon the date or dates determined as provided in Clause Sixth hereof.

Midnight Shows

The license herein granted for the number of days specified in the Schedule shall not include the right of exhibition at any time during said exhibition period prior to six A.M. on the date or first date of exhibition herein provided for unless exhibition prior to six A. M. on said date or first exhibition date is expressly granted in writing.

Roadshows

(a) The Distributor shall have the right to exhibit and/or cause to be exhibited as a "roadshow," at any time prior to the exhibition thereof hereunder, such of the motion pictures licensed hereunder as the Distributor may from time to time select and determine, provided, however, that such roadshow exhibitions shall be at theaters at which admission prices for evening performances, during such exhibitions thereof, of not less than one dollar shall be charged for the majority of the orchestra seats, and further provided that, except in the cities of New York and Los Angeles, not more than two of such motion pictures shall be so roadshown.

(b) If and when any such roadshow exhibition shall be in the City of New York and/or the City of Los Angeles, and if the Exhibitor's theaters is situated in the territory then served by the Distributor's exchange or exchanges located in New York or in Los Angeles, as the case may be, the Distributor shall have the right to except and exclude from this license not to exceed two of such motion pictures so roadshown in each or both of said territories, upon sending to the Exhibitor written notice to such effect not later than four (4) weeks after the commencement of such roadshow exhibition and provided that the Distributor shall by like notice except and exclude such motion picture from all other license agreements containing this Clause and licensing the exhibition of such motion picture in such territory. The exception and exclusion of any such motion picture in the territory then served by the Distributor's exchange or exchanges located in the City of Los Angeles, or in the City of New York, as the case may be, shall not be deemed to require the Distributor to except and exclude the same motion picture in both of said territories.

(c) If and when any such roadshow exhibition, excepting those in the City of New York and/or in the City of Los Angeles, shall be in the territory served by the Distributor's exchange or exchanges serving the Exhibitor's theater, the Distributor shall have the right to except and exclude from this license not to exceed two of such motion pictures so roadshown upon sending to the Exhibitor written notice to such effect within seven (7) days after the commencement of such roadshow exhibition and provided that the Distributor shall by like notice except and exclude each such motion picture from all other license agreements containing this Clause and licensing the exhibition of such motion picture in such territory.

(d) The inadvertent omission to send to any of such other exhibitors the notice provided for in Paragraphs (a) and (b) of this Clause shall not be deemed to affect the exception and exclusion from this license of any such motion picture.

(e) The Distributor may so exercise such right to except and exclude any such motion picture from time to time, in the respective territories, as above defined, in the United States. Any motion picture so roadshown in any place in the United States, and not excepted and excluded from this license as aforesaid, shall not be deemed available for exhibition hereunder until after the completion of such roadshowing of such motion picture in the United States, and such motion picture shall be exhibited hereunder when generally released by the Distributor and as and when available for exhibition by the Exhibitor, and the term of this license agreement specified in Clause Second shall be in respect to each such motion picture, extended to and including the date or dates of exhibition by the Exhibitor hereunder of each thereof.

(f) For each motion picture that the Distributor shall except and exclude, as aforesaid, the Exhibitor is hereby granted the option to except and exclude from this license (in addition to those which may be excluded as provided in Clauses Fifteenth and Seventeenth) one of the other motion pictures licensed hereunder, but only if the Exhibitor shall give to the Distributor written notice to such effect not later than fourteen days before the date fixed for the exhibition hereunder of such other motion picture. The Distributor may exhibit and/or license the exhibition of any and all motion pictures excepted and excluded from this license by the Distributor and/or the Exhibitor, as aforesaid, when and where desired by the Distributor, free from all claims of the Exhibitor in respect thereof and the license of each thereof shall forthwith upon exclusion as hereinbefore provided terminate and revert to the Distributor.

The following Clause may be, at the option of the Distributor, substituted for subdivision (b) of Clause Eighth:

(b) The parties hereto agreeing that the popularity of different types of motion pictures is subject to constant change and that the Distributor may find it necessary or advisable in certain cases to substitute different motion pictures for those designated or described in the Schedule, the Exhibitor agrees, provided any such substituted motion picture is equal in box-office possibilities to the motion picture for which it is substituted, to accept such substituted motion picture in place of the motion picture originally designated or described, with the same force and effect as if the substituted motion picture had been originally designated and described in the Schedule. If the Exhibitor desires to question the relative box-office possibilities of the original motion picture and the substituted motion picture, the Exhibitor may do so within five (5) days after the receipt of written notice of substitution which shall be sent by the Distributor to the Exhibitor prior to or concurrently with the mailing of the notice of availability thereof. At the time of mailing of such notice of substitution the Distributor shall have available for screening at the exchange of the Distributor from which the Exhibitor is served, a print of the substituted motion picture. If the Exhibitor contends that the substituted motion picture is not equal in box-office possibilities to the original motion picture, the Exhibitor shall, within said five day period so notify the Distributor in writing and in such notice shall designate an appraiser stating his name and business address, failing which the Exhibitor shall be deemed to have accepted the substitution. Within three days after the receipt of such notice from the Exhibitor, the Distributor shall, by written notice to the appraiser designated by the Exhibitor and to the Exhibitor designate an appraiser, stating his name and business address.

The appraisal to determine the relative box-office possibilities of the said two motion pictures shall proceed within five (5) days after the designation of an appraiser by the Distributor and shall be held in the City in which is located the exchange of the Distributor from which the Exhibitor is served. The appraisers so designated, in determining the relative box-office possibilities of said two motion pictures, may consider the suitability of the type of the substituted motion picture for the Exhibitor's theater.

If the two appraisers are unable to agree upon the relative box-office possibilities of the said two motion pictures, they shall appoint an umpire. If they cannot agree upon an umpire, an umpire shall be appointed by the President of the Chember of Commerce or a person holding a similar position in such City; and the decision of the umpire upon such question shall be final and binding upon the parties hereto.

If within thirty (30) days after the receipt from the Distributor of a notice of substitution the Exhibitor shall elect, by written notice to the Distributor, to exhibit in place of the motion picture proposed to be substituted the original motion picture, if thereafter generally released by the Distributor, the Distributor shall deliver and the Exhibitor shall exhibit hereunder such original motion picture provided it is generally released by the Distributor within two (2) years from the date of said notice of substitution.

PROPOSAL FOR A NATIONAL BOARD OF APPEALS AND CONCILIATION

In order to solve within the motion picture industry many of the problems involved in the interrelationship of exhibitor and distributor and to provide a means whereby these problems can be examined in a fair, openminded and impartial manner by the people who best understand them and can best contribute to their solution, two principal proposals for a machinery of industry self-regulation and settlement of controversies, are made:

1.—The formulation of an Optional Standard License Agreement to be offered by the respective distributors who adopt the same, as an alternative to the distributors' own form or forms of annual exhibition contract, the exhibitor to have the free option of choosing which form of contract he desires to accept.

a—The standard form to contain an arbitration clause for the arbitration of all controversies and disputes arising under this contract, this arbitration clause to be included at the option of the exhibitor.

2.—A national board representative of the distributors and exhibitors to act as a National Board of Appeals under the arbitration clause of the Optional Standard License Agreement in the specific cases hereafter mentioned, and otherwise to act as a national conciliation board.

The Optional Standard License Agreement

A definite standard form of contract has been formulated as the result of the most thorough and careful study of the problem and this definitive contract has been presented to the individual distributors for their adoption respectively.

The contract is not intended to determine the respective sales policies of the distributors, but to make uniform the handling of those features of the business which are necessarily common to all interests. It is believed that this form of contract is so fundamentally sound that it can be adopted and used for a definite period of three (3) years.

In the interests of exhibitors an innovation has been incorporated in the arbitration clause of this standard contract. It is provided that if an exhibitor elects arbitration under the standard contract and the local arbitration board either by a unanimous or by a majority vote, after finding the facts of the particular controversy under the contract, are of the opinion that the strict enforcement of the contract according to its terms would work a hardship upon either of the parties thereto because of the unusual conditions beyond the control of either party to the contract and arising after the contract was made, such local arbitration board may then recommend to the parties to the contract a settlement of the controversy outside the strict provisions of the contract and give to the parties an opportunity of either settling in accordance with the recommendations of the Board or in such other fashion as the parties themselves may mutually agree. If in such case the parties do not adopt the recommendation of the Board or otherwise settle the matter, then the arbitration board or either party to the arbitration proceeding may refer the matter to the National Board of Appeals which will have full power to pass upon the whole controversy involved in the arbitration and to determine what settlement of the controversy is to be made between the contracting parties, and the decision of the National Board of Appeals in this respect is to be final and binding upon the parties and to be carried out by them.

Matters for Conciliation

Wholly apart from matters of contract which are to be determined by arbitration, many problems and differences arise in the carrying on of the business between exhibitor and distributor which ought to be susceptible of fair and friendly settlement, and to this end it is proposed that local committees of conciliation should be set up, to which exhibitors and distributors may carry their differences in an effort to adjust them. If such differences cannot be conciliated and adjusted after the local conciliation machinery has been invoked, it is proposed that the matter be referred to a national board for conciliation. Such important and difficult questions as protection and run will immediately occur to the industry as appropriate subjects for such local and national bodies to deal with.

It is proposed that exhibitors locally endeavor to arrive at conclusions as to fair, reasonable and workable protection and run schedules and that they call to their aid for this purpose the local conciliation committees, and if they are unable to arrive at definite conclusions on the subject. they present the questions to the National Board for conciliation. The findings and recommendations of this National Board will without doubt be regarded as so representative and so convincing that they will be freely accepted and followed.

It is not intended to compel any exhibitor or any distributor to resort either to the local or to the national conciliation boards, nor to bind any of them by contract to do so, but it is intended to make available to all parties earnestly and honestly seeking aid in working out their common problems, a machinery in which they can have confidence of a fair, impartial and understanding hearing and consideration.

In order that the National Board of Appeals and Conciliation shall not be unreasonably burdened with matters which should from their very nature be disposed of locally and in order that it may function with the best results, the National Board of Appeals should have final authority in itself to determine in any specific instance other than those recommended by any local arbitration board under the arbitration provisions of the optional standard license contract, whether it will or will not undertake to hear any complaints submitted to it upon appeal from any of the local committees. If this rule is followed, a majority of the National Board could decide to hear and attempt to conciliate any extraordinary or unforeseen controversy not possible of conciliation locally.

It must always be borne in mind that it is not intended that the National Board shall be concerned with the rentals of pictures which have been fixed in the negotiations which preceded the execution of any exhibition contract, nor attempt to raise or lower film rentals agreed upon by

In contract disputes, the procedure to be followed is specified in the optional arbitration clause (Clause Twentieth) of the Optional Standard License Agreement. Contract disputes not arising under an Optional Standard License Agreement as to which the exhibitor has elected to include the arbitration clause, will not be considered by the National Board of Appeals.

Personnel and Selection of Members

For the purpose of hearing appeals or conciliating complaints not involving a circuit of theaters affiliated with a producer or distributor, the National Board of Appeals shall consist of three unaffiliated exhibitors and three distributor representatives.

For the purpose of hearing appeals or conciliating complaints involving a circuit of theaters affiliated with a producer or distributor, the National Board of Appeals shall consist of either (a) four unaffiliated exhibitors, two distributor representatives and two affiliated circuit representatives; or (b) two unaffiliated exhibitors, one distributor representative and one affiliated circuit representative, and the action of a majority shall be the action of the National Board. It is important that both parties to the controversy have fair and equal representation of disinterested parties who are generally familiar with the business. Selection of unaffiliated exhibitor members can be made by the national exhibitor associations or by lot from a panel of unaffiliated exhibitors conveniently located.

Procedure for Referring Complaints for Conciliation to National Board

Before referring any matter to the National Board of Appeals, the proper local arbitration board, protection committee or conciliation committee must hear the complaint or controversy and shall first exhaust their efforts to determine, conciliate or dispose of the controversy. After this is done the local board or committee may then refer the complaint or controversy to the National Appeal Board for a hearing. The local board or committee will forward to the National Board, in connection with each case or complaint.

(1) A full and complete statement of their finding of facts.

(2) All of the evidence submitted to them in the case or controversy.

(3) Their recommendations for a settlement which was not accepted by the parties.

Each party to the controversy will be permitted to also submit their own statements of facts, arguments and recommendations.

In regard to protection and run controversies, it is contemplated that a local committee representative of all first and subsequent run exhibitors will be established in the city or territory where it is desired that an attempt be made to work out by conferences a protection and run schedule or arrangement that will be acceptable to all such exhibitors. If these negotiations become deadlocked and all reasonable efforts are exhausted to bring about a local argreement, then the questions in dispute may be referred to the National Board for conciliation by such local committee.

If a protection and run schedule is agreed upon by the local exhibitors and established in the territory, and in connection therewith a continuing zoning committee is established to hear and conciliate complaints in connection with the established protection and run plan, this continuing committee may submit any disputed question they are unable to agree upon to the National Board for conciliation after they have exhausted their efforts to effect an acceptable adjustment.

In regard to complaints of alleged unreasonable overbuying by a circuit or any other exhibitor, it is contemplated that a local Conciliation Committee on which there is a fair and equal representation of distributors and exhibitors should be established to whom complaints of unreasonable overbuying by any exhibitor may be referred for investigation and conciliation. If the local Conciliation Committee is unable to bring about an acceptable adjustment, and in their opinion there is merit to the complaint, then this Committee may refer the complaint to the National Board for conciliation, hearing and recommendation.

The National Board of Appeals and Conciliation will by its prestige and personnel give impartial consideration and arrive at fair and intelligent solutions of the more troublesome and irritating controversies and problems not possible to solve locally, as well as solve the unforeseen difficulties that may arise in the future. It should be considered as the industry's supreme court of self-regulation. Because of its standing in the industry, if properly conducted, its findings and recommendations will carry great influence.

The success of this program will depend obviously upon the earnestness and open-mindedness with which it is applied by the Industry. Being an innovation it cannot at the outset be presented in complete detailed form in all respects and many details of procedure may arise from time to time which must be determined as the occasion presents. The spirit and principle, however, underlying the proposals appear to be so fundamentally sound and fair that we have complete confidence in its successful outcome.

Exploitation Trends

By JACK HARROWER
Film Daily Editorial Staff

THE empty box-office till is no more. Coins jingle merrily in. Healthy looking greenbacks glide steadily, regularly and in fulsome quantities through the cashiers' fingers. The business has perked up and keeps going up, up and up into hitherto untouched areas of box-office prosperity. Each week trade papers shout the praises of the new pictures and the new attendance records they are making.

The spark of new business has given the Showman the courage to go after the old business as he used to. The exploitation support swept away in the horror days of 1929 is being rebuilt to its former strong foundation. Increasing grosses have inspired producers to gamble on bigger pictures. Bigger pictures backed by bigger exploitation are putting the business back on its feet and bringing the boom days to us once more.

Boom days force the spending of more money through all channels. Newspapers are thicker because they are loaded down with heavier advertising of department stores and national products. This state of affairs has forced the addition of many pages of editorial matter in each issue. That has opened the way to further film publicity space. Editors, ears to the ground for public demand, have boosted their Hollywood news services considerably, with the result that leading papers are today carrying more picture news than ever before. There has been a trend toward stories taking the public behind the scenes during the making of pictures.. Stills showing director and camera crews at work during actual shooting of scenes, are becoming increasingly popular newspaper copy.

The increasing business at theaters has automatically made available more advertising money, with the result that "smash" type advertising is now being done on all the major picture releases.

A ten-day teaser build-up in the ad columns is no longer an uncommon occurrence in key cities. Big space build-up ads three days before the opening are the usual, with a giant space blast to top the campaign on opening day.

In many cases the producer, anxious to insure his product for its full earning capacity, has shared this extra large size advertising with the exhibitor.

The producer has, in many cases, launched nation-wide 24 sheet campaign to build-up a picture title as far as one month in advance of its coming to a locality.

A bitter fight raged around radio in 1936. There always will be those who say radio helps and those who say radio hinders the picture business. Radio will continue to be harnessed by the picture business for distinct benefit to the box-office. Sponsors, realizing the tremendous national interest in pictures, are conceding more and more to the demands of producers in return for their cooperation on the air programs. The result is that 1937 will bring to the radio millions, program after program which, aside from the entertaining qualities, will act as glorified air trailers for motion picture bookings throughout the country. The pitfalls of radio insofar as picture exploitation is concerned have been realized. The new programs have gone a long way towards rectifying such mistakes. 1937 will see radio as a major influence on motion picture promotion from coast to coast with programs timed to break at times when they will do the exhibitor the most good.

Just as radio has borrowed picture stars, so too, pictures will borrow radio stars and with proper handling make them more universally popular and in greater demand.

As noted above, the terrific plugging of pictures has created more business. The greater business has brought bigger rentals to the producer, making it possible for him to make bigger pictures. Bigger pictures have stepped up the business some more. Bigger business has made possible more monies for exploitation. More monies for exploitation has widened the field for exhibitor showmanship and made possible the use of all the many ingenius promotion ideas he can think of. Even the direct-mail campaign is back as well as teaser posting, car cards, bus and numerous other items that had to be dispensed with during the lean depression days.

There's prosperity in the air and it's putting more money in the bank. 1937 will hit a new peak for theater exploitation and set all time records for theater business.

EXPLOITATION ★ ★ DIGEST ★ ★

The following compilation of exploitation material represents a selection of stunts that have proved their merit at the box-office. It has not been found necessary to change the original conception as inaugurated several years ago. The greater proportion of stunts have stood the test through the years. Each year are added a percentage of new material to keep pace with the changing times and current developments. Every idea has been selected because of its adaptability to a certain type of picture or to its universal publicity value as a straight theater promotion stunt. Many splendid stunts are omitted because they apply specifically to a very limited type of production, or to one particular picture. The main value of this Manual is to be found as a Quick-Digest List. It is merely offered as a foundation on which to build an exploitation campaign to select one or two stunts for the picture you are presenting.

The exhibitor is cautioned to bear in mind any local laws that prohibit prize contests or giveaway stunts, or such contests that may come under the classification of lotteries. This Manual will be found comparatively free of such.

To the advertising heads of all the major companies we acknowledge our indebtedness in helping us to compile this Manual and keep it up-to-date through the years. And more particularly for their specialized assistance in the exploitation field are we indebted to William Ferguson of M-G-M and Joe Weil of Universal. But to Epes Sargent and his unexcelled weekly exploitation department in "Variety" we owe the most, for each year he places his best material at our disposal.

THEATER FRONTS

The main idea in the use of your theater front is Variety. No matter how attractive your front may be, constant use without change will cause it to go "dead," so far as the passersby are concerned. Keep varying your fronts. After a lavish display, switch to a severe, simple display for contrast.

Sign-Savers

★ GETTING away from standard usage sometimes saves money. Most theaters when they want hanging banners use sign cloth or paper, but just as good work can be done on builders' sheathing or "rosin" paper neatly tacked to a frame of roofing lath. The paper is given a coat of oil paint of the desired tint, and lettered in with oil or watercolor, the latter where the sign is protected from storms. For marquee structures, corrugated paper braced on the back with ordinary plasterers' lath, will often serve as well and is much cheaper than compoboard and much easier to cut out. The design is done on oil paint and the back varnished with "ceiling" varnish, which can be had for less than a dollar a gallon. Such a structure can withstand a moderate amount of rain, and still save considerably on the cost.

Living Billboard

★ USE on a big musical or dance production. A 24-sheet is rigged on top of theater canopy, with a specially constructed stage. Girl students from a dance school do a routine at hourly intervals. In the evening the canopy is illuminated with spots from top and sides of building. With the girls in motion under the lights, you have a great street flash.

Wheel of Fortune

★ AN attractive bally for front of house. A wheel of fortune is rigged up, which patrons spin on the chance of winning free admission. The face of wheel contains pictures of 10 name players booked in pictures coming to your theater during next couple of months. If the wheel stops at picture of player currently at house, it calls for a free ducat. Odds of 150 to 1 make it a safe proposition for the theater.

Street Fort

★ A STREET stunt on a western pioneer or Indian picture. Secure from a cement dealer or contractor a pile of empty cement sacks. Stuff them with sand and build an improvised fort on the street. Mount a 37 mm. gun alongside. This is surefire for attracting attention of the adventurous male, young or old.

Ship Atmosphere

Feather Hat

★ USE only on exceptional pictures. A large compo board hat is placed atop the marquee. It is lettered "Another feather in our cap." A feather about four feet high, to match the size of the hat, gives the title of the big attraction. As the hat is sufficiently large to be seen two blocks away, it arouses the curiosity of pedestrians till they approach close enough to read the picture title. If this stunt is used on sure-fire shows, the public will get to recognize it as a guarantee of unusual entertainment.

Night Stunt

★ ONE of the best marquee flashes that has ever been used—the Winking Star. It is used with an attractive head of a popular femme star. Use a twinkle light in back of one eye of a cutout head of the star from the 24-sheet. Here is one of the finest of night stunts, that costs little and gets you plenty of comment.

Hidden Ballyhoo

★ A LIFE-SIZE cutout of the star is placed near front of lobby. It is mounted on beaverboard. Completely surrounding the cutout place a number of star stills. A microphone is placed in a spot where the speaker can watch persons looking at the display. As each person examines the display, he is treated to a talk on the highlights of the picture and the work of the star. The announcer in this way has a great opportunity to put over some clever selling talk.

Marquee Flash

★ FROM the producer's array of lithos secure a figure of the star at the wheel of an auto. Have this cut out and mounted on beaverboard and placed on top of marquee. The wheels of the car are constructed to actually operate, with the help of a small electric motor attached. Decorate the wheels with colored bulbs. As the wheels revolve, you have an animated and lighted display that will catch every eye up and down the street.

Patron Broadcasts

★ HOOK in with local broadcasting station, which spots a mike in front of the theater in the afternoon for a street broadcast. Theater manager can act as master of ceremonies, with a broadcast station announcer helping. Patrons leaving the theater after the picture's showing are asked to step up and give their opinions on the picture to "the listening thousands." Used only on a big and popular feature, the patron reports will be all blurbs.

Novelty Frames

★ IN small houses where expensive metal or wooden frames are too much for the budget, a set of frames can be made of boards with a bed of putty around the edges into which is set small pebbles. The foundation is silvered, with the stones gilded. The contrast is very rich and the cost small.

Pickets

★ TIMELY stunt for a big laugh special, with the wave of theater picketing now sweeping certain sections. The house ushers go on strike, and picket the theater with signs complaining that they had to "laugh too much at the feature." Here is one instance where the pickets are not only welcome but profitable. And a real novelty.

Finger Prints

★ ON a feature with the public enemy slant, blow-ups of fingerprints can be borrowed from the police files after they have been used for court testimony. These pictures are large enough to show clearly the difference in impressions. Display them on boards out front, with appropriate signs such as these: "This is the fingerprint of a man now serving 15 years for robbery. He left it behind on a windowsill, but it caught up with him." Another can read: "These are the fingerprints of identical twins, but they are vastly different. No two persons in the world have fingerprints alike."

Plane Signs

★ A HOME-MADE sign can be made distinctive through the use of two or more planes. For instance, a sightly banner consists of four layers, each separated from the other by blocks about two inches high. Top or front board carries the announcement, neatly lettered. Back are three other boards, each slightly larger than the previous one, and in contrasting colors. Lighting of all, save the topboard comes from one set of lamps set into a well, formed by cutting away the centers, so that the light strikes the edges. This is concealed by the front board.

Sign Tricks

★ CHIEF value of flitter is the scintillations of light, and sometimes a sign gets placed so that there is no movement and therefore no scintillations. One way to correct this is to set in a small electric bell with the gong removed and the hammer padded and so placed that it barely strikes the framework of the sign. This will give sufficient vibration to cause the flitter to quiver and so catch the eye. If the sign is on cloth, so much the better, but it will work even on wood. Hammer should be so set that it does not strike the sign from the rear but from the side, to give the desired lateral movement.

Novelty Sign

★ WHERE you have a big picture booked in, you can give it a long advanced plug with this one. A large sign on the marquee reads: "Thirty days to New Year's, but only 22 days to —." Add the title of picture. Numbers are of course changed daily, and the sign kept going till the day before the feature opens. You can plug special with this one before all the main holidays, such as Fourth of July, Thanksgiving, Christmas, etc.

Xmas Tree Opening

★ For the Christmas holidays, a tree on the marquee with an official opening is sure-fire. The tree should be screened from view until at a proper point in the exercises it is unveiled and then lighted. Hold dedication exercises about 45 minutes before show time. A local glee club can sing several carols, with a phonograph loudspeaker contributing not only the musical accompaniment, but some of the singing. Get the mayor or some local celeb to make a brief address, a pretty girl pulls the rip cord which unveils the tree, while someone pulls the switch that turns on the lights. If you have a kid club, you can use it to advantage in this stunt.

LOBBIES

Avoid overcrowding in your lobby attractions. What you are trying to create is the atmosphere of your current feature. Try to attain that result with simplicity and directness. The following ideas have been selected along these general lines.

Fan Stuff

★ DIG an old set of frames out of the stock room. Have them painted to match the general color scheme of the theater lounge. Make a list of the stars in the companies whose product you have booked. One frame is dedicated to each of the more prominent players, with the name neatly lettered and a photograph centered. The surrounding space is left for chat about the particular player. The items are taken from the fan magazines, also Variety, which always carries live, up-to-the-minute chatty items about the players. One of the girl ushers does the clipping in her spare time. Items are mounted on light cardboard, and thumbtacked to the frame, which is backed by soft pine, and covered with glass. This stunt gives the fans a chance to follow their favorites closely. In the center of the frame is a tablet announcing the player's coming pictures, with dates added as soon as they become known. Old items are replaced by newer ones, after the frame is filled, the guide being dated credit to the paper from which the item is clipped. When an item mentions two or more players, a neatly typewritten card repeats the item for the other frames. This Bulletin Board of Stars does not require more than three or four hours' work each week.

Ghost Mirror

★ ON a feature with the spook angle. Rig up in lobby a narrow box of the height of the average man. There is a hole at top to admit the patron's head. The box carries an invitation to look in the hole and see the ghost. The observer finds his face reflected in dimly lit full-length mirror, with a skeleton body reflected from head to feet from opposite side of box. This gives the observer something of a shock, since the face is undoubtedly his or hers, perched on the body of a skeleton. The people hovering around who have already seen the "ghost," will get a laugh out of the astonishment of the newcomers who try the peep-show.

Serial-Type Story

★ AN excellent stunt for the long and narrow type of lobby. Get a newspaper friend to write briefly the story of a coming big feature, but withholding the surprise finish. This is lettered on bristol board, which has a smoother finish than wall board. The running story is illustrated with scene stills and the star's head. This sign stretches across one side of the lobby. Display it for several days ahead of the run.

Time Schedule

★ WHERE a theater depends largely on drop-in trade, many hesitate because they do not want to walk in on the middle of the feature. If they know the shorts are running, they drop in to get settled and wait. A special lobby sign is placed on one of the easels. It is lettered: "We are now running short subjects. The main feature will start at —" and the time is chalked on a small blackboard space. A clock is just above. In double bill houses it might be a good plan to indicate which picture is on next. In both drop-in spots and nabes there is a feeling that there is only one good feature, and many wish to avoid the padder. Playing up the next appearance of the top feature will often help.

Special Board

★ HAVE on hand one large board of emergency purposes for special announcements. This board should have a yellow face, and the lettering in red. Thus it stands out above all the other boards in the lobby when used. Hold it in readiness for a quick talk to the lobby starter. It may be used for a clip from the newsreel that has more than ordinary local interest; or to announce a switch in bookings; a special short, etc. Only use this emergency board to announce something worth while. And keep the printed message short and concise. The regulars will come to look for it, knowing it is part of your system, and they will have confidence in its message.

Guessing Clock

★ WIND up an eight-day clock at noon, eight days before the opening. Set it at the extreme of slow speed and let the crowd figure just how much time the clock will lose in seven days. Name six prizes, each of a little less value, and award the top prize for the closest estimate made on the first day, and in decreasing value to the sixth day, no estimate being accepted the last day. The idea is that as time passes and the clock continues to lose, estimators can get a better line on how much time is being lost daily. Or else one prize can be given for the best estimate each day. Estimates should be in hours, minutes and seconds.

Local Critics

★ THIS is a good gag for a small town where everyone knows most everyone else. It is based on the psychology that most small towners like to see their names played up. So we have the "Criticism Board," which is used to mount the audience comment. A desk is installed in the lobby, with paper about 3x5 inches, with an invitation card over the top of the desk inviting patrons to write out a criticism. These are used on a permanent board with the best and a few of the worst picked out. Most of the slams will be written in an attempt to be funny and will not prove hurtful. All criticism must be signed with authentic names.

Movie Bait

★ AFTERNOON and night of change of show, have movies taken of folks entering your theater and advertise by slide that the films will be shown the following night as a part of the new program. This may require the services of a professional cameraman, or possibly the town's amateur movie man. Have only about 100 feet made during afternoon and, if you have enough lights out front or in your lobby, a like amount of footage at night. Have the print ready for the next afternoon and night showing and be sure to announce the stunt in a large frame in your lobby. This stunt has been tried out and proved to be a big business-getter.

Prison Stuff

★ FOR something different on a prison pix, try a display of prison newspapers. There are quite a few to be had. Get a couple of copies of each, and post them so they can be read. Requests for copies should be sent to the chaplain, with sufficient postage. Lively newspapers are published in the federal prisons in Atlanta, Ga., Leavenworth, Kan. There is the 'Star of Hope" at Sing Sing and the "New Day" at the Ohio State reformatory. Your local editor can suggest others, as these prison sheets have a wide circulation among the papers.

Summer Colors

★ IN order to secure a cool-looking lobby for the hot months, study your color combinations. Try a bright green on a glossy white ground for your signs. Dress up your lobby with a complete suit of signs in this combination and you can ease up on the air conditioner, for the place will look so cool. There is a combination of a light purple, just off the lilac, and a pea green that will give more delicate effects, if a quieter lobby is desired. Deep blue on a greenish light blue can be made to suggest an icy background, and light blue letters against a very faint pink is another good combination that does not heat up. Strong reds and yellows should be omitted from lobby displays until the snow flies. Another inviting stunt is to drop the cross lobby banner down to within eight feet of the floor and light from behind with plenty of rose-colored bulbs. If you use spots, use steel, light blue and pink mediums and lay off the strong purples and reds.

Comedy Flash

★ HERE is a simple flash display that will attract all eyes. Rig up bedroom scene, with single bed, in which is a life-size figure of a woman under the sheets. Use on a coming comedy attraction. Sign alongside bed reads: "I'm getting all the rest I can now, so I'll have strength to laugh at (picture) coming here (date)."

Miniature Stage

★ THIS can be made a permanent feature, with a miniature stage on which is made a reproduction of a scene from the coming week's attraction. It is not always a simple matter to handle, but it is a business-getter, and therefore well worth the trouble. People will form the habit of dropping in to see what the new miniature each week indicates.

Cool Lobbies

Summer Trellis

★ THE most grateful appeal for your lobby for the hot months is the trellis, particularly in the south. Best trellises are white, with green trim, and real or artificial vines. Whichever is used, the leaves should be kept clean and dusted at least once a day. Outline of the trellis should be such that it does not block off any exit, the trellis coming down the sides. It's worth the extra trouble to make an overhead trellis for the lobby ceiling and to run it down the side and back walls. Cool lighting should be installed instead of hot ambers, reds and gold. Green is good.

but about three white bulbs should be used to each green, unless the green is very light.

Safe-Crackers

★ GOOD for any theater catering to the action trade and the youngsters, when playing a crime picture. Promote a safe from some store. Place it at lobby front facing the street. Place a sign on it offering cash prize to anyone who can open it. Nearly every kid in town will try it, and a lot of the elders. It will direct a lot of interest to the front of your house.

Foreign Players

★ A NEAT stunt to sell the important foreign film star who is little known to your audience. It applies specially to the present flood of worthy British pictures with some good players featured. Take a news story out of the pressbook, or better still, a bona fide news story that the home office of the distributor can supply from a newspaper write-up. Make a blowup of the story, and spot it on a lobby board near the box-office.

Special Lobby Displays

★ WHERE you are averse to using lithos in your lobby display because it tends to cheapen, still there are exceptions. Parts of many one-sheets would look well if cut out and mounted on card, with the lettering put in by hand. They might look even better if mounted on board, then cut out and the edge stained red or silvered. This will even go for three-sheets, if they are well done. Still more can be done in the way of cutouts with the better type pressbooks where the color printing is ahead of anything offered by the company for accessory use. Sometimes the front and back covers of such pressbooks offer better art than the average theater sign room can supply. And it doesn't cost anything except the trouble of using scissors and paste. A good sign man can often save his house money by using his imagination more and his paint brush less.

Cast Boards

★ Something that will be appreciated by a majority of your patrons is the Cast Board. It is made to fit one of the lobby frames, and gives the cast of the current showing. Most patrons cannot remember the names, particularly when they are flashed only before the showings. They will stop and study out the who's who, and if there is mention of the underline, they'll get that idea too. This is not worth much unless it is used regularly, and patrons get the habit of stopping to glance over it on the way out.

Summer Fireplace

★ Set up a fireplace in the lobby during the hot spell, with an electrical coal effect. Set it in a darkened corner of the lobby with a one-sheet against the backing. Those who investigate this winter utility in the hot season are greeted with a breeze from the cooling plant. The cool fire will be talked about in town. Every stranger is run up against the gag, and the word-of-mouth advertising is very effective. The only cost is the cold air. You can promote a coal dealer to pay for the installation in return for a reminder that now is the time to lay in the winter coal.

Door of Curiosity

★ Pick up a door and frame at the local housewrecking yard. Place at side wall of lobby. Back of the door place a board with sales copy. Scores of people will open the door, in accordance with a lettered invitation: "To see the title of next week's show, open the door." Door has a spring to hold it closed.

Weighing Machine

★ Here is a good variation on the coin operated device for a lobby attractor without the usual procedure of throwing off the coin control. Have the weighing machine issue a specially prepared card on which is stamped the proper weight and a non-committal fortune which ends with a prophecy that the holder will see the coming attraction. Instead of tricking the scale, have a uniformed attendant stand beside the machine and insert a coin as each person steps on the scale platform. This gives the stunt a lot of swank.

Attractive Points

★ Every theater manager knows that the most effective billing for coming attractions is to place it on the lobby mirrors, for this is the spot that invariably attracts the women. In like manner the men can be interested. Place cigar lighters at either side of the lobby, placed right in the center of announcements for the next attraction. While the men pause to light up on the way out, they are sure to learn all about the new feature. A trial for a few weeks will easily prove its worth.

Crazy Week

★ This method can be used on occasions to jazz up house fronts and gather a little extra business. Some exhibitors work it with a stage show by booking in films that are out of the ordinary and then going lunatic in the lobby. One theater has as lobby exhibits the old "invisible goldfish," the goose that laid the golden eggs and similar fooleries. Another had all the posters upside down or on a slant, with the back of the box-office to the street and a clown to officiously conduct the purchaser from the ticket window to the doorman if the crowd was coming slowly. It is just another case of suggesting novelty by a different sort of lobby.

BALLYHOOS

The ballyhoo stunts outlined in this section are necessarily of a general character. But they have been chosen with the thought that they are adaptable to a variety of pictures. Of course, every showman knows that certain attractions contain the suggestion for a brand new ballyhoo never before done. He should constantly analyze his coming features to grab these "naturals."

Perambulating Pugs

★ You can have the town gaping with this ballyhoo. An open car drives up to a street corner, and a couple of youths in bath robes jump out. The car driver rings a gong and the youths toss off the robes, emerge in ring togs, and put on a fast round of fisticuffs. Then the gong rings again, and the driver unfurls a banner advertising the current or coming attraction, which of course is concerned with the prize-ring. Then the car moves on to another busy corner. A couple of boys on the theater staff can play the fighting roles, and they will find it a lot of fun.

For a Thriller

★ For a thrill-shocker. Have a nurse in attendance. She works with a "plant," who faints at each performance. The "casualty" is taken from the theater front in an ambulance, in full view of the lines waiting to go in. The plant gets a ride of a few blocks, and then walks back to do the act all over at the next showing. A supplementary bally is to promote aspirin sample packages from manufacturer to be handed out on the streets, with this printed message on the package: "Bring this when you see ——— at the ———. You'll need it."

Personality Girl

★ With the coming of summer, bathing pools cut into the entertainment allowance of the average theatergoer, but it is sometimes possible to use the pool to advertise the theater very profitably. Some theaters maintain a Personality Girl at the pool to wear a lettered bathing suit, help coach novices and perform similar services. A smart girl can very easily earn her salary through the contacts she makes for the house. It is generally possible to get some high school girl during her vacation period. Pools will do a lot of cooperative work if the theater gives a break.

Fall Openings

★ Jazzing things up is the essence of showmanship, and wise managers plan something special to mark the opening of the fall season. The well planned civic event with a parade can create town-wide interest. There will be a parade of industrial floats, autos containing the entrants in a star resemblance contest to be decided at the theater and programs listing the coming attractions. The mayor will speak, and the governor will send a letter of congratulation at the urge of his party leader in the town. Where a civic parade is not possible, it is practical to send out a house parade. This is better in a small town if the event can be made of sufficient importance to draw them in from the country. The merchants are persuaded to offer special bargains and to circularize the country trade.

Private Home

★ A very unusual tie-up, and consequently an eye-arrester if it can be negotiated. Arrange with the owner of some private residence on a busy thoroughfare to place a lighted display in the front yard. If it has never been done in your town, it will create all kinds of comment, both from local and touring motorists. This means virtually a 24-sheet spotted to catch the heaviest traffic away from a business corner. There is no other advertising to detract from it.

Wrecked Car

★ Timely on a feature with a racing car theme. Get police permission to feature a wrecked car, if possible one that has recently figured in a local sensation. Placard the car: "Drive carefully. You may be next." Add the theater advertising. The car should be displayed in a roped arena in the center of town for advance week, and parked at the theater for the run. The newspapers can give this a boost by hammering on the safety angle.

Play Ball

★ The time-honored stunt of dropping a baseball from a building at the opening of the local season. The best way to handle this stunt in order to prevent someone from getting hurt, ih to arrange to toss the balls to the players in the regular or semi-pro nines, with the general crowd merely getting the spectacle for attendance. Space in front of the building should be roped off, not only to give the players a chance, but to keep spectators out of the danger area.

Traveling Jazz

★ With the assistance of five high school boys musically inclined, this stunt gets over attractively. They team up as a jazz band, consisting of a piano, drums, clarinet, trombone and sax or cornet. A Ford truck can be gotten from the dealer in return for a banner on the truck. The music store furnishes one of those miniature pianos. The truck parks occasionally in front of the music store. If the attraction has a musical number, they feature this in their repertoire. During selling hours, the truck plays in front of the theater. Easy to enlist the boys for this, as they play after school hours, and get passes for the show.

Picture Float

★ A motor truck is secured to carry a float ballyhooing a scene from your coming feature. The scene can be duplicated with a few props and the work of a carpenter. A man and girl are used to pose the scene the same as the featured players do it. The stunt can be adapted to a variety of subjects, and only requires a little ingenuity to make it an outstanding ballyhoo. And the expense can be kept nominal.

Newspaper Girl

★ One of the stunts that never fails to attract attention. Have a girl dressed in a costume composed of newspaper headlines, with all of the heads bearing some reference to your feature, whether it be scandal, society, mystery, etc. The newspaper clippings are mounted on a cloth foundation, and the ballyhoo more than shouts the idea you are trying to get over. Sprinkle a few adds for the attraction in among the headlines. The girl can wear a small white mask, which emphasizes the novelty.

Beach Competition

★ If you want to give the summer beaches something to think about, hire a sound-truck, equipped with good amplifiers, to visit each beach and stay for about an hour or so. During the stay, records are played and in between records, announcement is made of the films playing your house. When a musical is scheduled, play the numbers from the picture and announce them as such. Few beaches provide music for the swimmers and many couples like to dance on the beach. Do this on Sundays and watch the jump in Monday and Tuesday business. As a variation, play some old-time records for community singing.

For Men Only

★ A teaser gag that never fails to click. It can be used on any strong attraction with a big appeal for the women. A girl is appropriately dressed in a costume that fits in with the atmosphere of the picture. She travels the main thoroughfares, with a small box attached to a wide ribbon strung over her shoulder. She passes out envelopes to the men, on which is printed: "For Men Only." Inserted slip reads: "Be sure and take HER to see (picture, theater, play date). It's the kind of motion picture all women adore." This stunt arouses the curiosity of the women, as the girl ballyhooer can be very mysterious about just selecting the men to hand them the envelopes.

Candid Cameraman

★ This hits the femme vanity angle. The candid cameraman stunt is pulled on as many girls and women as you care to photograph. Caught on the street of course, the women shoppers between 16 and 30 are lensed by the cameraman. He hands them prepared postcard for their name and address, which when mailed to the theater brings them their photo, which is sent to them with the compliments of the star in your current attraction. This lends the stunt a personal touch. The angle here is that the women show the pix to their friends, with resultant advertising for the feature.

Patron Pictures

★ When the crowds are coming in on a pop feature, you can use this to advantage. A local cameraman takes a movie of the crowd in the lobby around 7:30. He rushes it through the works, and has it ready for screen showing the next evening. You may be able to find some 16 m.m. camera enthusiast who has his own developing outfit. This is good only for the smaller houses, where the projection can be hit up to a 15-foot picture. Where the stunt goes over big, you can run the local film the following week, announcing that you are showing it again "in response to the tremendous demand." It will bring in the same people and their friends who want to see them on the screen.

Curiosity-Builders

★ Learn to capitalize on natural human curiosity. One outstanding example is the undated 24-sheet which is permitted to stay up while people wonder to which house it is coming. Another is the trick painted sign. Put in a few letters at a time, with the letters being scattered about so that the clue to the title is kept obscure as long as possible.

Perambulators

★ Always effective at the summer resorts, the old perambulator will get attention for your picture. The trick auto is the best, and is easy to construct. Use the stripped chasis of an old car on which to build a temporary framework. The locomotive is standard stuff, as well as the land ship. The latter can be anything from a Chinese junk to a submarine. The structure can be compo board, but easier construction can be had with cloth and split bamboo, heavy wire or split saplings. These are bent into the required framework, and covered with cloth. Mail order houses frequently offer remnants of sheetings, and dry goods jobbers may have a bolt or two of some brand no longer stocked. Fire sales of fabric damaged by smoke and water are particularly good, as the cloth must be painted over.

▪ TIE-UPS ▪

Every year the national tie-ups seem to grow more numerous and important. The major producers and distributors are more and more concentrating on the nation-wide hookups. You in turn can tie in with your local dealers, and cash in on the national publicity already created.

Radio Broadcasts

★ Straight continuities on pictures for radio broadcasts are in disfavor in many sections where the local station airs the 'to-be-continued' scripts supplied by the home offices. Lots of dial listeners object to being strung along and then being told to go to the theater to see how it all winds up. Here is a plan that avoids getting folks disgruntled. The announcer opens with a brief newscast and then adds that he will tell about the coming show at the Strand. There is a sound effect of getting a number, this routine being varied to avoid monotony, and then the manager comes in to tell about the new show in answer to "What have you got next week, Henry?" Every effort is made to keep the stuff informal and chatty, with sidelights on production to lighten the tale. No effort is made to more than hint at the story, but the facts as to stars, production angles and such are played up, and sound much better over the air than the too frequently stilted dialoging of the play. It is done from a srcipt, to provide for the announcer's break-ins, but it is not as hard to write as it might seem. The manager merely talks his idea of the picture to the stenog and she breaks in with the questions. The result is an intimate appeal that does not sound like advertising and consequently is much less apt to be resented. The manager knows his coming attractions, and so clips news about the stories during production and thus is able to provide interesting sidelights.

Garage Hook-up

★ The garage man builds several boards along a tourist highway with copy like this: "Stop at the Pelham garage for check-up or minor repairs. Drive your car into the garage, drop into the cool Pastine theater to see———, and your car will be ready and waiting at the door when you have finished the show." Drivers swing their car into the garage, receive a check and pay the charges. They go to the theater nearby, and when they come out, the car is parked alongside with a boy from the garage waiting to turn the car over to the check holder. The theater has the signs painted, and supplies for each change of bill a strip where the blank space occurs in the board, naming the current feature.

Votes for Women

★ In connection with a feature that glorifies the business girl. Conduct a Secretary Contest on a tie-up with a store which promises as a prize to outfit the girl in some clothes. The gag is that it takes a ticket at the theater to get a vote, which results in a lot of gents being high-pressured by some good looking business girls. Various business offices will put up candidates, and go to town trying to cop the prize for their entry.

Lucky Number Throwaways

★ An attractive throwaway is placed with all deliveries of a local cleaning house. The throwaway splits the publicity fifty-fifty with the cleaners, and the latter delivers the publicity along wtih suits, coats and dresses, assuring city-wide coverage. To give it a kick, a certain proportion of Lucky Numbers are issued with the throwaways. Numbers that correspond with arbitrary selection posted in the lobby secure free tickets.

Early Bird Premiums

★ A plan for filling house at early matinees and just before the change of price in the evening. To the first hundred ladies, with or without escorts, coming to the theater at the first morning show, the ushers present a bottle of lotion for the hands, nicely put up and enclosed in a notice of coming attractions. At the early evening show is presented to the first early hundred a smart appearing bottle of perfume. Neither of these inducements must be cheap looking. Your druggist can put you in contact with manufacturers who might cooperate.

Santa Claus Stunt

★ Several theaters in town can work together on this Christmas stunt. It is worked in conjunction with a local department store's holiday parade. The children in the parade march from the department store to the railroad station. At the station, Santa Claus, accompanied by Mickey Mouse, and perhaps a girl who has won a Shirley Temple likeness contest, board a float, and the parade heads back to the various theaters, where a morning show is given for the children. They are admitted free under a tie-up with the department store.

Vocal Contest

★ This stunt fits in nicely on musical features. Three or four weeks before the showing, the music store advertises a contest for the best singing of any selected number, from the songs listed. Eliminations are made by audition. The best dozen singers enter the finale, which can be in the store, the theater lobby or on the stage.

Best Pupils

★ A regular Monday stunt for a theater in large city. Each of the city's schools selects each week one pupil whose work the previous week has been outstanding. These, with their parents, are guests of the theater, with the winners called to the stage to be presented to the audience. Small gifts can be promoted with dealers to be given each prize pupil.

Soda Fountains

★ Here is a good stunt for small towns and neighborhoods, tied in with a popular soda fountain. It is a combination ticket good for a certain number of sodas, fashioned after the style of a meal ticket with punch spaces for each nickel, to permit a choice ordering. The ticket is sold at face value by the soda fountain. When all of the holes are punched, it is good for one admision to the theater. An add for your theater is carried in the center of the ticket.

Supper Guests

★ If you have a nearby restaurant that is trying to push the idea to eat after your show, this one is made to order. Every night for a period of time the restaurant supplies the theater manager with five pairs of orders for limited eats. These are handed out to couples as they leave the lobby. Distribution is made quietly, as if the manager were favoring certain patrons with the gift. It carries the impression of a personal courtesy.

Barn Dance

★ This fits into the scheme of the rural theater. It is a competitive barn dance for the octet doing the smoothest performance of the old fashioned quadrille. Pit a local eight against an imported outfit from a nearby town. You'll pack 'em in with this one on a Sunday night. You can exhaust the neighboring territories with competing teams. The band can be promoted. And no reason why the prizes can't be promoted, too. Winning team is established by applause. Prizes go to the best two couples in that team. Worked up with an appeal to local feeling, this should be good for every-other-week all winter.

Personality Contest

★ A variation on the usual hairdressing contest. The competitors are not asked to imitate the star's hairdress, but are judged on the basis of the hair arrangement that best expresses their personality, as does that of the star in the picture. A natural for the beauty shops, who give it window display. The contest is judged on your stage, with the hairdressers acting as judges.

Ad-Swap

★ Arrange with merchants for ad space in the borders of their newspaper ads in return for a screen campaign on "trade at home" movement. Stores run house and current play title instead of usual border, and spread your ad all over the paper. Your theater pays for the slides, and merchants buy the newspaper space. A fair swap.

High School

★ On the occasion of the local high school playing an out-of-town game, you can sponsor a fund raised by the merchants to hire buses to the players and the rooters to the game. Divided up among several stores, the cost is nominal, and the high school students will appreciate it. The stunt is best worked during the football season, when local enthusiasm runs high. The buses start from your theater, and you might finish with a football party at your house after the game.

Another Raffles

★ A variation of the Raffles stunt is to first tie up with a newspaper so that the readers will be notified each day just where Raffles or Mr. and Mrs. Raffles will appear. Tell the costumes they will wear but in smaller communities be careful not to be too explicit regarding the clothes. Tie-up with bus lines having the fugitives riding to a certain out-of-town community during any given 24 hours on a certain bus. Tie-up with a department store, having Raffles make a certain purchase during the day or week. Think out angles for yourself. It can be worked out at little expense and with added profits.

City Day

★ Have the city officials and merchants association join together in a special day named for your town to boost prosperity. Every merchant in town joins by offering attractive reasons why the citizens should loosen up and buy. Trolleys and buses give free rides to shopping districts during certain hours. Leading garages and parking spaces give free parking to anyone presenting a sales slip from any store. The telephone company phones housewives to remind them of bargain day. Taxi companies cut a flat 25 cents from anywhere in city limits to center. Leading restaurants cut the price on their luncheon menus. The theater can get in on this one to advantage in many ways, especially if you take a lead in promoting the gala day.

Auto Plug

★ A strong tie-in with local auto dealer on the occasion of the new car model arriving in town. Can be effectively used only on a picture whose title lends itself to the stunt, such as "The Whole Town's Talking." The public is invited to submit short stories on the outstanding features of the new model. No strings or limitations. Any body of age is eligible. Stories are deposited in a receptacle in theater lobby. Prize is one of the new cars for the most effective plug. Award is made from stage on closing night of picture. Advertise it heavily with dealer co-op in newspapers and with throwaways.

Baby Photos

★ A nifty variation on the photographic baby contest. A grand stunt to pull in summer to offset the heat hoodoo. A local photographer is hooked up to make one print and one lantern slide of all entrants sent him by the theater. The slides are exhibited in batches of 10 for a 10-week period, with votes cast for a winner of each week's contest. On the eleventh week the winners of the ten contests are again voted for the grand prize. The cost to you is merely for the ballots, since the photographer works free for the sales he makes to parents.

Bridge Parties

★ Secure list of bridge parties for three days prior to your opening. A wire is sent to each hostess, reading along these lines: "It is our pleasure to give you an additional prize, two guest tickets to see (name of attraction) at the (theater), which we think is one of the finest pictures of the year. We sincerely hope that the winner enjoys the entertainment as they did winning your prize. Please present this telegram at the ticket window for admittance." Here is an idea that can be applied to many features.

Musical Films

★ Hook this one up with a night spot or restaurant featuring a dance band. A "lucky dance" is run every evening in which guest tickets or autographed photos of the star are given to the winners. An attractive easel in the lobby of the restaurant hits the dine-and-dance patrons coming and going. In addition, the dance band plays hit numbers from your musical attraction. The band leader or master-of-ceremonies can clinch the sale by making an announcement of the picture from the floor.

Radio Talent

★ Co-operate with local broadcasting station in conducting an Amateur Contest. The stunt should be set to run for about six weeks to build it up properly, with plugs of the theater at each program. The final winner is to be selected by judges picked from the town's most prominent people, and is given an engagement to appear on the stage of theater. Properly handled, the station will soon have a capacity list of entrants.

Doll Dressing

★ Tie up with a store selling thread, needles and material so that you can stage a doll dressing contest for girls. Have a woman from the store attend the contest and aid the girls in planning the costumes. Suitable gifts can be given the winners. This can be staged for personal wear, and if you do, contact sewing circles and teachers. Parents will like this stunt and will co-operate. The stunt should be staged on a Saturday morning and you can invite all contestants to stay for the show.

Toy Passes

★ This should be staged shortly before Christmas. Admit free all children bringing a toy to a certain matinee. The toys to be distributed to the poor, or to children in hospitals. Business should show a gain as an adult will accompany every child to your theater. This stunt builds good-will over a heavy territory and should result in a wealth of newspaper advertising. Do not admit adults with toys. The stunt is only for children.

Sports Contests

★ Watch the athletic schedule of the Y.M.C.A. and other organizations in your town. Make arrangements with the supervisors, and donate a cup to the winning team of some outstanding meet. The trophy will of course be presented from the stage of your theater on a given night. Newspapers should give you plenty of breaks on the stunt. Place your display cards regarding the contest and theater prize, at the association headquarters and at all hotels. This is good for swimming, basketball, baseball, football, ping-pong, handball and many other sports.

Radio Names

★ Learn from your local radio station the name of some advertiser who supports a daily program. Then tie-up with the merchant so that mention of your picture is made at each broadcast and the names of six townspeople, selected at random, are read over the radio. These people are to receive one pass each for your theater. The gag should interest the merchant as it assures him of more listeners, and of folks who will listen to his advertising talk because they know that the theater announcement will be somewhere in the program.

Cooking School

★ Every morning for a week hold a cooking school at your theater. For the instructress have a teacher from a local school. Tie up with local merchants for use of nationally advertised brands of foodstuffs and ingredients. Free admission to the school and a display of the results as the pay-off. Make the stunt for unmarried girls only. If you want to add comedy to the gag, have the cakes, etc. judged by unmarried men.

WINDOW DISPLAYS

The same situation that applies to tie-ups also makes the window displays a fertile field for the live showman. The nation's leading manufacturers are alive to the importance of picture tie-ups. That means the windows of the local dealers selling the nationally advertised goods are likewise at your command. Go after them with the following stunts.

Mirror Reflection

★ Often a simple stunt can be raised to greater proportions by some little trick. Instead of a theater announcement card placed in a shop window, try tricking it up. Set a mirror at an angle, and fasten the card above it so it will be reflected into the glass, but naturally in reverse. Passersby who would not give a single look to the straight card, will stand in front of the glass to try and read the text backward. This is just playing up a natural mental kink.

Toy Train

★ The toy train in motion never fails to line up the crowds. Here is a new slant. A toy electric train is running through a miniature scene, entering and emerging from tunnel entrances at the rear. Back of the tunnel is boxed in with a semi-circular structure that carries out the idea that the train merely rounds a curve to come out on the other side. Over the display is a big sign reading: "Watch the train change signs." This concentrates attention on the sign, which practically covers the train. One time it advertises the top feature and then the second attraction, but there seems to be no way in which the change can be effected. People watch and watch, but the alteration is uninterrupted. The answer is that there are two trains. When one runs into the tunnel entrance, instead of swinging around the curve it runs over an extension track, while the second train, bearing the other sign, emerges from the tunnel mouth. The trackage is just sufficiently long to detain the first train until the second has made its exit. Extra trackage runs through the rear of the window and into the empty store, but the curved housing suggests there is no way out.

Impersonators

★ The Wild West cycle gives a chance for staging a cowboy and Indian parade, but with an added kick. Since most play suits the kids wear look alike, coming as they do from the same stores, it is a safe plan to base the prizes on the accessories used, such as bows and arrows, belts, holsters and the like. Stipulation should be made that they be homemade. The best set-ups are given display in a store window, following the awards, with the stuff going back to the owners after display. To dress up the window, there is always a chance for a loan exhibit of old-time Western curios. Suitable ticket prizes to the donors.

Shadow-Box Theater

★ A semi-permanent window display can be secured with a miniature shadow-box theater. The gadget is constructed so that appropriate tie-ups for each week's film may be inserted. It calls for a little ingenuity and mechanical skill in making the toy figures or dressing tiny dolls appropriately to simulate the characters in the film. Properly worked up, it is sure-fire as an attention-getter.

Fish Illusion

★ One of the crowd-stopping window stunts is the Phantom Fish Globe. The window display consists of a screen of fairly large size in the center of which is a fish globe set snugly into an opening and not filled with water. At intervals the globe suddenly becomes populated with goldfish which as suddenly vanish again. A slight flicker of the lights suggests an illusion of some sort, but without giving much of a clue. The trick is based on the old Galatea effect, in which a light is turned on and off a similar globe back of the screen, backed by a black velvet "tent," or enclosure. The other part of the apparatus is a sheet of polished glass, also backed by black velvet. This is directly behind the globe, but is set at such an angle that when the light is on the hidden globe it will be reflected into the eyes of the spectators focused on the visible globe. When the light is on the hidden globe, which should be slightly larger than the visible one, the empty visible globe suddenly becomes apparently filled with water in which fish are swimming. Some nice adjustment is required before the gag is exactly right, but once the glass is set in its proper relation to the two globes, the rest is easy.

Freak Window

★ The freak window will get the attention if it has the human interest slant. Here is a pip for a picture with the kid slant. Two or three small boys are seated at a table loaded down with pies and cakes. The kids are told to wade in and help themselves. The average will be about two pies and a big gob of cake, and the average kid will then call it a day. Can be used advantageously with a restaurant touting a new dish. Or in any store for a Thanksgiving special. Just a matter of being a little different and making people talk, but sometimes a freak will draw more money than straight stunts possibly could.

Star Model

★ If you can make this one authentic by securing from the studio the gown worn by the star in her current picture, then it is perfect. Otherwise the stunt can be worked with the replica of the gown. You secure a girl whose proportions approximate that of the star, to do the modelling. This should be good for a nice newspaper break with photographs of the star wearing the gown, and the local model alongside for the comparison purposes of the femme readers. A natural for the fashion page, and the store naturally comes in for a big slice of publicity.

For Housewives

★ Good for the small town where the housewives go in for the home-made preserves. Entries consist of two glasses of jelly, two of jam and two marmalades. Top prize should be cash, with three smaller prizes. Looks like purely a house event, but if you promote the prize money from the grocers they can be sold on the impetus that will be given to the sugar sales. The stores giving windows will carry this stunt through the canning season with jelly glasses, jars, rubber rings, labels and canning equipment. Space is of course provided for a still or of the current picture, changed with each bill.

Idle Labor

★ Utilizing idle labor on the local unemployment list is timely, especially where the town has a stream of unemployed tourists hoofing across the country. One theater manager has a standing arrangement with the relief committee to tip him off on prospects. They sent him an engraver, who was promptly put to work writing on the inside of a store window. To him writing in reverse was as easy as the normal way, but it was a great card to the man in the street, who watched sales messages being scribbled and erased with a wet sponge. Used soap pencils. Another man was a plastic worker who dug up some modelling clay and made relief signs all day for a $5 bill. Here are two naturals for any window display.

Local Sports

★ Here is a new baseball slant that can go anywhere. Hang up gloves for the local player making the most hits for the week, displayed in the window of the sports store. Another glove can go to the pitcher with the highest number of scoreless innings to his credit.

Nerve Tonics

★ When playing a chiller, secure a window display of nerve tonics. Get all the various brands—and the market is filled with them. The druggest can easily fill his window. The card gets over the suggestion that the picture carries so many chills that it would be a good idea to brace up before attending your theatre. Swell for a string of chain stores, but the one-window play in a small town is all you need.

New Arrivals

★ This one can run indefinitely in any furniture store window. Each week the theatre obtains from the local bureau of vital statistics the names of all babies born the previous week. Each week the name of one child is selected for display on a cradle in the window. The card advises that the parents can obtain passes to the theatre good any time within the next three months. Most of the parents will visit the store while they are still cradle-minded, and the dealer cops in sales.

Miniatures

★ You can be set for a neat window display any time on a moment's notice if you will start now to collect the necessaries, as follows: Watch the toy shops and specialty stores for miniatures. Model houses will be the foundation for your miniature set. Be on the lookout all the time for tiny furniture and animals. Build up a stock and be ready. Make up trees and fence rails, keep some sand handy, and for a lake you can have a tinpan painted sand color around the rim and a greenish blue below the water level. It is possible with this set-up to work out an idea for almost any outdoor picture. Often a single scene like this in a window will get you more than a dozen big stands elsewhere. A switch to get day and and night lighting effect is highly desirable. You can pull this several times a year, for the public never seems to tire of miniature displays.

Display Cards

★ Arrange with a local art or picture framing store to display in the store window, display cards made by local amateurs. The previous week, run a slide on your screen announcing the contest which should be for art work on the following week's attraction or a coming attraction. Amateur artists are told to put their ideas of the proper art display on 20 x 40 cards. Give prizes.

The Magic Sign

★ This one will catch the eye of every passer-by. Secure an empty store with a deep show window. Screen the window so that the rear is in darkness. Adjust a sign with the title of your coming attraction painted in red flitter on a black background. Entire display should be lighted by a single baby spot from the front. Before the spot put a color wheel with alternate mediums of red and green revolved by a small motor. When the green spot hits the sign the lettering will disappear since the green and red make an approximate black. With the red spot the lettering will show up brightly. This can be elaborated upon by two sets of letters, in red and green, which alternately appear and disappear. It isn't complicated and it IS effective.

Hope Chest

★ This is a swell merchant tie-up in addition to being an excellent business getter. Display in your lobby a handsome hope chest with a card telling the patrons that eight merchants are to place some wedding present in the chest before the Saturday night performance. No one knows, not even the manager, what the gifts will be. The merchants do not know what each other will supply. To the person making the correct guess, free tickets should be given. Cards are given out for guesses at the theatre and at each merchant's establishment. This not only brings the people to the theater but sends them to the stores to look over the most likely articles that will be selected in the hope chest.

Book Lovers

★ Best books of the week come in for a lot of publicity in this one which is run in the lobby of your theater. Local book store supplies a list of the new books in stock with clippings from advance announcements and a copy of the jacket blurb. Post this material in the foyer. The best letter to the theatre telling why they desire a certain book is good for a prize which may be a pass to the house and a 10 per cent discount on the purchase of the book. Post the best letters in the bookstore window, not forgetting to include your own theater plug. Winner may receive a book free and the runners-up the discount.

Fish Bowl

★ You can offer anything from ten tickets to a house and lot as the prize for this one. They'll never catch on and at the same time you'll cash in with a barrel of good publicity. Many merchants would be glad to have a window attraction like this. Place a large aquarium in the window with about a dozen fish of various sizes. Near one end of the tank have a wooden hoop about three inches in diameter. The stunt is, that anyone seeing a fish swim through the hoop gets the prize. Surround the tank with your theater display or stills. The fish CAN'T swim through the hoop because a circular piece of glass, possibly taken from the face of an alarm clock, prevents them. The glass is securely fastened in the hoop which should be of wood. Wait till you see the growd this one gathers.

Photo Gag

★ Here's a variation of the old photograph gag. Secure a prominent store window and in it place a well formed and good looking girl in a white bathing suit. The girl takes photographs of those looking in the window. State in your card that five pictures out of every hundred taken will be displayed in the theater lobby. Those finding themselves in the photographs will enter the theater free. In reality she only takes about 24 pictures during the day. The other snaps are with an empty camera.

Animal Crackers

★ You're sure to play a number of adventure and wild animal pictures during the season. For one stunt try this out. Cut a piece of compo board to fit one of your large frames. Paint it a deep black. Then glue to the board as many animal crackers as it will hold. The crackers must first be prepared in this fashion. Shellac the back of each cracker so that it will hold the glue. Then silver paint and display side of each cracker. No one will guess that the display came from the grocery store. The folks will do doubt ask where these shiny little animal toys may be secured, but don't let on. Say that you received the display from New York. This frame may be used in a local store window or in a hotel lobby.

Airplane Models

★ Cash in on the popularity of airplane travel and the interest in airplane model building. Tie-up with a department store and display a number of models made by amateurs. Copy in the window should read that the winning display will be exhibited in the lobby of your theatre and that free passes will be given the victors. Have as judges some local aviator and the head of the toy department of the store. Be sure to mention that each model will be returned to its owner, at the end of the contest. This gives the merchant a chance to not only display his other toys in the window but the children will enter the store to secure the return of their model.

Sports Window

★ Many store owners should be glad to cooperate with you on this one. It is to be used in advance and during the showing of any outdoor picture. The store window is dressed to represent an outdoor camping ground, a fish stream or the sidelines of any popular sports contest. He should use plenty of equipment. It is all for sale in his store. In the center of the display place about 10 stills from the film and a few star stills. It's a swell tie-up and means extra business for all.

Hat Contest

★ Every millinery shop in town will be in on this tie-up which provides for each store to make up, or select from stock, their "ace" creation. The women who wear the hats most becomingly, receive the bonnets as prizes. Only one hat to a person. Hold the contest on the stage and allow your audience, through applause, to select the winners. Before the contest display prominently in your lobby a large frame listing the stores that are in the tie-up. They in turn display the usual theater credit in their windows. Newspaper tie-ups on this one can come in at the pay-off when the winners are choosen.

Clown Stunt

★ A good clown can hold the afternoon shoppers in suspense with this one. In the store window the clown attendant affixes cut-out letters to an easel announcing the attraction. He carefully spells out the title of the feature, and turns to the audience. As he does so, the letters fall to the ground. He expresses surprise at the laughter of the crowd, turns, sees the letters on the floor, and starts all over again. The trick is this: The panel on the easel is of fine wire cloth. A vacuum cleaner is hitched to an airtight box in back of it, creating a suction that holds the letters in place. In front of the easel is a switch that the clown works with his foot to shut off the current. This eases the suction, and the letters fall.

Stocking Show

★ One of the old reliables that always gets them. A department store window is used, with the curtain pulled down to a little less than knee high, with the space lettered for the picture. Six chorus girls are employed to sit in the window. For a time they do a tap dance in unison, while seated. Then one after the other they change stockings, and model the new pair until all six are in motion. After the show, the curtain is pulled all the way down till the crowd disperses.

Window Tapper

★ An effective window tapper to call attention to a display can be made with an electric bell with the gong removed. This is placed in the window in such a position that the hammer barely touches the glass, and is wired to a battery with a switch instead of a push button. Throwing the switch will give a gentle tapping that will get attention even from the engrossed, and a single cell battery will ring the bell for a couple of days or more, according to its hours in use. The same gag can be used to beat a drum or vibrate a cymbal for a noisemaker in the lobby if the noise will not penetrate the auditorium.

Hobbies

★ Here is a dandy that will attract a wealth of attention. Stage a hobby contest by inviting entrants to supply you with exhibits. You'll get miniature ships, stamp collections, all sorts of things that you never had thought could be classed as hobbies. Have each write a short note on a card regarding the hobby. Display the collection in a nearby window and also display a card telling at which performance the winner will be announced. Give some attractive prize. Have local newspaper people as the judges.

Mystery House

★ A good novelty to play on a mystery feature. A window is secured in an empty store. Have a model made of the mystery house similar to the one in the feature attraction. Ribbons of various colors run from the different windows of the house, with cards pasted at the other ends explaining the various mysterious elements leading up to the mystery. This is a great stunt to arouse the curiosity of the window-lookers, and creates an urge to see your feature.

Loan Exhibits

★ The loan exhibit is sure-fire in town or country. When you have a feature with an old time flavor like "The Bowery" coming along, start in early and promote the loan of old costumes, furniture, or anything that goes back to the time of the picture. Offer prizes for the most interesting antiques and tickets for all loans. Get your paper interested in helping to collect the loan. The store that gets the display has a sure-fire attraction, and ought to help out generously on the prizes. Properly handled, it is good for a big write-up in the papers, giving interesting yarns about various heirlooms and the original owners.

Star Fashions

★ A neat window display in a men's haberdashery or a woman's gown shop can be worked this way. Have the merchant select from stock a suitable tie, collar, cape or garment, similar to the one worn in picture by the star. Surround the article with stills and plenty of reading matter regarding your theater. Have one card read: "This is a duplicate of the garment worn by (star) in (title of film)."

Expert Make-up

★ Adapted either for a furniture store or beauty shop. The window setting is that of a boudoir, with a beauty specialist during noon hours giving demonstrations on expert make-up. This one ties in with some cosmetic being advertised heavily, with the window-card stating that this cosmetic is used by the star in your feature.

Local Beauties

★ The students of a local school select the six prettiest girls by popular vote. Photos of each winner are displayed in a photographer's window. In the copy mention that an autographed photograph of any movie star selected by each one of the girls will be given as prizes. These photographs can be secured from the publicity department of the company home offices. The newspaper can tie in nicely with this stunt by running the photos. You can go further by having one grand prize for the prettiest girl in the group.

PRINTED MATTER

No department of theater publicity offers so many channels for new ideas as printed matter. Glancing through this section will convince you of that fact. The intelligent use of printer's ink is one of the showman's main standbys. The beauty of this department of advertising your show is that so often big results can be obtained at very nominal cost.

An Annual

★ A manager in a good sized town has started to issue an annual publication about his theater. He figures that the book will be a permanent advertisement, one going to each household. The chief feature is a running comment of the pictures played the past year, with stress on the hits, but a half-jesting reference to the failures. Embellished with a few cuts on coated paper, chiefly scenes from various plays. In addition there are articles on the new stars, the outstanding bit actors and the guest players of the current year, an alphabetical list of all titles played, a short history of the house, a brief list of early coming attractions, and a full roster of employees. The trick in starting an annual publication like this is to assure yourself of sufficient advertising in the first issue to nearly break even on printing costs.

Personality Cards

★ One of the best continuous stunts for small town stuff where the theatre has a rural draw, and the operator of the house is known to practically everybody. Government postals are used for stock, and the weekly announcement is a chatty running story of the current bill (even if three changes weekly), including shorts. Do not blow up the weak ones beyond their value. Name the players and also the shorts and principal players. Tell the truth about the features, and those receiving the card weekly will come to put absolute reliance in your statements. The card goes into the mail on Saturday, for Monday delivery. This stunt is built on personality and confidence, but once established it will prove a steady seller for your theater.

A Three-for-Two

★ Up until two o'clock all women who enter the theater are given a card reading: "If you like this show and sell it to two or more members of your family, this card will entitle you to a free admission for yourself if you accompany them." The card is marked "Not Transferable," but the chances are that at least half of the cards will be presented by other than the women who saw the matinee. Here is a three-for-two stunt, which beats a two-for-one. Cards are not handed out Saturday or Sunday.

Monthly Program

★ Cards are handed out the first of the month to all who attend. They are printed with the names and dates of the attractions for that month. Those who desire fill in the cards with their estimates of each show, marking in percentage. The manager marks the shows from a combination of film value and box-office. Those coming closest to his own estimates on the month are given a pair of tickets. Only requirement is that at least three-quarters of the shows be marked.

Scattered Stunts

★ A good stunt to sell an uninteresting picture with a poor selling title. Make sure there is at least one typographical error in each newspaper ad and in the throwaway. Have something wrong with every lobby frame and sign. Even the marquee is spoiled by a transposed letter. One manager even made a new admission card for the box-office with "lodges" instead of "loges." Offer a substantial prize for the largest list of "wrongs." You will have a lot of people reading every ad.

Trick Letters

★ For a long time the We-dare-you-to-hand-this-unopened-to-your-wife-or-best-girl envelopes have been used off and on. Envelopes are cheap stock, and contain an enclosure reading: "Dearest: Le's go to 'Troubled Waters' at the Strand next week. It's there Monday to Wednesday. Tell me the night you prefer." The stunt always works well, but cannot be used often. Another card can be alternated.

Phone Hanger

★ Have cards printed up that can be attached around mouthpiece of a telephone. Call them Telephone Guest Cards. They are available at the theater for those who want them. There is a perforated portion at the bottom where each person may sign name, address and phone number. There is a number on this appendage that corresponds to the one on the card. Holders rip off signed portion and leave it with usher, then hang the "guest-card" on their phone. The gag is that some numbers are called up weekly and told that by calling at the theater, they will find ducats awaiting them on identification. The theater of course plugs itself on the cards that are hung on phones, the idea being that each time a person makes a call he is reminded of your house.

Hidden Treasure Cards

★ These Hidden Treasure cards are issued to regular customers. They are designed along the lines of the numbered meal tickets used in cafeterias. The card has 20 spaces to be punched out, and the ticket-taker punches one for every paid admission that is marched through the door. When it is punched out, the holder turns in his card, a secret panel at the bottom is opened, and the money gift that it calls for is presented. There are no blanks, and awards run up to several dollars.

Catchy Leaflets

★ A four-page leaflet is titled: "How to save on gas, electricity and water." The second page carries the advice to turn off all three and come down to your theater. Another varition is titled: "How To Keep Warm These Winter Evenings." It has the same page two urge to go to the theater. In the same class is the "What I Know About———" with the inside pages blank and the theater ad on the back. The gag is applied to politics, local questions or some topical news sensation on the front pages of the papers. The reaction of course is always amusing. If this stunt is gotten out neatly in vest-pocket size, it can become a permanent ad, with the inside blank pages used for memoranda.

Eye-Shade Fans

★ A nifty novelty for summer plug. Ideal where the theater is located near a seashore resort, but also good for athletic meets and baseball parks. It's a pasteboard fan with an ad at either side for your theater, or some particular show. Fan contains a window about five inches long by an inch and a half high, covered with green or orange cellophane or gelatine. When fan is held to the face, the colored strip forms a protection from the sun's glare. Can be used as a fan, but more efficient as an eye-protector.

Sealed Envelope

★ You can put over a big forthcoming feature by appealing to curiosity. For the period of a week in advance of the attraction you give to departing patrons a sealed manila envelope with the face printed up: "Please do not open this until . . ." with a date a fortnight away. Practically everyone in town will know before the end of the week that the picture is coming. The date on the envelope will start their curiosity. Practically no envelopes will remain unopened, which is just what you expect. People will not only read the enclosed herald, but they will read it with greater care than they would give an ordinary announcement. Other catchlines for the envelope are: "Do not open this if you are not married," with "For single women only" a good runner-up. Or "Don't let your husband see this" given only to women. The latter works best on a matrimonial problem.

Sectional Coverage

★ This gets away from the haphazard system of tossing out heralds. Survey your territory, and map it out into five zones. Cover one zone every week with house distribution of a special herald. By rotating this way you get complete coverage every five weeks. This is enough to keep interest alive in your theater.

Phone Service

★ This is in the way of a new service to your patrons. Cards are distributed in the lobby headed, "To Our Patrons." Then a space for name, address and telephone number. The card reads: "In keeping with our policy of rendering every possible service to our patrons, we urge you to fill out this card. Our plan is to phone you each week and acquaint you with the current and coming attractions. The management trusts that this service will aid you in arranging your entertainment program."

Future Passes

★ Build up your summer business with this one. At the end of June issue 500 passes good any time between Monday and Friday the third week in September. The pass must be stamped each week from the time it is issued until it is good. Use any rubber stamp of a cartoon character which may be bought at the stationers. Change the stamps weekly. It is not required that a ticket be purchased at the time the pass is stamped but the folks come to your lobby and that's more than half way into your theater. The pass will be shown to others and have plenty advertising value. About 400 of the passes will probably be used.

Program Prizes

★ The question of whether your programs are being read or not will be answered if you put over this stunt each week. In your next issue, include a panel on page one announcing that some person's name will be mentioned in that space next week, and that the person will receive a pair of passes. You can say that the name will be printed "somewhere" in the program and in that way make the readers go through the pamphlet from cover to cover. Slip the name in on an ad or house article. Do it each week for a month or so. You can carry it further by scattering several names throughout the program. Results of a few weeks will tell you just where the paper is not being read. And that is the area to cover with exploitation and accessories.

NEWSPAPERS

Today the average newspaper editor is more anxious now than ever to co-operate on picture publicity. That is because the live editor and publisher knows his readers are movie-conscious. More and more space is being given in the newspapers to picture personalities, fashions, etc. You can always reach your local editor if you have an intelligent idea that gives his paper a break.

Daily Mention

★ It costs one theater 12 guest tickets daily for as many mentions of the theater in the local paper. The newspaper selects the names of 12 subscribers and prints each name in a 21-line space, in addition to giving a front page announcement. Those whose names are printed pick up their tickets from the newspaper. It is an adaptation from the old name-in-the-program idea, but gives wider publicity.

Trips to Big Town

★ Round up a half-dozen merchants or more to kick in on a round-trip ticket to the Big Town, with a three-day hotel accommodation. It is worked along the usual lines of a coupon with each dollar purchase, the trip going to the person holding the largest number of coupons. The coupons must be dropped in a box at the theater as they are acquired. The daily paper gives 10 consecutive stories, in return for a double-truck announcement. Merchants keep up the plug in their daily ads, and each has a special window for the picture attraction at your theater.

Oldest Copy

★ This one can be worked anywhere on any classic that is made into a motion picture. It appears in the classified ads. The theater offers $5 for the loan of the oldest copy of the book on which the film is based. Upon securing an old copy, the theater manager writes the ad manager of the paper telling of his success. The newspaper reproduces the letter. The letter is worded in such a fashion to get a strong plug for the picture while apparently only praising the want ad results.

Business Girl Week

★ On any picture with a business girl angle. Induce the local authorities to proclaim the week during showing of the film as "Business Girl Week." The mayor issues a special proclamation which is played up by the newspapers. The mayor in his proclamation calls attention of the populace to the community importance of the girl whose nimble fingers skip over the typewriter keys daily. The stores can cooperate and benefit by offering attractions and inducements for the patronage of the business girls.

Ad Styles

★ When your newspaper ads seem to lose drawing power, try making a switch in style. If you are using more than a six-inch space, change over to the open letter style. Write a breezy chat about the picture instead of using smash lines as display. You can use the same lines if you want, but work them into a running comment on the picture. Use open space top and bottom, and decorate with a head cut from some large ad mat. You can cut down your space and still be so different on the page that yours will be the first announcement read. When that wears off, you can go back to regular display, but the open letter style should give you more punch in smaller space. Have the copy set in 10 or 12 point, leaded, and make it so easy to read that people are willing, and so bright that people look for more. Being breezy doesn't mean being familiar. The entire idea can be wrecked by getting too flippant.

Historical Essays

★ Plenty of publicity by tieing up with the local grammar or high school, offering a prize for the best essay on a subject bearing a connection with the theme of a coming attraction, or an essay on why a certain star is popular. Handle this through your newspaper by having the announcement made through the paper, which also prints the winning essays. Pick out a feature with an historical background and by doing so you can interest the English or history teachers.

Silhouettes

★ An easy one to put over, for it is a stunt that gives the newsapper a good break. Have the newspaper publish, each day, the silhouette of a prominent resident of the community, man or woman, with the stunt being for readers to guess who it is. Have one to five prizes each day. A variation of this stunt is to publish a photograph of some well known native son or daughter. The photograph shows the back of the head, or the head slightly turned.

The Outline Stunt

★ Have a newspaper print the outline of a star's head. Alongside the outline have printed a half-tone of the star. The gag is to offer prizes for the best drawing within the outline fo the picture in the half-tone. You can get most from the stunt if the half-tone is a bit larger, or smaller, than the outline, thereby forestalling anyone from tracing the picture. Juvenile organizations and drawing classes in local schools should go for this one.

Ad Judges

★ A good booster for the classified section. The newspaper asks readers to select from the classified section one ad each day for three days which they consider the most attractive worded. In submitting their selections they state briefly why the consider these the best. The merchants can be promoted to offer prizes, for they all benefit.

Juvenile Athletes

★ With the vacation season many cities devote their school yards to recreational centers to keep the children off the streets. It is a simple matter in most instances to tie up to this project with an athletic league, sponsored by the theater and conducted by those having charge of the playgrounds. A few medals just before school opens again gives a talking point that will last all summer. Often this stunt can be broken into a newspaper where contests and similar hookups have been done to death. The circulation manager and the editor may see nothing in a wek's contest, but they will appreciate an eight or ten weeks' feature that will appeal to parents and children alike. With the paper in, it may also be possible to promote other prizes from the merchants. If it can be arranged, talks by athletic coaches at matinees should further build the kid patronage. Theater parties each week for the playground showing the best results is another help.

Lost and Found

★ Tie in with the newspaper, which offers two tickets to each person who finds an article advertised in its lost-found columns. Finder first returns the article to the owner, who identifies it and gives a voluntary reward. Then he calls at the newspaper office for the deuces. The paper of course plays this double reward up as a talking point.

Easter Awards

★ Easter corsages for careful women drivers of automobiles are awarded in a newspaper tie-up. Ten license numbers are noted each day for five days and printed in the newspaper. Drivers thus designated call at the newspaper office for the bouquets.

Classified Ads

★ For a classified column gag. Theater contributes 10 tickets as prizes for the best answers to five questions about classified ads in the current issue. Used for the merchant advertisers rather than for the job seekers, and of more permenant benefit. Sample set of questions for instance calls for identification of three slogans, the name of a firm handling weather strips, and the name of the auto dealer who is going to move on the first of the month. In return for the ducats the house gets a flash as for the current attraction.

Personal Touch

★ Good angle to use in your advertising where the feature is big but has no particular box-office strength, yet you know if you can get 'em in they will like it. You can't do it with adjectives in your ads, so do it along these lines. Copy might read: "I can't tell you how good this picture is. You'd think I was lying. Come and see for yourself if it isn't a real treat." This method of approach leaves you in a nice position for your next anonymous feature with class, for the public knows from experience that you haven't fooled them.

Special Extra

★ This ad stunt is only good at long intervals, since it is the unusualness that gets it over. Run your formal ad for the picture with usual pressbook cut. Alongside that ad another double column in which you talk somewhat like this: "We hasten to place this addition to our ad before the newspaper goes to press." The remainder of your talk is all straight type set in bold italics, in which you jubilate over the excellence of the show and the picture. It must be done in a natural tone of self-congratulation and modest pride that rings true. It's that "something different" that catches the reader's eye and impresses with its sincerity. And of course the feature must have the general strong appeal to back it up.

Picture Titles

★ This one can be used one or two weeks in advance of your particular picture. The idea is to select ten stills from the coming attraction and have the newspaper run one a day. For the best titles for each still, a prize of one ticket is offered. Of course, each winner will bring one or two friends to hear his, or her name read from the stage as a winner. This is particularly fine advance advertising. It will interest all who enter the contest and everyone who sees the stills. It will plant situations and stars in their memory, and also the name of the feature.

Mystery Stories

★ Well in advance of the playing of thrilling mystery film, offer a season pass to the person sending in the best story under the heading "My Most Horrible Experience." Advertise that all articles will be published by the newspaper, and if you desire, have the winning article read from the stage when the presentation to the winner is made. This makes for a series of comic and thrilling articles in the newspaper. Of course, all articles submitted should first be read by you and any undesirable propaganda or unusable matter eliminated.

Old Timers

★ A good stunt to arouse the interest of the old-timers. It is used on a film adapted from some old stage play. The editor calls on the old-timers to submit their recollections of the original stage play reminiscences of the original cast, etc. It is surprising how many letters will disclose that there are a lot of folks in your community who are well informed on the old stage classics.

Guest Ticket

★ This can be worked by managers running houses that are supplied from rural communities. Papers to be delivered R.F.D. should include a free guest ticket for any boy or gril under twelve years of age. As the kiddies will have to go a considerable distance to the theater they are sure to be accompanied by another child or one or two grown-ups. This is a dandy for houses that run juvenile films and can even be worked in connection with any short subject that especially appeals to the children. Handle it on "off nights." It will swell the box-office receipts.

Oldest Couples

★ Tell the editor of the paper that the theater is interested in finding the oldest married couple in the community. Tell him that you want to invite them and their children and grandchildren to your theater. After the story has broken, you'll be surprised at the number of letters that will come in. That all means that attraction has already been centered on your theater. Leave out the couple's children and grandchildren if you want and just make it for the old couple. At the pay-off you can invite the oldest five or ten couples. You're sure they'll have all their relatives, who will pay admission in the house.

Slogans

★ In your newspaper ads, include an announcement that you will give guest tickets for the snappiest catchlines or slogans for a forthcoming picture. Do not publish a synopsis, but tell the readers enough of the story to give them an idea of the theme. Invite the advertising manager in judging the slogans. Use the slogans selected as winners, and also the honorable mentions, in your lobby with the name of the author at the bottom of each card.

Juvenile Reporters

★ Here's a wow. There is very little actual "heel and toe" reporting done by a small town newspaper, and yet there are a thousand items of news and scandal that the editor would be glad to have and pay for. Invite the editor to attend the next meeting of your children's Saturday morning club. Have him offer one free ticket for every news item handed in by the lads and used in the paper. No items are to be duplicated. First come, first served. In this manner the editor will get plenty of local goings on and some red hot scandal that can be handled with impunity. Arrange with the manager to pay you half price of every ticket he gives to the kids. It's cheap news for him and a fine boost for you. To add color to the stunt, stamp each pass "PRESS" in red ink.

Star Resemblance

★ The idea in this is to ferret out the local beauties who most closely resemble the star in your feature. The bigger the star, the more interest this will arouse, so the stunt should only be used on an outstanding name. The newspaper prints the star's picture daily. Girls who think their features approximate those of the star, are requested to send their photos to the paper for reproduction. The local photographer will be glad to co-operate in taking pictures, and you can offer him some free advertising.

Girls Swimmers

★ With the swimming meets now one of the popular sports, it is always good for a raft of publicity if handled right. Organize it under the auspices for the local A.A.U. athletic club, or the Y.W.C.A. For girl contestants only The A.A.U. rules govern the meet, and members of the local club should act as judges. Every amateur girl swimmer in the city is eligible. The entry blanks are obtained at your box-office. The contest features three swimming events and five diving events. Used on a big feature it may be possible to secure a telegram from the star sponsoring the contest. Offer a cup to the main winner. The local dealers come in with additional prizes. The winner is the girl making the most points in all events. The newspaper can get behind this and build it up as a big community event, which it is when properly handled.

Careful Drivers

★ A natural for Safety Week. It is an old stunt, but can be used effectively in the classified advertising columns. Each day an observer notes down instances of careful driving, and takes the license plate number. Several of these appear the following day in the classified ads. This can be extended as long as the newspaper finds it a drawing proposition. Rewards of tickets to these careful drivers makes it a cheap stunt for you, and it gives the paper a good play on interest in its classified columns.

Smart Dressers

★ Here is a two-way tie-up, including a fashion shop as well as the newspaper. The paper plays it up by announcing that a photographer will snap the most smart'y gowned woman for several days in the downtown shopping district. The dealer presents the woman with a pair of advertised hose, identifying her from the published photos. It's a good plug for the newspaper, as it keeps all the women and girls scanning the sheet daily for the run of the contest, to see if their photos appear.

SPECIAL STUNTS

In this section are included just a few of the many publicity ideas that can only be classified as special stunts. In the great proportion of cases they do not apply to any special picture. They are broader and more comprehensive, capitalizing on the current dance craze, a national holiday, the football season, etc. The stunts here presented are merely a suggestion as to the infinite number of ideas available.

Basket Ball Tourney

★ The basketball tourney is run off in five nights, and involves four men's teams and four girls' teams. Preliminaries are run off Monday through Thursday, with the finals—one men's game and one girls' game—on Friday. Patrons are urged to attend the last show, and stay over for the basket-ball game. But a box-office for the basket-ball games only can be opened at the close of the regular picture program.

Kids' Matinee Stunt

★ This one is guaranteed to jump your Saturday matinee attendance. A two-minute story period is staged, with someone taking the role of "Uncle Ed"and recounting a feat of some local child over the loudspeaker system. The stories aim to teach a worthwhile lesson. The kids flock in to see whose name will be mentioned. Parents also like the idea, and will send in enough stories to keep the announcer busy for months.

Summer Stuff

★ A few hot weather stunts. Towns with nearby summer hotels can make quite a little patronage by appeal to the guests. The simplest is a card on the desk and a herald in each room box. One small town theater in a summer boarding section made a good appeal with the slogan "City shows at country prices." In another spot a theater arranged with the bus lines to sell combination tickets for a dime less than the regular admission plus fares. Theater and bus line each knocked off a nickel.

Graduation

★ One of the best standbys for graduation is the congratulatory letter to each pupil, with or without a pass for an early show. The names and possibly the home addresses can be secured from the principal or the school clerk. In some instances, where the addresses are not given, the letters can by arrangement be sent to the school in bulk. The letters should congratulate the recipient, express good wishes for the future and mention the ticket, if one is sent.

Nature Tramps

★ Works well in small towns and even better in cities where concessions can be obtained from the utility companies in the matter of transportation. If a large club can be formed with a newspaper backing the scheme, it is often possible to obtain transportation into the country for a merely nominal fare. Some of the larger papers maintain their own nature study clubs as a circulation feature. Prime requisite is a man who knows his way about the country, and has a real knowledge of botany and local natural history. Idea is to devote the usual kid club session on Saturday to a chat and have a trip to the country in midweek with an alternative day in case of rain. Indoor session is preparation for the sights to be seen on the coming trip, when the children are taught the difference between various classes of trees and plants, the nature and habits of small animals, and anything else the guide can ring in. Children bring their own lunches.

Summer Contests

★ A series of contests to be run each Friday through the hot weather. The first is for the prettiest girl, and the second for the girl with the prettiest feet. In turn will be others for the fattest man, the ugliest man, most freckled boy, tallest married couple and skinniest man. In the tallest married couple their heights are added and divided by two. In the feet contest the girls stand on a platform behind a drop through an opening in which only their feet and ankles show, but a generous construction is placed on the height of the ankles. Another pop summer feature is the tap dancing contest to run until the middle of September, when the winners of the various nights gather to dance it off for the final prizes.

Surprise Night

★ For small towns, take the dead night of the week and make it Surprise Night. Something is added to the last evening show. Never the same twice, and never announced in advance. It may be a pie-eating contest one week, and a hat-trimming contest for men the next, with now and then a couple of acts of vaudeville. If it is a contest, those in the audience are invited to compete. Plenty of people come every week, regardless of the picture, just to see what's going to happen. Takes an inventive mind to keep it going, but it is worth the trouble.

Dancing Class

★ Good for neighborhood houses. Hire a hoofer to teach hoofing from the stage in a ten-minute demonstration twice a week. He has two ostensible pupils—two good looking girls in rehearsal rompers. All of the lesson is addressed to them, but it is phrased to tell the audience what to do. The stunt costs little, as the girls are glad to appear for the lessons they get and a chance to get on a stage. The grown-ups will enjoy it as much as the juveniles. And it breaks the monotony of the all-film show.

New Dances

★ With so many musicals introducing new dance steps, try this one as a natural. Tie up with the local newspaper or dance hall, or run the stunt alone. Announce a prize for the couple that best dances the number shown in the picture. Hold the contest on your stage. Have sketches of the dance reprinted from the press sheet and hand out to local dance halls and schools. Announce it on your screen with a slide. Applications to come to the box-office. Hold the stunt on an off night. No free passes admitted. Everyone pays.

Christmas Show

★ Following the Christmas Eve or Christmas Night show, you can stage a colorful tree-lighting and carol singing period. Advertise it well and think up as many pleasing stunts for the occasion as you can. Time the show so that at midnight "Silent Night" is sung with the tree gradually being lighted until it blazes into a myriad of colored lights. Permit gifts for the needy children in your community to be strewn around the tree and make the presentation at the time of the stunt or have them distributed the following day. If you have room, fix up a plaster scene of the Nativity.

Report Card Stunt

★ Advise members of the kiddie club that during the spring term all youngsters who can show an A report card will be introduced from the stage and given a prize (of nominal cost). Secure the cooperation of school teachers and local educators. Send around a pamphlet or card telling of the stunt. Set the afternoon or night performance in keeping with the desires of the teachers. On the night of the rewards it is very probable that your theatre will be filled with scholars and their parents. Announce that the same contest for an A report card will be repeated later in the term of the following term and that children winning twice will be given a medal.

For Boys and Girls Only

★ If you want to jolt some of the town's civic and religious leaders into noticing your theater, advertise a show "For Boys Only" to be followed in one week by a show "For Girls Only." Saturday mornings are the best times to present the shows. You will possibly get visits from ministers, etc., asking what you mean by a "For Boys Only" show. Of course the boy's show consists of an action western, a cartoon, a boy's comedy, etc. The girl's show is selected according to their desires. At the latter show you can have candy-making instruction. Charge a nominal admission for the morning shows.

Treasure Hunt

★ A different slant to the treasure hunt. Split it into two sections—one for cyclists and the other pedestrians. Both start from the theater, but work in opposite directions, one toward a big lot about two miles from the theater and the other heading for a farm in the country. In both cases metal tokens are used to represent the treasure. The tokens are numbered, and all that is known is that the numbers do not represent the position of the prize. Number one may be near the bottom of the list, with the top prize going to a high number. Prizes and numbers are the same in both hunts, so that only a single list has to be prepared. This is unveiled after the hunt is over, the prizes being presented at the night performance. Clues are colors, and to make it interesting, have some of them more or less hidden, as the red in a store sign for the red route and a blue awning for the alternate. Where there is no color permanently located, streamers must be affixed.

Fan Mail Club

★ Start this by soliciting members with a trailer on your screen. Those who sign up for the club receive a personal letter accepting their membership and explaining aim of the fan mail group. Plan is to arrange from time to time for letters direct from picture stars to club members, occasional star photos sent free to members, and weekly card or mailing piece on coming show. The letter contains request for member's birth date without revealing reason for wanting that bit of information. Club members will receive a brace of guest tickets on their birthday. Here is a stunt particularly good for neighborhood spots.

Theater Anniversary

★ For your anniversary, try to get the mayor, or some other local celeb, on the stage for the special program. Your local editor can stress the advance in quality of entertainment since the opening year of your theater. A musical program should be offered, with a current singer and a revival of the old illustrated song, if slides can be obtained. It should be possible to get someone to circulate an album in which all of the townsfolk subscribe to a resolution of good will to the manager, and of course, he is taken by surprise at the presentation ceremonies. Another good gag is to offer tickets for the best recollections of the theater's opening night.

THEATERS

IN THE UNITED STATES, ALASKA AND CANADA

FOLLOWING is a list of wired motion picture theaters in the United States, Alaska and Canada. Closed theaters are indicted by the symbol—Cl. A list of theater circuits of four or more houses follows this section.

It should be borne in mind that theaters are constantly changing hands and that any theater list can be strictly accurate for only a short time. Those who wish to keep this compilation up to date can easily do so by checking the monthly "Theater Changes" of the Film Boards of Trade. These appear in The Film Daily each month and include changes in ownership, openings and closings of theaters.

RADIO CORPORATION OF AMERICA

Holding Company
Incorporated Oct. 17, 1919, in Delaware
General Office, 233 Broadway, New York

Under a recapitalization plan adopted by stockholders on Apr. 7, 1936, the A preferred stock was retired by cash payment and all but 2 per cent of the B preferred had been turned in on Jan. 15, 1936, for a new first preferred stock and common stock. The new capitalization is 18,500,000 shares of common stock of which 13,879,372 is outstanding and 920,300 authorized shares of first preferred.

Organized by General Electric Co. Acquired stations of Marconi Wireless Tel. Co. of America. Owns numerous patents upon which royalties are collected from manufacturers. In October, 1928, company received 500,000 shares of Class "B" stock of Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corp. in return for use of Photophone and for contract under which National Broadcasting Co., affiliated with Radio Corp., will broadcast R-K-O programs. Owns Radio-Victor Corp., of America. Affiliated with General Motors and Westinghouse Electric in a new radio manufacturing company formed in September, 1929. In January, 1932, increased its controlling interest in RKO to about 70 per cent.

In October, 1935, sold part of its controlling interest in RKO, and gave option on balance, to Atlas Corp. and Lehman Bros. Also sold out its interest in Electrical and Musical Industries, London, to a British group.

Capitalization: Common stock, 15,000,000 shares authorized, 13,130,690 outstanding. Cumulative 7% preferred "A," $50 par, 500,000 shares authorized, 495,597 outstanding. Cumulative $5 preferred "B," no par (edeemable at $100), 5,000,000 shares authorized, 767,275 outstanding.

Dividends: None being paid at present on common or Class "B". Arrears on Class "A" to end of 1934 cleared up by action of board on Jan. 18, 1935, payable Feb. 19 to stock of record Jan. 29, 1935.

Arrears on "B" stock amounted to $21.25 a share at Dec. 31, 1935.

Contingent Liabilities:

Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation is guarantor of various leases and financial obligations of various subsidiary and affiliated companies. Where defaults have occurred and claims have been filed, provision has been made in the figures shown above for settlement of such claims. In a number of instances, however, no default has occurred and, therefore, estimate of the contingent liability is impracticable.

There are certain lawsuits pending against subsidiary companies, the liability in respect of which is not determinable.

NOTE:

The foregoing figures do not include any estimated provision for payment of expenses of reorganization.

 The figures in respect to outstanding common stock and capital surplus are exclusive of shares of common stock to be issued as provided in Article IX of the Plan and shares which may be allotted to Atlas Corporation by way of compensation. The issuance of these shares will increase the figures shown in respect to outstanding common stock and to the extent of such increase will decrease the capital surplus.

* After giving effect to the following adjustments:

1. Increase of $800,000 in cash through sale of shares of common stock for $1,600,000 less payment of Secured 6% Gold notes in the amount of $800,000.
2. Adjustment for tax liability made on books of a subsidiary company in October, 1936.
3. Transfer to capital surplus of:
   a. Reserve for abandonment of unnecessary properties and rehabilitation of theaters (unapplied balance).
   b. Reserve for revaluation of capital assets (unapplied balance).
4. See detail on page 14 of Plan.

Dedicated to Service...

ELEVEN years ago the National Theatre Supply Company was organized to furnish one source of supply for the varied types of equipment and services required by motion picture theatre owners.

During those eleven years, it has been our privilege to serve exhibitors the country over with the finest kinds of standard theatre equipment possible for us to obtain.

We have endeavored at all times to render the prompt, efficient service that showmen, because of the nature of their business, have a right to expect.

To you, Mr. Exhibitor, we owe our sincerest thanks for the opportunity of progressing with you thru the years.

May we continue to serve you.

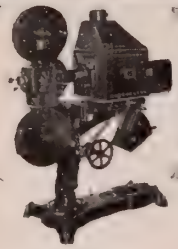
Simplex PROJECTORS – DISTRIBUTED BY NATIONAL THEATRE SUPPLY COMPANY



GOOD PROJECTION
REVENUE BUILDER
... Richardson ...

SIMPLEX DE LUXE

SIMPLEX SUPER MAGNARC

Millions in additional revenue would accrue to the industry by nation-wide improvement in the standards of projection.

There can be no reasonable doubt that—taking motion picture theatres as a whole—an additional sum of one hundred dollars per year per theatre as a minimum might be profitably expended for the improvement of projection equipment. In my opinion this represents the least that might be well spent for this purpose and many theatres could spend much more. This would bring about an appreciable improvement in both visual and sound projection and it is my view that the improvement would add literally millions of dollars to the box office income Screen presentation is the delivery of all the work of the industry to the public, and poor projection is really just the same as delivering inferior quality merchandise to customers. Many theatres are doing an injustice to their patrons by giving poor projection, and would find that all reasonable expenditures for improvements in projection would pay for themselves several times during the course of a year.

Every live wire, progressive exhibitor and theatre manager should realize that maintaining projection equipment in the best possible condition at all times greatly reduces damage to film—is an additional safety precaution, adds to the comfort and enjoyment of patrons and is a wise investment which will result in greatly increased box office receipts.

ANOTHER TRIUMPH

of Kooler-Aire Engineering

P·A·B*

 Perfected Atmospheric Balance*

—banishes the last of the 3 Bugaboos of Evaporative Washed Air Cooling Systems

Uneven Air Distribution. In 1926, Kooler-Aire Engineering conquered this "bugaboo" with the patented Kooler-Aire Dual Deflector which solved the problem of proper and even distribution of the cooled air throughout the theatre.

Cooler Day Fluctuations. In 1936, the "bugaboo" of air "dumping" on cooler days when the cooling system is cut down to reduced volume was eliminated by the Kooler-Aire Equalizer. This tested control device automatically maintains correct air velocity with reduced air volume, thus avoiding drafts, cold spots and hot dead air pockets.

Muggy Days. Now . . . this last "bugaboo" of how to maintain a pleasant cooling effect on muggy days has been conquered by the New Kooler-Aire Atmospheric Balancer. Most hot days are low humidity (dry) days when Kooler-Aire gives excellent cooling results. But there are a few hot "muggy" days each season when increased air motion is desirable. It is on such days that the Kooler-Aire Atmospheric Balancer goes into operation automatically, increasing the air motion in the breathing zone and thus maintaining a normal cooling effect.

Is Cold Water available in Your Town? If so, we have information of special interest on the low cost, economy and efficiency of the Kooler-Aire "Cold Water" System.

Only Kooler-Aire gives you these advantages

With the complete automatic control of conditioned air provided by the Kooler-Aire Dual Deflector, Equalizer and Atmospheric Balancer, Kooler-Aire now gives perfected results never before possible with any evaporative washed air system.

The Kooler-Aire reputation is built on the satisfaction of thousands of users who know that it is a safe, healthful, efficient system, low in first cost and very low in operating costs.

You can't afford to install any air conditioning system . . . or to be satisfied with the results you are now getting from your present installation . . . until you know all about these latest KOOLER-AIRE achievements. Write today, for the Kooler-Aire book of Air-conditioning facts.

LEFT: Leading Circuits such as RKO, Hoblitzelle and M. A. Shea and Modern Independents Everywhere Feature Acousticon Theatrephones!

RIGHT: Acousticon listeners at New York's Radio City Music Hall today number over 1000. Get your share of this business.

Bring back the FORGOTTEN PATRONS

Ten percent of your prospective patrons are deaf! . . . and avoid theatres not equipped to serve them. In box-office terms that figure is even more significant—for the deaf attend the movies several times weekly where they are welcomed—and influence the patronage of their families and friends to the theatres of their choice.

Acousticon users at Radio City Music Hall in New York number over 1000. Acousticon Theatrephones are found in houses on the turnpike and at the crossroads of the world. Scores of American exhibitors have installations—and the number is mounting as you read this.

Stop saying "Nothing for you!" to one out of every ten! Investigate the Theatrephone. Facts, figures and full information are contained in Bulletin No. 2—which we will send promptly on request.

Acousticon Theatrephones Now Swelling Box-Office Receipts in American Theatres Everywhere.

PAINTED DECORATION

Established for more than forty years and recognized as a leader in the field of decorative art, the Rambusch organization's activities cover a wide range in the decoration of public buildings. The ability to perceive, to develop and to execute economically and correctly that which is best in theme and motif is the reason that the name Rambusch stands pre-eminent in the line of its endeavors. Some of the outstanding interiors of the country attest and bear adequate testimony to its resourcefulness in creating interiors of refinement, beauty, luxury and color without garishness. Rambusch will solve your decorating problems without effort and annoyance to yourself.

FOREIGN OUTLOOK FOR 1937

Principally due to greater internationalization of product, American distributors will make further important gains in re-capturing their foreign market revenue in 1937, it is generally the opinion of leading foreign department executives in New York, as expressed in a survey on the outlook abroad.

The officials view the year ahead with increased optimism and are convinced that the foreign market is certain to produce more substantial grosses. Although war clouds hover in some areas, they almost unanimously feel that economic conditions are definitely stabilizing themselves.

Following are the individual outlooks:

Foreign Releases Already Made

By John W. Hicks, Jr.
Vice-President of Paramount
in Charge of Foreign Distribution

This is one year in which the guesswork about film success throughout the world has been removed by the early production of meritorious pictures. The motion pictures which are to write the success story of Nineteen Thirty-seven are already on celluloid, a fact well and satisfactorily known to those Paramount representatives who recently foregathered in Hollywood for the purpose of celebrating the Silver Jubilee of Paramount's founder, Adolph Zukor.

There they saw the concrete and irrefutable evidence of this year's radiant outlook in the shape of film spectacles, film musical comedies, film romances and films of unquestionable humor—all designed for the pleasure of the world and the satisfaction of the world's exhibitors. Speaking solely for Paramount, this observer is sanguine in the belief that from the evidence presented (and there is no evidence in the world more convincing than actual developed, printed and scored celluloid), this year on which we are now embarked has all the potentialities for being the most successful to date for every phase of the film industry actually and practically participating in it.

Britain Makes Tremendous Strides

By Arthur W. Kelly
Vice-President of United Artists
in Charge of Foreign Distribution

The lesson American producers learned in 1936 is that while Hollywood still continues to dominate in the world market, it no longer has a monopoly on good product. Good product today means international product. And with the improved production facilities now available abroad, particularly in England, it is just as easy for Alexander Korda, for example, to make international pictures at his Denham Studios in London as it is for Samuel Goldwyn to make them in Hollywood.

The tremendous strides made by the British film industry in the past twelve months have not been lost on our Hollywood brethren. They realize full well there are at least half-a-dozen producers besides Korda who are making important pictures costing anywhere from $400,000 to $1,000,000 each —and these pictures are regularly outgrossing the American product, with a few exceptions, in the rich British market.

The same is true of the Spanish-speaking countries where native product is outgrossing the Hollywood variety four to one! Even in the Far East —in India, China and Japan—as well as in Continental Europe, South America and Australasia, only the outstanding American pictures—those with universal audience appeal—are doing big business due to local pride in and support of national pictures.

It's a natural and inevitable evolution of the film business, and instead of fighting national production, United Artists, through its far-seeing executives who long ago recognized the handwriting on the wall, is encouraging these local producers, helping them to raise the level of their product, offering them an international outlet for their pictures.

General Increase in B. O. Returns

By Sam E. Morris
Vice-President, Warner Bros.

The only major deterrent to our steady growth in foreign distribution during 1937 would be the threat of war clouds which at the present writing are tending to stagnate the economic progress of the peoples of many countries. However, politically minded authorities are prophesying that these war clouds will disappear in the near future, and the nations and peoples will then make very rapid gains in general business activity, employment and wages.

If their prophesy is correct, then the outlook for the future should unquestionably be very bright indeed, for the quality and international appeal of our studio's output has shown steady and healthy improvement. And we are certainly holding our own, to say the least, against the improvement in any native product which has been evidenced during the past year from any foreign country.

Where no threats of war exist, these countries have enjoyed the same general increase in box-office returns that have occurred in this country, and we look for still better conditions there as well as here. Warner Bros. and other Hollywood studios continue to make a brand of entertainment that all the world is waiting and anxious to see, but our possibilities are dependent to a very large extent upon the economic conditions in each and every country.

International Technique Being Attained

By N. L. Manheim
Export Manager, Universal

More and more I am convinced that the goal towards which many of us have so long been working — international technique of moving picture making—is to be realized. Nothing could be so beneficial to the marketing of American moving pictures abroad, and nothing could be more beneficial to the foreign market than the making of moving pictures with an eye on the whole world instead of only on America.

I feel confident that that state of mind is being more nearly approached than ever before. One of the things that convinces me is a production made in Hollywood this year by a director imported from Austria. That director is Henry Koster. His first moving picture, "Three Smart Girls," is the best example of international technique ever produced in the United States. I feel so confident it will be the forerunner of many other such productions.

Even without this new form of production there are many reasons why American films will be more important in the foreign field than ever before. Many countries in which production for the last few years has been abnormally large are finding that their own outside markets will not absorb the enormous cost. These countries will rely more on American pictures during the coming year than formerly.

I cannot help but feel that with currency stability assured, with international relations much more friendly to America and with a new kind of product which combines much of action and not so much of dialogue, that the export year 1937 will be an extremely prosperous one.

Economic Upswing Aiding Films

By Phil Reisman
RKO Vice-President in Charge of Foreign Affairs

It is my sincere belief that 1937 will be one of the most successful years the motion picture industry has enjoyed for a long time. Many factors will contribute to this, chief among them being the marked economic upswing unmistakably evident in numerous countries. Unless some world catastrophe intervenes, this trend will gather momentum and we will see a large measure of prosperity during the current year. This will be reflected in increased theatre patronage with a consequent rise in box office receipts. Not to be discounted as an aid to sustained recovery are the reciprocal trade agreements our Government has negotiated, and will continue to negotiate, with foreign countries.

The motion picture public overseas is definitely "international minded." They demand pictures with a universal appeal; pictures which tell their story by action rather than by dialogue; pictorial and spectacular subjects. And it is only by the production of product of this calibre that American producing and distributing organizations can hope to receive the maximum return on their investments. There is hardly a producer of note in Hollywood today who is not alive to the possibilities of the foreign market, and a very healthy sign, which augurs well for the future, is the substantial increase in this type of product which has emanated from the West Coast during the past twelve months.

RKO Radio is fully cognizant of the importance of producing pictures with an international flavor, which is one of the reasons why we have finished 1936 with the biggest foreign gross in the history of our Company. Despite international trade barriers, despite currency embargoes, despite other handicaps under which American picture companies are laboring in many countries, the industry can look forward with optimism to the future, firm in the conviction that it will continue to dominate the world market, so long as it continues to produce pictures which are as suitable for exhibition in Hongkong and Buenos Aires as in Harrisburg and Boston.

Producers Regaining Foreign Ground

By J. H. Seidelman
Foreign Manager, Columbia Pictures

In 1936 the American companies have regained much of the ground which they lost in foreign countries during the three preceding years. The reasons for this gain are traceable to the following events which occurred in 1935:—

1. The general improvement in economic conditions in most of the foreign countries;

2. The general improvement in the type of product made in Hollywood and more readily appreciated in foreign countries;

3. A lessening of restrictions affecting the importation and distribution of motion pictures; and

4. The almost total collapse in quality and number of local-made pictures.

However, in order to maintain these gains and to further strengthen our positions, it is my opinion that the American companies should be ever careful and watchful of the type and quantity of the pictures which they export abroad. To continue to flood the markets with many inferior pictures will result in a greater spread of the double feature program and the resultant lowering of averages for all concerned.

It is also vitally important for the industry to put aside selfish interests and stand as a unit in the battle against restrictive legislation which is bound to come about because of the downfall of local production. We must fight as one unit against any legislation which may be attempted to strangle the American Industry or to use a portion of its income to subsidize badly crippled and badly administered local producing units.

By careful planning and proper cooperation among themselves, the American companies cannot fail to make further progress abroad in 1937.

Spotty Grosses in Australia

By Harold Auten

Foreign Manager for Greater Union Theaters, Limited·Cinesound Productions Limited; British Empire Films Limited, Associated Distributors Limited of Australia

General conditions in Australia during 1936 were much better than those of several preceding years, but the box office returns were extremely "spotty." Many theaters did very well for weeks on end, notably some of the ace "city" houses, but on the other hand, had a number of "thin" weeks as well, despite the good quality of entertainment offered.

To sum up the whole position as far as the box office is concerned, business was by no means sensational in 1936, and it is hoped that, with continued good general business throughout Australia, 1937 will prove a much better year for all concerned.

During the past year, a vast amount of renovating and remodeling of existing theaters has taken place. In fact, much more money has been spent in this direction than in building, and today the average Australian house can be said to be at least the equal of any similar theater throughout the world.

The advertising and exploitation campaigns put on for the first-run "ace" theaters in the large cities equal, if not in some cases excel, that of similar houses on Broadway. The Australian people have always been "entertainment minded," and the showmen in Australia has been quick to take advantage of this fact.

Production is making steady progress "Down Under," some 5 or 6 good features having been made in 1936. Cinesound, the only production company in continuous operation, having three studios . . . two in Sydney and one in Melbourne . . . will produce 6 pictures definitely for Australian and world distribution, and will further produce 6 outdoor films, making a total of 12 productions during 1937, as well as their regular 52 editions of Cinesound Newsreel.

Small independents will probably make another 4 or 5 features during the year, so that in 1937 approximately 18 pictures will be made in Australia.

U. S. Public British Picture Conscious

By Budd Rogers

Vice-President & Gen. Manager, Alliance Films

The year 1937 will undoubtedly offer a greater field of operation for the exhibition of British produced pictures. There is no question but that the American public as well as the exhibitor has become British picture conscious. This has been brought about by the rapid strides in making British production compare with Hollywood. We in Alliance feel that definite progress has been made and that with the very fine group of pictures that are now being produced and scheduled for the year 1937, even greater appreciation of British product will be had, particularly so in view of the fact that we are using better star names as well as directors from Hollywood and a much finer selection of story material in keeping with the American market requirements. General improved business conditions throughout the entire United States will be more than reflected in the box-office returns of the country and certainly with additional theaters being reopened daily, and the extensive alterations and renovations in a number of older theaters, coupled with the high quality of product now coming from Hollywood and abroad, the success of a good picture at the box-office is more than assured. Even though the making of pledges is an old fashioned custom, Alliance definitely makes the pledge of bigger and better quality pictures for international entertainment.

France Gains Certain Advantage

By Jean H. Lenauer

President, Lenauer International Films, Inc.

Co-owner of the Filmarte Theater, New York City

Nineteen hundred thirty-six, generally speaking, has been a very good year for foreign movies. First of all we had a few outstanding pictures in the market, and whatever one could say, this is and will be the main point.

The line up of countries which furnished some of the outstanding successes is more or less the same as in 1935. However, France seems to have gained a certain advantage. There are a few very obvious reasons for it. Germany, as a producing country has very much disappeared. Not only did the boycott here ruin German exploitation, but also Germany's producers have lost their contact with the international market. The good producers had to leave the country, or left on their own volition, and quite a few of them are active in France and help produce more international films.

Austria has also lost its grip on the world market, at least in America.

It seems to me quite obvious that a foreign film, even if it is an outstanding work of art, can never even come near the grosses which a medium American film will obtain. The European producers however are very slow in accepting this fact. This too, makes our business a rather difficult one.

Attempts have been made, and probably will be repeated again to dub foreign films and crash the regular American market this way. This is ridiculous outside of exceptional cases.

Independent Product Well Received

By Mortimer D. Sikawitt

President, Guaranteed Pictures

All indications augur well for the independents in the foreign field during the next twleve months. The pictures they are producing are of an unusually fine calibre and are meeting with excellent response abroad.

Double featuring throughout the United Kingdom, as well as in a large number of other countries has been an important factor in the increased demand for the type of product the independents are making.

The general reciprocal trade agreements inaugurated by our government in Washington, should also aid materially in opening up markets heretofore closed because of stringent exchange control regulations.

In short, I see in 1937 a more stable independent industry and a growth that will give independents a position of dignity in the foreign as well as domestic markets.

U. S. Interest in Foreign Films Increasing

By Martin J. Lewis

General Manager, Metropolis Pictures

The interest of the American public in foreign motion pictures has shown a steady increase in the past year. A good foreign film backed up by an intelligent exploitation and advertising campaign and equipped with well written superimposed English titles, will find a profitable market in America for both the distributor and producer. The greatest danger to future and wider expansion of foreign films in America lies in the following mistakes which should be avoided by all interested parties:—

Marketing of inferior product which damages the reputation of foreign films as a whole; lack of intelligent exploitation and advertising; and inexpert editing and titling.

The European motion picture producer by selling his picture to America, should protect himself so that his films receive the utmost in individual attention. Without being afraid to sound too optimistic, I venture to say that the responsible and intelligent distributor of foreign films can look forward to the best season since the depression.

Market Conditions Constantly Changing

By George Barnett

President, Modern Film Sales

It is self-evident that continued profitable distribution of American independent pictures in foreign markets urgently requires constant awareness of changing conditions

On my recent trip around the world I was most impressed by the increased native production in practically every country I visited, large or small. These pictures, despite their numerous flaws judged by our production standards, owe their popularity to the fact that they are in the native tongue and tempo—part and parcel of their very own every day life.

Fortunately however for us, American films continue to exert their tremendous influence, honestly earned, for providing the world with the best in entertainment since movies began. This fact, coupled with the fact that the foreign market is developing steadily and impressively, and is constantly requiring a greater number of pictures, provide for us independent distributors the proper opening for disposing of our productions—but with this proviso: that our productions must be worth while, they must have good stories and casts, and most of all, they must have exploitation angles. These were the qualities which established American picture supremacy throughout the world, and these same qualities will maintain and even increase our profitable foreign business in spite of vigorous native competition.

Field Better for Independents

By J. H. Hoffberg
President, J. H. Hoffberg Co.

The international market in 1937 should be a little better for the independents. Good pictures will always find a market regardless of what the conditions might be. However, with the lifting of the bans on the export of money in most foreign countries, as economic conditions keep normalizing themselves, there should be a little brisker demand for independent product. On the other hand new opportunities should develop for the independents in the importing field with the continued production abroad of pictures in all languages. Every now and then a worth while foreign made picture can be acquired and profitably distributed in the United States.

While the outlook for 1937 is nothing to rave about there is still an abundant field of activity available for those that know their business and have the alertness to take advantage of attractive opportunities.

Want Hollywood-Made Product

By Jack Barnstyn
Foreign Department Head, Grand National

Conditions in the foreign market continued to improve in 1936. Foreign exhibitors want Hollywood-made productions preferably with music and spectacle or with fast-moving action, and such films have a worldwide market.

Grand National Films will contain all these vital qualities in a great number of its productions.

The foreign market for American pictures should further improve by virtue of the fact that only a small number of locally-made pictures has earned money and proved to be hits, while a large percentage has never recovered its production cost and for that reason, local production has fallen off considerably.

Another help to American pictures is the fact that German-made product continues to become less and less desirable for foreign countries.

The foreign Exchange situation is improving and I expect that 1937 will be a very big year for American pictures abroad.

Stiff Competition in Latin America

By C. Gonzalez
General Manager, Reliable Film Export

Of particular interest to the distributor today, as well as in the near future, is the fact that American product is receiving stiff competition in Latin America. There is a constant demand for product of Latin origin, and the reason for which our Southern neighbors are getting the "jump" on Hollywood is because we are prone to resort solely on picture themes that would be practical for exploitation here and in Europe.

The consensus of opinion in the early 1930's in reference to the Spanish-speaking territories was that we would not be able to command the Southern markets until we would develop the means of acquiring satisfactory Spanish dialogue and good enough Spanish themes. Now, however, after years of progress along these lines, we fail to follow up the advantage and reap of its benefits.

It will perhaps be a startling surprise to American producers of Spanish talkies to learn that their product do not have equal acceptance in Latin America as do those that are filmed in Mexico, Argentina or in Spain. The point is made all the more obvious when one considers the facilities and the superior equipment which Hollywood has in contrast to the embryonic stages of development of the Spanish-American film industry.

It would be indeed well worth while that we take note of these conditions and produce films that are really representative of the talent and ability of Hollywood. Let our Spanish films be the criterion as are our English-speaking productions!

New High for Foreign Films in U. S.

By Roman Rebush
Managing Director, Kinotrade

The "good neighbor policy" of President Roosevelt, and the pyramiding events in foreign countries have entered the American home.

This has increased to a great extent the interest in foreign motion pictures. People want first hand information. And what greater medium is there than the motion pictures?

We read about what is going on in other countries in the daily newspaper headlines. We hear them over the radio. The time has passed when we would say to ourselves that events in other countries and in other lands do not concern us. We know well they do and therefore we want to know these people, we want to see them, judge their emotional qualities. The answer to this is their motion picture product, which gives us the opportunity to get acquainted with people of all lands and continents, during a fleet hour of entertainment.

Therefore the year 1937 should reach a new height in the distribution of foreign product in the United States.

Must Know Foreign Field Needs

By Morris Kleinerman
President, Exhibitors Film Exchange

One of the most potent factors in selling is a clear and up-to-the-minute picture of the buying public's mind and as soon as this fact is realized and acted upon by the American independent producer, the sooner foreign sales will show a definite uptrend.

The foreign movie-goer is no longer thrilled with the simple fact that the figures on the screen move . . . that the scenes are vivid, thrilling, unusual or breathtaking; he also desires that this form of entertainment grow up with him. The American can no longer be lured by scenes taken from the back of a railroad train, nor does prosaic melodrama lure him to the box office. They desire intelligent material, well handled and photographed with a logical conclusion. The foreign cinema fan has likewise lost taste for a movie simply because it is a moving picture made in America. He, too, desires a logical, entertaining program through which he can be amused, informed and satisfied.

How soon will independent producers realize and accept the fact that both the foreign and the American public expect and enjoy pictures featuring action. Moving pictures that move, plots that move, situations arising and being climaxed. Unfortunately this tried and true formula has been supplanted with talking pictures that talk, reel upon reel, while the audience squirms in their seats and admires the interior decoration waiting for the next piece of ACTION.

As soon as the ill is discovered the patient must next be considered for some means of curing. This inactivity of characters is one; naive tales told in a weak and nonchalant manner is another and finally the glaring error of allowing this form of material to be constantly sent abroad to Scandinavia, the Far East and other hypercritical countries to be exhibited as typical American work.

When we consider that 250 countries in the world today are forming their own film producing companies, we would be indeed indolent to not arise to our respective toes to not only compete with but top, far and away this competition which the American independent producers, who pioneered in this field, should easily do if and when they knuckle down to the job of leading the field they created.

Department of Commerce

Promotes Exports of Motion Picture Products

By N. D. GOLDEN
Chief, Motion Picture Section
Electrical Division

The chief function of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the Department of Commerce, is "to promote and develop the foreign and domestic commerce of the United States." The organization of the Motion Picture Section and its method of operation, will be outlined herein, and it is hoped that the reader will be enabled to visualize the working of this branch of the Government, which is now generally recognized as contributing much toward expanding sales of American manufactured products in all parts of the world.

Major Sections of the Bureau

The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce should be considered in its three major sections:

(a) The Washington headquarters, from which the Director (who reports to the Secretary of Commerce) and his assistants control the operations of the bureau staff in both the foreign and domestic fields. Here is to be found a completely coordinated group of service divisions, both commodity and technical, working under the direction of men of practical experience and intimate acquaintance with the industry or specialized branch which they serve.

(b) The foreign service unit, which functions through the activities of its commercial attaches and trade commissioners, located in the capitals and leading commercial centers of the world.

(c) The group of district and cooperative offices, which have been carefully placed in the more prominent industrial centers of the United States, in order that information gathered abroad and transmitted to the Washington headquarters may be more readily disseminated to American business men.

Brief Description of Functions of Section

The Motion Picture Section, of the Electrical Division, is one of the specialized commodity sections in the bureau headquarters at Washington, and serves all branches of the motion picture industry. Since its inauguration in 1926, the Motion Picture Section has been in charge of men with a good background of experience and is well informed on the domestic and foreign aspects of these basic industrial functions.

It is the purpose of the Motion Picture Section to extend to the American manufacturer of motion pictures or motion picture equipment every possible assistance in organizing, developing and maintaining a profitable export business. It is also the purpose of this Section to keep abreast of world development in the trade in these products, in order to assist domestic manufacturers to cope more advantageously with the competition offered their products by foreign goods within the domestic markets of the United States.

The Motion Picture Section of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce serves the three separate and distinct units in the film trade—the producers and distributors of entertainment films, the manufacturers and sellers of motion picture equipment, and the producers and distributors of non-theatrical (industrial and educational) films.

With the first group the service of the Section lies chiefly in foreign markets. While the United States obviously forms the largest and most profitable outlet for film exhibitions, an average of around 30 to 40 percent of the total revenues from all sources come from abroad. At the present time the position of the American film industry is chiefly this: Pictures made in the United States still command the majority of showings in most foreign markets—certainly so throughout Latin America and in English-speaking territories. But formidable obstacles are arising, especially in Europe, which are making it increasingly hard to market our films overseas and which tend to cut down our revenues.

The primary efforts of the Section are therefore concentrated on aiding the American distributor of the above products to maintain and develop his sales abroad. This is done through answers to individual inquirers and through publication, from time to time, of material covering foreign-market surveys, the activities of competitors, statistics on foreign production and distribution, censorship laws, and the like.

The Section also endeavors, in so far as it is possible, to provide data on the domestic market; but until such time as sources of information are more detailed, its efforts in this direction are to a great degree limited.

The difficulties confronting film exporters abroad is a paramount need for as much frequent data as the Motion Picture Section can furnish, particularly from those foreign territories where the main troubles exist. This need is filled through annual surveys and are supplemented by frequent pamphlets dealing with recent conditions in individual markets. Statistical data embodying information relating to competition, number of films distributed by countries over given periods, number of theaters in different foreign territories, and the like, are constantly being published and are in great demand.

In such work the Section depends heavily upon the various foreign offices of the Department of Commerce. From these sources come the reports later distributed to the trade here.

The Motion Picture Section maintains close relationship with the foreign departments of the individual companies and with the various associations in the trade. Through these channels constant touch is maintained with the major foreign problems of the industry and thus the Section is able to supply its services to the maximum advantage of all concerned.

Publications

MOTION PICTURES ABROAD—Twice a month the Section releases a foreign market bulletin covering some important phase of the motion picture situation abroad. This bulletin may cover one foreign market or a number of foreign markets, and is based on reports received in the Section from foreign offices of the Department. The subscription price is $1.00 per year.

CURRENT RELEASES OF NON-THEATRICAL FILMS AND FILM NOTES—This service started in December 1932. As its name implies, it consists of the merging of a former bulletin entitled "Non-Theatrical Film Notes," containing news notes covering non-theatrical film developments in all countries, with a list of industrial and educational films (together with supplementary data on these) released by film producers during the preceding month. This bulletin is issued once a month, and is extremely valuable to all users of non-theatrical films. The yearly subscription rate for this service is $1.00.

WORLD WIDE MOTION PICTURE DEVELOPMENTS—Each Saturday the Section releases a series of news items relating to motion picture developments abroad. This service is free, but it is confined almost exclusively to the trade and lay press, which republishes the items.

STATISTICAL SERVICE—The Section's statistical service consists of a single statement, No. 3900. This statement shows exports to all countries of motion picture films, sensitized, not-exposed; negatives; positives; other sensitized films, not exposed; motion picture cameras (standard and sub-standard); projectors (standard and sub-standard); motion picture sound equipment, projection arc lamps. These statements are issued each month and the price is $1.00 per year.

REVIEW OF FOREIGN FILM MARKETS DURING 1936

By NATHAN D. GOLDEN
Chief, Motion Picture Section
Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce

The year 1936 brought to American producers of motion pictures the highest foreign revenues since the introduction of sound films in foreign markets in 1929-30. This is particularly gratifying in view of the intensive efforts on the part of foreign countries to establish their own film-producing industries. It is not difficult to determine the reasons for this increase in revenues when one realizes that the year witnessed the production of the finest crop of pictures ever produced by the American Film Industry, together with a definite return of economic prosperity in the major foreign markets.

While American distributors are still faced with legislative barriers in the free flow of their product in many foreign countries, those films which are permitted entry in restricted markets are so superior to the native product, that their dollars and cents returns make up for lack of quantity distribution. The year 1936 heard many rumblings for an intensification of legislation designed primarily to restrict American films and to foster domestic production in many of our choicest foreign outlets.

Chief among the foreign countries urging a change in its quota set-up is England—by far the most important revenue producer for American films. The Moyne report from the Board of Trade Committee, appointed to consider a renewal of the Cinematograph Films Act of 1927 which expires in 1938, made recommendations which if adopted by the British Parliament, may have far reaching effects on the American motion picture industry. The report recommends an extension of the present quota system for another period of 10 years, to be increased from the present 20 percent to 50 percent if conditions warrant; the establishment of a film council or committee to pass on the quality of films produced for quota purposes; the Government to take measures to assist the local industry in obtaining fresh capital; that a quota be established for short films commencing with 15 percent for distributors and 10 percent for exhibitors. Responsible to a great extent for these quota recommendations, is a very intensive national feeling that American habits of speech, dress and local customs may become widely adopted in Great Britain. It is presumed that on the basis of the above recommendations of the Moyne committee, the Board of Trade will draft a bill to be presented to Parliament before the Films Act of 1927 expires.

What is in store for American films interests in France at the end of the trade pact in July 1937, is difficult to prophesy. It must be remembered that the present Franco-American trade treaty was not negotiated or signed by the present French government and from present indications something in the way of legislation detrimental to American film interests looms on the horizon.

During 1936 legislation became operative in New South Wales and Victoria which provides quotas in those two States for Australian-produced feature films. In both cases, the quota for exhibitors is that 4 percent of the films shown on the screens must be Australian in the first year, increasing yearly by 2½ percent until a 12½ percent quota is reached in the fifth year. For distributors the range is from 5 percent in the first year increasing each year by 2½ percent to 15 percent in the fifth year.

While American films are still the backbone of the exhibition business in Mexico, there are demands on the part of Mexican producers for legislative measures designed for their protection. The Spanish Civil War has given the Mexican motion picture industry tremendous impetus in recapturing its leading position in the production of Spanish language features. Mexican studios during 1936 have produced films in greater numbers than ever before in the history of the native industry.

In the short space of one year film-producing in Finland has increased from one company to five. And all are operating at full speed to furnish the sudden demand for native language product. While the product is of an inferior nature, the Finnish theatres are playing to capacity, because of the novelty of hearing their own tongue from the screen.

Germany, at one time one of the most important markets for American motion pictures, virtually has ceased to exist because of the drastic impositions and decrees issued against films for the avowed protection of the German cultural interests.

The German Film Contingent Decree which expired June 30, 1936, was not extended, but in its place there was issued an Enabling Act which became effective on July 1, 1936. This decree empowers the German Propaganda Minister to state the conditions under which a film is to be considered as a German film as well as the conditions under which a foreign film may receive an import permit. While the wording of this new law is practically the same as that of the old one, the few alterations are of great importance. A German film, to be classified as such, must be produced by a company established under German law. All scenarios, music, directors and actors must be German, and only such persons are considered Germans who are of German nationality and of Aryan descent.

Paragraph 15 of this new law gives to the Propaganda Minister wide discretion in barring foreign films from the country. Permits under this paragraph may be refused when "foreign films whose tendency or effect is injurious to German prestige or where films in which actors participate who have previously appeared in pictures detrimental to German prestige."

During the year this paragraph was invoked on numerous occasions and greater interpretation has been placed upon it by the Censorship Board in its refusal to pass films of American companies with Jewish actors or Jewish music. These new regulations do not in themselves prevent American companies from carrying on their business in Germany. As a matter of fact, they raise the number of export permits contingent permits thus allowing a greater number of foreign pictures to come in than were permitted entrance last year. The actual number of American pictures which will come in however, will depend entirely upon the attitude of the Propaganda Ministry and the Board of Censorship. As a result of this condition, only three American distributors remain now in the German market. Regulations concerning the use of blocked marks have also been considerably strengthened. All these difficulties will eventually force a decision from American companies as to whether they will participate to a greater extent in domestic production by producing locally themselves, or by distributing locally-made products, or whether they will entirely withdraw from the German market.

New regulations governing the importation of American films into Italy were successfully negotiated in the latter months of 1936. This was not accomplished, however, until American companies ceased exporting their films to this market. Under the new regulations American firms may import 250 films each year, which is ample for their needs, and twenty million lire yearly will be permitted to be exported. There are no longer any restrictions with reference to mandatory method of investment in Italy of all funds above the afore stated permissible export figure.

While there is little likelihood that a quota will be favorably acted upon by the Egyptian

Government, nationalistic propaganda is fostering the development of an Egyptian industry for the production of films in the Arabic language. The suggestion has been made to the Government by the local film industry proposing the compulsory use of a quota of Egyptian films in relation to foreign films.

A serious situation was averted in Cuba during the past year when the Government reversed its position, that all American films should first be censored by a board created for that purpose in New York City. This reversal, however, was not accomplished until American film companies refused to submit films to this board, or to send their product to Cuba. During the year 1936 a bill was introduced in the Cuban Senate providing for the creation of an organization known as the National Motion Picture Board whose functions would be to supervise, lend financial assistance, and generally assist in the development of a motion picture industry on the island.

On January 20, 1936, the labor syndicate accepted the final offer of the American motion picture distributors and thus brought to a conclusion a controversy which had paralyzed the American industry in Mexico since September 1935. Matters relating to taxes and import duties were successfully negotiated in conferences between the Minister of Finance and the distributors. Upon the issuance of three decrees on February 7, 1936, American companies again resumed the distribution of their products after an absence of nearly four months.

"Frozen" or "blocked" funds also contributed to the obstacles placed in the path of American companies in the transaction of their business abroad during 1936. Foreign Governments more than ever, during the year just completed, are taking a direct interest in production of motion pictures.

In some markets of Latin America and Europe there is a well defined trend against "dubbed" films. In Belgium American films with English dialogue and superimposed titles in French and Flemish are preferred. Our Commercial Attache advises that in Antwerp and Brussels, which are the largest markets in Belgium, the majority of the people understand English and prefer this type of film.

In Guatemala, Dominican Republic and Costa Rica there is a definite dislike for "dubbed" films.

Exports of American motion picture films for the first 10 months of 1936 show a 9-million-foot gain over the same period of 1935. During the first 10 months of 1936 a total of 171,612,451 linear feet of American negative and positive, sound and silent films, with a declared value of $3,683,517 were exported to foreign markets as compared with 162,238,524 linear feet with a declared value of $3,495,582 for the first 10 months of 1935. A breakdown of the above totals is shown in the following table:

During the year 1936 foreign motion picture production amounted to approximately 1374 feature films. European production totaled 721 feature films during 1936, an increase of 79 pictures over 1935. Of this number the following countries made the largest contributions: England 217, Germany 130, France 125, Russia 92, Spain 32, Sweden 27, Czechoslovakia 26, and Hungary 20.

Latin American production during 1936 fell off somewhat, only 56 features being accounted for, as compared with 83 films during 1935. Mexico produced 28 features, Argentina 20, Brazil 7, and Peru 1 feature during the year.

In the Far and Near East production increased in 1936 to 648 feature films as against approximately 515 pictures in 1935. The leading producing country in the Far East was Japan with 470 features, with China furnishing 100, India 40, the Philippines 15, Egypt 10, Australia 9, New Zealand 3, and Netherlands India 1.

The increased motion picture production in foreign countries substantiates the interest exhibited by foreign governments, in the creation of their own producing industries. The showing of these locally-produced films, regardless of their quality, reduces the number of play dates for our American product.

The screen has become a new factor in international diplomacy and some nations have attempted to tell Hollywood what shall and what shall not be put into films under the threat that an offending company's products may be barred in toto from the market. In some cases these threats have been effective to the extent that films are either withdrawn from world circulation, or the objectionable stories, although purchased and paid for, are never produced. The complete inability of foreign governments to control our production, and their need for national expression at home and before the rest of the world, are factors largely responsible for their intense interest in building up their own film industries.

While the foreign outlook appears somewhat dubious, it is very evident from the foregoing data that foreign governments bent upon establishing their own motion picture industries will wield a great influence through the medium of legislation in accomplishing this end. The American industry, fully cognizant of the ulterior motives behind the creation of these legislative barriers, have but one weapon with which to combat these obstacles. This is the production of pictures with an international appeal which are so obviously superior in their technique and story value to other productions that foreign audiences will insist on seeing them. This may result in foreign governments being forced by the insistent demands of natives either to remove or modify legislation directed against American films.

It can be said with assurance that good American pictures as a general rule will be preferred by foreign audiences to national productions which with few exceptions have been of mediocre character. It follows therefore that the outstanding factor in the international situation will be the caliber of the productions which the American motion picture industry attempts to market abroad.

ENGLAND

DURING 1936

By ERNEST W. FREDMAN

Managing Editor of "THE DAILY FILM RENTER"

LOOKING back over the past twelve months I should say 1936 has been probably the biggest year in the history of the British film industry. Certainly, at no time since its inception has it made greater progress as regards production—theaters—and studios—for whereas twelve months ago Britain was decidedly badly off for really good studio accommodation—today she possesses great stages at Denham, where London Film Productions have a huge studio quite equal to anything in California; at Pinewood, which is also a marvellous job of work; the new Amalgamated Studios at Elstree, shortly to be opened, costing the best part of a million pounds; the Joe Rock—Henry Iles Studios, reputed to have cost £500,000—and still others in course of erection.

Taking the business in its order, production has certainly gone ahead in no unmistakable fashion. From the purely production point of view London Films have taken the lead. This important company, whose head, Alexander Korda, is known the world over, moved into their vast Denham Studios in the middle of the year, where they have immense stages capable of housing at least a dozen units at one time.

These studios are a marvel in construction and occupy many acres of ground, functioning upon the same lines as the great studios in Hollywood. They were constructed by the Californian expert, Jack Okey, and, with the big program of London Films and its allied producers, are working to capacity. Films such as "Rembrandt" with Charles Laughton; "Fire Over England" with Flora Robson as Queen Elizabeth; "Dark Journey" with Conrad Veidt; "Men Are Not Gods," featuring Miriam Hopkins in her British debut; "Moonlight Sonata" with Paderewski and Marie Tempest; "Dreaming Lips" with Elisabeth Bergner, have all been made at Denham, and a big program is scheduled for 1937, all to be made at Denham.

Only a short distance away at Iver, are the Pinewood Studios, where Herbert Wilcox Productions and British National hold sway at the moment of writing. Wilcox has just completed in this Studio "London Melody" with Tullio Carminati and Anna Neagle, and will go into production early in the New Year with a series of ambitious films. This is also the home of British National Films, whose product will be made there.

Gaumont-British, who have given us some big pictures in the past year, such as "Tudor Rose" with Nova Pilbeam and Sir Cedric Hardwicke, "His Lordship" with Arliss in a dual role and "It's Love Again" with Jessie Matthews, their great star, are embarking on a slightly modified program for 1937 at Shepherds Bush studios, reducing their units from six to two, but they do not intend impairing the standard of their output.

British International Pictures at Elstree, who have been quiet for some months, John Maxwell believing in a conservative policy, have now gone ahead with an ambitious program which includes six pictures:—"Bulldog Drummond At Bay" with John Lodge; "Please Teacher" with Bobby Howes; "Glamorous Night" with Mary Ellis; "Kathleen Mavourneen" with Sally O'Neil; "The Dominant Sex" with Phillips Holmes and Diana Churchill, and "Aren't Men Beasts" with Robertson Hare, all of which will be made at either the Elstree studios or Welwyn.

Associated Talking Pictures who, after their next film with Gracie Fields, lose the services of this star, have concentrated on a new comedian, George Formby, who has achieved phenomenal success, particularly with provincial audiences, have a busy program outlined at their Studios at Ealing.

Julius Hagen, who now controls Studios at Twickenham, Hammersmith and Elstree, and who, over the past twelve months has made "Broken Blossoms" with Emlyn Williams and Dolly Haas, "Spy of Napoleon" with Richard Barthelmess and Dolly Haas, and "The Man In The Mirror" with Genevieve Tobin and Edward Everett Horton, will have no less than ten pictures, either completed or in course of production, in the early weeks of the New Year.

Capitol Film Productions, who have just made "Pagliacci" with Richard Tauber and "Dreaming Lips" with Elisabeth Bergner, are busy with a new Tom Walls and Ralph Lynn subject; also "The Lilac Domino" with Michael Bartlett. And with their just completed "Love From A Stranger," with Basil Rathbone and Ann Harding, will have a program of at least twelve films, costing probably a million pounds for 1937.

Production is booming with the independents, who seem to be spending more and more money. Money seems to be plentiful and producing concerns experience little difficulty in meeting their requirements in that direction, but whether it will ultimately prove successful is, as I said last year, more or less on the knees of the gods.

Certainly, Great Britain spent more on its pictures last year, than ever before in its trade history. With their eyes on the world market, British producers have not hesitated to borrow from Hollywood some of its foremost stars, and have lavished money on production, but with the exception of Gaumont-British, who are now established in the United States, and the London Film product, which is marketed through United Artists, one cannot discern any great progress toward obtaining American support for British pictures.

Turning from product to theaters, here the position is little short of amazing. Circuit after circuit is now building as fast as it can, and the cry of the small independent theater owner, who sees himself likely to be forced out of existence by the menace, is heard on all hands.

Odeon Theaters, who a year ago had a circuit of fifty, have now passed their hundredth, with sixty more actually in building. It is anticipated that by the summer of 1937, they will reach the two hundred mark. Oscar Deutsch, the presiding head of Odeon, sends his scouts far and wide throughout the land searching for locations, where 1,000 and 1,500 seaters can be usefully erected, and it must be admitted, his policy has to date met with successful results.

Union Cinemas Ltd., another rapidly growing circuit, have adopted a similar policy, and with their subsidiaries will, in the very near future, control anything up to three hundred theaters.

Competition in the theater line is fierce. Gaumont-British still head the list with their three hundred odd houses, with Associated British running them close with two hundred and fifty, after which comes the Union Cinemas, Odeon Theaters, the Doada Circuit, the Bernstein houses, H. D. Moorhouse circuit and various smaller chains up and down the country.

Today kinemas are being erected in almost every village in the land. Redundancy is the cry of the independents, but it has no avail—kinemas go up, with plenty of money forthcoming for their promotion.

Tremendous profits have been earned by the big circuits during 1936, the balance sheet of Associated British Cinemas showing the remarkable profits of close on one million pounds, with Gaumont-British running them very close with over £700,000. profit, most of which has been derived from the theaters. Union Cinemas have similarly shown great profit expansion, and to say that there is a theater boom is a mild way of describing conditions in Great Britain during 1936.

Attendances at theaters during the year have been phenomenal; summer weather was unprecedented, with the result theaters benefited accordingly.

One of the main sensations of the British industry over the past year is undoubtedly the Lord Moyne Committee's Report, framing recommendations for the new Films Act which, if adopted, will come into operation in 1938 when the present one expires.

It is a drastic document in every way, and under its proposals, if they go through, it seems distributors, particularly American, will come off rather badly.

There are twenty-eight recommendations which provide a clear summary of the Report:

(i) The Government should keep a close watch on transfers of interests in British producing, renting and exhibiting units with a view to taking such steps as may be practicable to prevent control passing abroad.

(ii) The Government should, as soon as may be, take such steps as may be practicable to encourage financial interests to constitute one or more organizations to finance British film production, in approved cases, on reasonable terms.

(iii) The requirement of quotas on the renting and exhibition of British films should continue for a further period of 10 years.

(iv) There should be a quota of British long films and a separate quota of British short films, both for renter and exhibitor, the short film quotas not being satisfied by a surplus of long film quota.

Quality Stipulations

(v) The quota of British long films to be satisfied by renters at the outset of new legislation should be 20 per cent. and that to be met by exhibitors 15 per cent., measured on the basis of the total length of all registered long films acquired for renting, or exhibited, as the case may be.

(vi) (a) The British long film quota, both on renters and exhibitors, in the years following the first year under new legislation, should be fixed by the administering authority on the basis of the actual output of British long films of a good standard of quality in the calendar year immediately preceding that in which the renters' and exhibitors' quota years commence, the ultimate aim being a quota of 50 per cent. The administering authority should be directed by statute to have regard, in fixing the quota, to the general quality of the films available from the point of view of the public who see them.

Shorts Percentages

(b) The administering authority should have power to require the necessary returns from producers and to view all films for the assessment of quality, for the purpose of fixing the future quotas. It should be constituted an offence to refuse the requisite information or opportunities for viewing.

(vii) The initial quotas of British short films should be 15 per cent. in the case of the renter and 10 per cent. in the case of the exhibitor, these proportions being calculated on the basis of all registered short films acquired for renting, or exhibited, as the case may be.

(viii) The method of fixing future quotas which is recommended in the case of long films should be applied also to short films and with a similar ultimate quota in view.

(ix) A quality test based directly on a viewing of the film should be applied to all British long and short films, in respect of which registration for renters' quota is desired.

(x) British long and short films which it is not desired to register for renters' quota should, without being required to pass a quality test, be registrable for exhibitors' quota.

(xi) British long and short films which have failed to pass the quality test should also be eligible for registration for exhibitors' quota.

(xii) All long and short films should be trade shown, whether registered for renters' quota or for exhibitors' quota only.

(xiii) The exhibitors' quota should be computed on a quarterly basis and the renters' quota on a six-monthly basis, returns being furnished to the administering authority annually as heretofore. A deficiency in the exhibitors' quota not exceeding 20 per cent. should be permitted in any quarter, provided it is made good in the immediately following quarter of the same quota year.

(xiv) On a first conviction for the offence of failure to comply with the renters' quota, rather than on the third conviction as at present, the renters' license should be liable to revocation if the court is of opinion that the offence was deliberate.

(xv) The administering authority should be authorized to allow, in its discretion, the renting of one copy only of any foreign film which has not been exhibited to the public in Great Britain within the current exhibitors' quota year, for exhibition for a total period not exceeding 12 weeks—of which at least half is outside the County of London—without the necessity for the renter to acquire the quota of British film in respect of it. The provisions of the Act of 1927 with regard to the exhibitors' quota should not be affected by such concession and the provisions of Section 19 (3), 23 (2) and 32 (2) of the Act should be continued to meet special difficulties which may arise.

(xvi) Films made in any part of the Empire, should, when registered for renters' quota, but not when registered for exhibitors' quota only, satisfy the same quality test as films made in Great Britain.

(xvii) The Government should approach those Dominion States in which film quota legislation is in operation to protect the local industry, with a view of urging that treatment given by them to films made in Great Britain should be as far as possible reciprocal to that received by their films in this country.

(xviii) A proportion of foreign film up to 10 per cent. of the total length of the film, or 20 per cent. of the studio scenes, whichever is the lesser, should be allowed in films registered as British, the film being treated for purposes of the cost assessment of a British film and for the purpose of the registered length as if the foreign percentage were absent.

Scenarist's Nationality

(xix) Provided the requirements of paragraph (iv) of Section 27 (3) of the Act of 1927 are continued, the requirement of a British scenario author in a British film should be withdrawn.

(xx) The films to which new legislation should apply should be all cinematograph films other than purely news reels and films which are wholly or mainly commercial advertisements.

(xxi) On every application for the registration of a film a statutory declaration should be required from the renter of the film or, where the renter is a limited company, from the secretary or a director of the company, to the effect that after making all reasonable inquiries he is satisfied that the blind booking provisions of the Act have not been infringed in respect of the film in question.

(xxii) The penalty for infringement of the blind booking provisions should be removed from the exhibitor, remaining only on the renter, and the maximum penalty on summary conviction for infringement of the blind booking provisions should be increased to £250 in respect of each film in question. On a second conviction the license of the renter should, in addition to any other penalties, be liable to suspension or cancellation.

(xxiii) The restrictions on advance booking should be withdrawn.

Block Booking

(xxiv) It should be made an offence for a renter to make or attempt to make it a condition of booking any film or films that an exhibitor should book also other films, lonrg or short, which he does not desire to book, and the whole of the provisions with regard to blind booking should be applied to this offence of block booking, a statutory declaration being also required with each annual renters' quota return.

(xxv) Exhibition of a film to the public before being trade shown, for the purpose of a 'try-out,' should be allowed on as many as three occasions at the same or different theaters, provided such exhibitions are unadvertised.

(xxvi) Consideration should be given to the question of taking an annual census of the film production industry in this country.

(xxvii) We do not at present recommend that the new legislation should apply to sub-standard films. The Government should, however, watch carefully the production of such films with a view to taking suitable measures to deal with any harmful degree of foreign competition which may ultimately arise.

(xxviii) For the purpose of administering the provisions of new legislation giving effect to our other recommendations we recommend that the Government should constitute a Films Commission composed of a Chairman and not less than two, or more than four, other members, all being entirely independent of any professional or pecuniary interests in any branch of the films industry, such Commission to have the executive and other powers to which we have referred in the body of our Report and for the purposes named therein.

Thus it will be seen that the future of the British film industry may be even more firmly established within the next year or two, because if it is a condition that British films will have to be included on a high percentage among picture programs, it will undoubtedly give an immense fillip to further British production.

On the other hand, it may have the effect of reducing the number of American pictures that enter this country, as the Quota in the course of the next ten years can rise as high as fifty per cent, although it must be remembered that every step in the increasing scale will be dependent upon the progress made in the preceding year. 1937 may be the testing year for British films.

FRANCE
DURING 1936

By P. A. HARLE
Editor and Publisher
"La Cinematographie Francaise"

LOOKING BACK on the year which has closed, we have the agreeable impression that this is the end of a trying period and that 1937 should bring a return to good business for the French cinema.

Our friends in America and London have made progress. Do not imagine that France sleeps. We start off slowly, as is our habit, but the movement has already begun. It is therefore with a smile that we send our best wishes to our comrades throughout the world.

During 1936 France made nearly as many films as in 1935, or twice as many as in the days of silent pictures. Box-office receipts were about the same in 1936 as 1935. For a period of business, which all agree was very trying, the results are quite satisfactory.

French exhibitors have acquired an appreciation and knowledge of exploitation and many of the theaters have been made more comfortable with better ventilation and new projection equipment.

The 18 French studios are well equipped and their production units are made up of experienced technical manpower experienced in their work through the productions of 500 sound features since 1932. An important production advantage is the "team work" of the various units.

The financial situations of Pathe and Gaumont are being cleared and these companies, which formerly produced half of the total French films, should soon return to production.

It has required several years to build up a stable industrial foundation but the base has been solidified and those abroad can now place full confidence in the French film industry.

GERMANY

DURING 1936

By DR. BUHRBANCK
"Lichtbildbuehne," Berlin

THE German film business for the year 1936 is enjoying a remarkable revival of activity, reflected especially in a steady increase of attendance. As compared with the previous year this increase may be put at 30 per cent. Thus for example, in Berlin for August and September 1936 as compared with 1935, the number of admissions for these two months rose from 8.3 to 10.2 million, and the gate receipts for the same period rose from 6.7 to 8.4 million marks. This welcome phenomenon can be attributed chiefly to two causes: first, the generally improved economic situation of the German public and secondly, the improved quality of the German films. The large scale program of the German Government for creating employment has reinstated millions of theretofore unemployed into our economic life, simultaneously creating an increase of the total public wealth. For the future it is likely that the economic status of the German people will continue to improve, since the 4-year plan embarked upon in this year will conduce to stabilizing German business and therewith, to reassuring the individual with regard to his ability to earn a livelihood. The fact that the improvement in quality was accompanied by an increased attendance is a matter of general experience. That the improvement in quality should have gone hand in hand with a considerable increase in production costs was something that could not be avoided. The runs of the films have grown shorter, the preparation for each film has been conducted with greater care, the wages and salaries of the technical staff, including the stars, were constantly rising. Consequently the average cost today of a German film produced in the German language only, is estimated at about 440,000 Marks, a sum which used to apply to films of the very highest order only. All this explains why producers and lessors are not yet contented with their results, despite the steadily rising receipts of the theaters. Efforts aiming at a rational reduction of the growing expenditures noted above, have been on foot for several months and are heartily seconded by the Film-Credit Bank which requires the most carefully worked out estimate for any film, in the financing of which it co-operates.

In proof of the betterment in the quality of German films, the recognition which they won in Venice might be cited. At the International Film Convention, Luis Trenker received for his film: "The Emperor of California," the highest prize, the Mussolini Cup. A film entitled "Youth of the World," an artistic portrayal of the Winter Olympics, was pronounced to be the best documentary film and received the Luce Cup by way of recognition. "Schlussaccord" (the Last Chord) received the prize offered by the Theatrical Institute for the best musical film. Medals were awarded to the films: "Verraeter" (Traitors), "Ave Maria" and to the 3 German educational films: "Metall des Himmels" (Sky Metal), "Ein Meer versinkt" (An ocean seeps away) and "Die Kamera faehrt mit" (The camera goes along). The 1936-37 production includes altogether 220 films, of which some 155 are of German production. The firms are represented in point of numbers as follows: Ufa, 30; Syndikat, 23; Tobis Rota, 22; Tobis Europa, 22; Bavaria, 20; Terra, 14; Metro, 12; Paramount, 12; Maerkische-Panorama, 10; Deutsche Fox 10 (approx.); Siegel Monopol, 8; N.A.G., 7. To these should be added a number of smaller firms, which have not announced their programs, but which bring out their films as the occasion demands.

The advance-preparation of the intended production, recommended by the President of the German National Film Chamber, Prof. Lehnich on the day of his assumption of office, has been put into effect in almost all quarters. Thus Ufa, out of the 30 films announced, will have finished 28 by the End of 1936; Syndikat will have 6 ready by the middle of November with 7 more in process of production and 9 in preparation. Out of 14 films, Terra has 8 finished, 3 in process of production and 3 in preparation. Bavaria announces that in November alone it is putting on 8 original exhibitions. To what extent advance work on films is now the fashion will be seen from the fact that Ufa will begin its studio work for the 1937-38 season, as early as this month of December, and that in the case of the other firms also, preparation is well under way. For the most part the subjects have already been selected, and to a considerable extent the obligations of the authors, composers, stage managers and chief actors have already been set out in the form of contracts.

The great international conventions such as the Congress of Authors in Berlin, the Color-Sound-Congress in Hamburg, as well as the special efforts made by the German film-theaters during the Olympic Games have given foreigners, many thousands of them, the opportunity to become acquainted with the German film of today. It is with sincere regret that the film world of Germany feels that it is still badly misunderstood abroad. Germany which offers to the foreign film every possible opportunity compatible with its own vital interests seeks a cultural exchange with other countries, for the sake of the mutual good to be derived from such an arrangement. All this is shown by the number of participants in the tour of investigation undertaken by the German Film Theater Proprietors to Vienna, Budapest and Prague. For 1937 a similar trip is planned to America, for the sake of investigating the artistic and business sides of the American film industry on the spot.

A particularly active feature of this year was the schooling provided for individuals connected with film-work. In co-operation with Universities and high schools, a number of film-workers' associations were formed along the lines of the Film Seminar of the Lessing High School in Berlin, and supervised by Dr. Eckard. At the same time under the supervision of Mr. Hans Weidemann, Vice-President of the German Film Chamber, evenings were devoted to the study of the vital questions relating to the art of film-making. Film amateurs also greatly increased in numbers and have been made eligible to the German Film Chamber. In the political field and under the jurisdiction of the Film Division of the Department of Propaganda, valuable film-productions have been carried into the smallest villages and are of extraordinary educational value to young people especially, which means that missionary work is being done to teach the people to know and to appreciate a good film, and to demand good films, and that the film-theater going public is being increased far above the present numbers. How greatly the German film appeals to the German people is shown by the unique W H W Meet which is part of the comprehensive Winter Aid Program. Direct contributions amounted to 75,000 Marks in the first two weeks; free performances are given to the beneficiaries of the Winter Aid and were attended in Berlin alone by some 140,000 spectators in 191 theaters on the first occasion on which this plan was tried.

Ten Years of Soviet Films In the United States

By VLADIMIR I. VERLINSKY

Amkino Corporation, exclusive distributors of Soviet motion pictures in North and South America, opened offices in New York City in November, 1926. Soon afterwards "Potemkin," the first Soviet film seen in America, was exhibited to a New York audience.

The picture was received with great acclaim. It had an acknowledged influence on the development of American film technique, introducing as it did Eisenstein's famous "montage." But "Potemkin" had limited distribution. And this was generally true of even the most outstanding Soviet films up until 1935. Since that time, Soviet pictures have been shown with great commercial success in the United States, Canada, Mexico, and South America. Today Soviet films are in greater demand than ever before. This demand is daily becoming more manifest.

The rapidly growing list of notable Soviet pictures released in the U. S. since includes important pictures like "Chapayev," "Peasants," "New Gulliver," "Youth of Maxim," "We Are From Kronstadt," "Gypsies," "A Greater Promise," "Son of Mongolia" and "Revolutionists." Amkino has scheduled for 1937 release such noteworthy attractions as "Peter the Great," an historical drama by Alexei Tolstoy which is the most expensive Soviet production to date; Eisenstein's "Bejin Meadows," "Return of Maxim," a sequel to the successful "Youth of Maxim"; "Paris Commune," the story of the French Revolution, and other pictures.

Before sound, Soviet silent films were shown in only a few American cities. Throughout 1936, Soviet films were regularly shown in 232 cities of the United States and Canada.

In large metropolitan centers like New York, Chicago, Philadelphia and other cities, Amkino has obtained wide distribution for Soviet films. When I say, wide distribution, I speak comparatively, and only of foreign films. For example, in New York City about 70 theaters regularly play Soviet pictures. In Chicago close to 20 theaters show Soviet films and in Philadelphia about 15 theaters. I believe that no other foreign films are so widely distributed in the U. S.

This result is a tribute to the artistic quality of Soviet films which are made solely for the domestic Soviet market. Nearly all pictures produced in the Soviet Union have a native Russian theme, of either current or historical interest. The function of the Soviet cinema has been to entertain and educate the Russian people and it will continue to do this.

Amkino Corporation released 17 pictures in the U. S. during 1935 and also in 1936. In 1937 we expect to release about 20 pictures selected from between 350 and 400 pictures that will be produced in the Soviet Union.

Since the visit here in 1935 of B. Z. Shumiatsky, head of the Soviet motion picture industry, Soviet production has been greatly improved. The two largest motion picture studios in the U.S.S.R., the Mosfilm Studios in Moscow and the Lenfilm Studios in Leningrad, have been equipped with the most modern production apparatus. Both studios have adopted American methods of production and organization to a considerable degree. During 1936, close to $500,000 was expended in the United States on purchases of equipment for remodeling Soviet studios. The Soviet motion picture industry intends to continue making large purchases in the U. S. Many American film technicians are now employed in Moscow and Leningrad studios.

The construction of a Soviet Hollywood, now under way in the south of Russia, will signal a gigantic advance in the Soviet motion picture production. Construction of the first section of this Soviet cinema city will cost 305 million roubles. The first section will have 40 sound stages and production of 200 feature pictures is planned for the year following its completion.

Amkino has purchased some American films for exhibition in the Soviet Union and intends to buy more. Its acquisitions include two Chaplin pictures, "Modern Times" and "City Lights," several Walt Disney cartoons, "La Cucaracha" and "The Invisible Man."

The excess of dialogue over action in American pictures makes it difficult to show them in the Soviet Union. Superimposing titles has not been successful. This was tried with two Rene Clair films with poor result. The Chaplin films have been immensely popular in the Soviet Union because of the brilliance of their conception and also because they have a minimum of dialogue and much action.

CANADA AND NEWFOUNDLAND

DURING 1936

SOME Canadian exhibitors have been expressing individual disappointment because of the "slightly increased" volume of business they are enjoying. Probably their expectations were too high, or they have acquired the habit. Certainly business in 1936 showed a decided improvement over business in any of the three previous years.

The general index of Canadian business activity is given at 97% as compared with 91% in November of 1935. Bank debits, bank deposits, and stock market prices all show a considerable increase. Only current loans are lower indicating that Canadian business is not yet mortgaging the future. Exports and imports are much higher. Construction lags, but agricultural income in Western Canada was 51% better in August and September than in the same months last year. Gross value of Canada's principal field crops was $85,000,000 greater in 1936 than in 1935. The greatest of all improvements is shown in mining, especially in the production of gold, nickel, lead and zinc. Canada is making steady and solid progress.

Wired theatres in November 1936 totalled 1033 as compared with 833 in 1935. There are now more wired theatres operating in Canada than in any time since sound was introduced. Only a few of these new theatres are in the six-day-a-week class. Many of them are in towns and villages with limited population. About 20 theatres in Quebec show French Pictures only. About 15 situations are open only in the summer.

In January 1935 there were about 300 places in Canada served by travelling showmen. These small halls could not be justifiably classed as "theatres." The distributors decided that there should be a gradual process of changing these travelling shows into permanent theatres. This policy had been followed persistently for two years, and these 300 situations have been reduced to less than 50. In two of the Western territories about 80 situations formerly served by travelling equipment have now fireproof projection rooms and permanent equipment.

There has been no great change in the number of pictures imported. About the same number of United States features (524) and shorts were imported during the year as in previous years. The number of British pictures shows a slight decrease. Several of the Distributors have brought in French features for use in the Province of Quebec. In the case of the British and United States feature pictures, the negatives are imported and from 5 to 15 positives are made in Canada at one of the two laboratories in Toronto and Montreal. Imports of positives from all countries are only about 20% of the footage imported ten years ago. Features released in 1936 totaled 596, including 425 from the United States, 35 British and Canadian, 111 French features (distributed only in the Province of Quebec), and 25 independent importations.

During the year the Canadian License Agreement, which is Canada's standard contract, was rewritten and revised. The new form came into force on June 1st, 1936. Perhaps the most important addition was the clause reading "That the Exhibitor's theatre during the entire term of this contract will be equipped with a permanently installed projection machine." This standard contract is accepted by all theatre owners and suggested changes are submitted to the provincial theatre associations before being adopted.

The six Film Boards established in 1925 are still functioning effectively. Arbitration, Safety Committees and Credit Committees are carried on as they were in Canada and the United States before 1930. In some cities there are local Clearance Committees, but this development has met with some opposition.

Distribution houses show very little change. Gaumont-British formerly handled by Regal Films, is now handled by Empire Films, while Regal distribute for other selected British producers. Warners, Paramount, 20th Century Fox, Universal, United Artists and R. K. O. are handled by Branch Canadian companies of the same name. Metro-Goldwyn is still handled by Regal Films, and Columbia by Columbia of Canada.

A new Copyright Bill establishes a Copyright Appeal Board at Ottawa and the rates charged for performing rights are to be fixed once a year by the new Board. At a recent meeting of performing rights societies and theatre interests, the rates to be paid in 1937 were agreed upon in advance of the meeting of the government appointed commission.

Production is still limited. A number of shorts were produced by Associated Screen News of Montreal and the Dominion Motion Picture Bureau at Ottawa. Fox produced a quintuplet picture in Ontario and Gaumont-British made a Canadian epic in the Canadian West. Canada lags behind Australia in native production.

Survey of CANADIAN EXCHANGE TERRITORIES

TORONTO TERRITORY

Toronto exchanges supply the Province of Ontario. Approximately 40 per cent of all Dominion film rentals are produced by this territory, which has a total of 324 theatres, an increase of 37 over the 1935 figures. Of these theatres 104 are situated in Toronto. In addition to the fact that this City serves as the exchange centre for the territory, it also functions as Dominion headquarters for virtually all distributors operating in Canada and Newfoundland. The principal centres of population in addition to Toronto are Hamilton, Ottawa, Windsor, Kitchener, St. Catherines, Oshawa, London and Brantford. The Provincial censorship charge is $6.00 per reel for "foreign" sound film and $3.00 per reel for British pictures. The trailer censorship charge is $3.00. The Censor Board is at present composed of two persons where formerly there were six. There is an appeal Board of three government officials. The appeal fee is $10.00 per reel.

MONTREAL TERRITORY

Montreal exchanges supply the Province of Quebec, which is next to the Province of Ontario in film importance in the Dominion. This territory has 169 theatres, 20 showing French pictures exclusively, and at least one-half of the balance both French and English pictures. Censorship regulations are somewhat difficult due to the different ideals of the French speaking population. Children under 16 years of age are prohibited from attending picture shows, even if accompanied by an adult. The censorship fee is $3.00 per reel and the privilege license fee for exchanges is $200.00 per year. The principal centres of population are Montreal, Quebec, Three Rivers, Sherbrooke, Hull and Verdun.

SAINT JOHN TERRITORY

Saint John exchanges supply the Provinces of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island, and the independent Dominion of Newfoundland. There are 97 theatres now operating in this territory and principally located in such cities as Saint John, N. B., Halifax, N. S., Moncton, N. B., Sidney, N. S., Glace Bay, N. S., and St. John's, Newfoundland. Nova Scotia charges $3.00 per reel as a censorship fee while in New Brunswick the assessment is $2.50 per reel. The trailer censorship charge is fifty cents in Nova Scotia and seventy-five cents in New Brunswick. These are no censor boards in Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland. In Nova Scotia there is a separate appeal board, while in New Brunswick exchanges may take an appeal to a Superior Court Judge. Exchange license fees charged by the various Provinces are as follows:—New Brunswick $250., and Nova Scotia $250. No such fees are levied in Prince Edward Island or Newfoundland.

WINNIPEG TERRITORY

Winnipeg exchanges supply the Province of Manitoba, that part of Ontario west of Lake Superior and eastern Saskatchewan. The total number of theatres is 177, which shows an increase of 38 over last year. Winnipeg has the largest number of theatres in this territory. Both the Manitoba and Saskatchewan Censor Boards have their headquarters there, each with a license fee of $2.00 per reel. There is an appeal board for Manitoba but none for Saskatchewan. The exchange license fee in each province is $250.

CALGARY TERRITORY

Calgary exchanges supply the Province of Alberta, the western part of Saskatchewan and seven towns in British Columbia. The total number of theatres supplied is 167, which shows a considerable increase due principally to the fact that a large number of small towns supplied last year by travelling showmen are now permanent situations. A charge of $4.00 per reel is charged by the Alberta Censor Board in Edmonton. The exchange license fee is $250. in Alberta.

VANCOUVER TERRITORY

Vancouver exchanges supply the Province of British Columbia. The total number of theatres supplied is 99. The exchange license fee is $300. and the censorship fee is $3.00 per reel of 1,000 feet, and $2.00 per reel for each additional print. Appeals may be filed from the decisions of the Censor Board to an appeal board comprising three members appointed by the Attorney General of the Province.

MOTION PICTURE MARKETS

AN INTERNATIONAL SURVEY

The following survey of the World's film markets was compiled by the Motion Picture Section of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. Lists of importers, distributors, etc. were obtained in a FILM DAILY world-wide survey.

ALBANIA

Legislation—None.

Censorship—Although there exists no censorship law in Albania, films are censored by a commission consisting of representatives of the Ministry of Education, the police, the Court, the Press Bureau and the Prefecture. Films are censored from moral and political points of view.

Competition—The United States and Germany have almost equal shares in the film market in Albania, while France and Italy together account for only about 10 per cent. The Albanian public shows a considerable liking for German films because they are generally musical comedies while American films are mostly dramas. German films have always been cheaper than American films and at present American films are progressively increasing in price.

Copyright Relations—None.

Production—None.

Taxes—(1) Customs Duties: Films imported into Albania and which are to be re-exported within 45 days pay a customs duty of 20 gold francs for 100 kilograms.

(2) Municipal Taxes: (a) Annual tax of 300 to 500 gold francs, according to importance (b) Amusement tax of 6 gold francs daily.

(3) Ministry of Finance Income Tax (not fixed).

(4) Miscellaneous stamp taxes.

Theaters—14 theaters in Albania.

Sound—14 theaters wired for sound.

ARGENTINA

Legislation—Previous adverse criticism based on a desire of the local populace to see more Spanish-dialog films has been partly met by an increase in the number of these films exhibited during the year. The newly formed Instituto Cinematografico Argentino, under Government auspices, is expected to establish national regulations pertaining to the motion picture industry, with the probability that the growing domestic producing industry will be favored.

Censorship—Film censorship in Argentina is reasonably lenient, with each municipality undertaking its own censorship. It is possible that some national regulation will be formulated by the above mentioned Cinematografico Argentino, under authority granted to it by Law No. 11,723 dated September 28, 1933.

Censorship in the federal capital is based on Ordinance 5439, dated December 28, 1933, and promulgated on January 17, 1934. An honorary commission is composed of eight members from various offices of the municipal and federal Governments, supplemented by one member representing the production and distribution industry. Each of the other important cities has a censorship body formed somewhat along these lines.

While there are no national censorship standards, it may be said that approval is generally given to films with the exception of the following types: those stressing immorality or bad taste; those which ridicule religion; those which contain propaganda insidious to the Government; and those which might lead to international complications. Scientific films may be exhibited to doctors or to other appropriate professions, but are generally not exhibited to the public.

Competition—About eighty-five percent of the films shown are American, with the remainder British, German, Argentine, French, Spanish and Italian, in the order named.

Copyright Relations—Inter-American. Copyright Convention Buenos Aires, August 11, 1910, ratified July 13, 1934.

Production—It is estimated that 20 locally made features were released during 1936, with 27 more in various stages of preparation. There are nine studios, nine laboratories, and thirty producing companies. All studios are wired for sound.

There are 59 distributors, 10 of which are American, located in Buenos Aires; many of these have branches throughout the Republic. This number includes some of the national producers, who do their own distributing. Rentals at first-run houses approximate between 35 and 50 percent of the receipts after municipal taxes have been deducted.

Taxes—Each municipality imposes its own scale of taxes. In the federal capital, for instance, taxes are collected upon the basis of the registered seating capacity of the individual theater and in accordance with the returns of each performance. The basic tax provides that for each ten centavos or fraction thereof collected for admission, and for each one hundred seats or fraction of registered seating capacity, there should be paid a tax of 14 centavos. During the summer season (November through March) this is reduced to 10 centavos. The foregoing scale applies to houses charging admission of more than 1.50 pesos for a "completa" (complete program consisting of several films) or 0.40 peso for a "seccion" (one to two pictures). Houses which charge a lower admission price pay a basic tax of 11 instead of 14 centavos, with 7 centavos during the summer season. Double the established tax is charged for continuous performances. Except in special cases, all performances must be finished by 12:30 a.m. (with a slight tolerance), otherwise a fine of 100 pesos is imposed. Failure to pay taxes within a specified limit incurs a 20 percent penalty.

Theaters—There are 207 theaters listed in the federal capital and 1,218 in other parts of the Republic.

Sound—It is estimated that approximately 1,000 theaters are wired for sound.

AUSTRIA

Legislation—The system of issuing "Vormerkscheine" to pay for presentation permits issued by the provincial authorities did not change in Austria with regard to sound feature films ("Stammfilmo") or sound shorts during the year 1936. Film imports and exhibition permits thus remained subject to Vormerkscheine (contingent) control. To stimulate domestic production, local suppliers of sound film recording apparatus receive as a bonus ten Vormerkscheine for every Austrian feature sound film (up to ten) of a specified standard and produced under various detailed conditions. If domestic film apparatus is used in the production of sound features, three additional Vormerkscheine are issued. Vormerkscheine are allotted for a limited number of shorts. One producer only (Selenophon) makes shorts in Austria and at present for 40% of the shorts released receives from one to three Vormerkscheine, depending on length and type.

The issuing of Vormerkscheine is based on the condition that the film is shown to the Advisory Film Council prior to its first public presentation. According to the Basic Regulations Applying to the Film Contingent, Vormerkscheine in appropriate number can be allotted prior to the production of an Austrian feature film.

Domestic sound films of all kinds are granted presentation permits without the necessity of submitting Vormerkscheine. For foreign films, except news reels, and cultural shorts recognized by the Ministry of Trade and Communications and the Ministry of Education, Vormerkscheine (or fractions, depending on the type of film) are required in order to receive presentation permits. Their value in 1936 was fixed at 1,200 schillings. The Vienna Chamber of Commerce, Trade and Industry issues these permits on authority and recommendation of the Advisory Film Council (members are appointed by the Minister of Trade and Communication) established by basic regulations dated February 1, 1935, of that Ministry. It also issues Vormerkscheine to suppliers of sound apparatus and acts as a clearing house to enable these suppliers or other holders to dispose of them to film importers and distributors. The above regulations all apply to narrow sound films as well.

Film distributors who import more than ten features a year are compelled by the Film Bureau of the Vienna Chamber of Commerce to purchase one or two cultural shorts per year (at 4,150 schillings apiece) for obligatory exhibition. When one is taken over it is immediately assigned to a feature film and must be shown whenever the feature picture appears on any screen in Austria. In case of refusal to comply, exhibition permits for films distributed by them will not be granted or if already granted will be withdrawn. Exhibitors are also required to show one Austrian official news reel at each performance and at controlled rentals. This tends to greatly handicap the presentation of this class of foreign shorts.

Producers of foreign language versions of Austrian-made feature films receive permission for the free presentation of one sound film from the country to which the foreign version feature was first sold. This privilege may be increased if the version in question contains propaganda for travel in Austria.

The price of permits for the presentation of films of all kinds produced in countries which handicap the distribution of Austrian films by import embargoes, payment restrictions, censor of scenarios, regulations regarding employment of actors, etc., can be increased to 1,000% of the normal amount. Recourse to this measure has as yet not been taken.

Three Vormerkscheine are required for any number of copies of foreign feature films imported in the German version whether original or dubbed.

For each copy of a foreign language sound film under 350 meters 10 presentation permits are received for each Vormerkscheine; for a film 350 to 700 meters, 5 permits; for a film 700 to 1000 meters, one permit; two Vormerkscheine are required for each copy of a film 1000 to 1500 meters and three per copy for one over 1500 meters in length.

An understood agreement not stated in the law provides that every fifth feature imported will have text and titles inserted in Austria, in which case and for any other foreign language feature film with German text and titles to be inserted in Austria only one, one and a half and three Vormerkscheine are required for one, two or three or more copies respectively.

During the 1936 summer season (June 12 to August 13) to encourage better programs, the cost of presentation permits for this type of film in one, two and three or more copies was respectively 1,000, 1,500, and 3,000 schillings. Vormerkscheine were not needed as a medium of exchange in this transaction.

Foreign films already exhibited in a version paying a lower license fee and later shown in a version subject to a higher fee, are credited with the fees already paid.

A sound film pieced together from various foreign sound films already exhibited, is credited with the previously paid fees.

Distributors who can prove that they have gone to certain expenditures for the dubbing or synchronizing of a film in Austria receive two Vormerkscheine. Such films are also admitted free of charge for presentation in Austria.

The Film Bureau is authorized, in case a producer of an Austrian feature film sells it at a reasonable price into foreign customs territory, or otherwise shows it abroad, to issue as an export premium such number of additional Vormerkscheine as is fixed by the Ministry of Commerce. These Vormerkscheine remain under control of the Film Bureau and can be used only for obtaining permits for films imported from the same foreign customs territory. Use of this authority can be made only once for each sound feature film.

In case of a disparity between Vormerkscheine issued and used, the Ministry of Commerce can alter any of the foregoing regulations, effective immediately.

The Austrian film industry depends, to a large extent, on the German market. On the average some 75% of production costs of an Austrian film are covered by its sale to Germany. Receipts from domestic showings only cover 10 to 15% of these costs.

The Austro-German film agreement which has been in force for several years and nominally should not expire until July 1939, is now in suspense but will probably be continued in some form. Due to exchange and transfer difficulties and the expatriate, non-Aryan character of important German producers now turning out Austrian films, mutual quotas have temporarily broken down. According to the old agreement, 120 German feature films without regard to existing contingents are annually exchangeable against 12 Austrian films or at a ratio of 10:1. If either party to the agreement is unable to export up to the full number agreed upon, this does not restrict the fixed total of the other. For example, if Austria is only able to export 10 features during the year in question, Germany is, nevertheless, eligible to ship up to 120 features to Austria free from contingent encumbrances. All additional features beyond the limit set are subject to the ratio of 10:1, thus, Austria in 1936 sent 14 features to Germany and the importation of the two additional features was contingent upon the acceptance of 140 features from Germany. The exchange of news reels, educational and other short films is also fixed at the ratio of 10:1.

The French trade treaty also provides for the contingent-free import of French films. Relatively few, however, are shown in Austria.

Censorship—Local film censorship was in effect in 1936 for the territory of the City of Vienna and in two other provinces. (For fee see "Taxes.") Posters and other publicity material is also subject to censorship. Censorship in Vienna and in the two provinces of Austria is not handled on a uniform basis and this whole question is still awaiting a definite settlement. The other six provinces have no local censorship requirements. Federal censorship exists to a slight degree and is exercised by the Ministries of Education and of Trade and Commerce. The former merely examines on request films for eligibility for exhibition to juveniles and the latter Ministry exercises control from the political or economic angle through its power to withhold import and exhibition permits. Local and Federal censorship in Austria, however, is not rigid and is no practical obstacle to the importation of foreign feature films. Juveniles under 16 years are admitted only to films bearing the approval of the Ministry of Education. In no case can they attend performances finishing after 9:00 P.M.

Competition—The six large American film companies distributing in Austria greatly improved their position in 1936 from the standpoint of volume and turnover. Profits were scanty, however, owing to the high cost of Vormerkscheine (from which German films are exempt) and the necessity of buying one or more expensive Austrian "culture" films each year. The share of the market estimated on an earning basis was German 70%; American 20%; all others 10%; estimated on a footage basis (including copies) it was German 55%; American 35%; all others 10%.

Estimated on a basis of the number of films shown, the position of the United States for the past four years, expressed in percentage of the entire number exhibited, is shown in the following table. As it appears, the United States has held its own especially in 1936 whereas German films have lost ground to those of other origin, chiefly American. It must be remembered that only about half of the American features are released in more than one copy and seldom more than three, whereas German features often appear simultaneously in as many as eight prints. While American films are shown in good volume, especially in the large first-run houses in Vienna, their profits are not great for reasons already mentioned. German films although not greater in number, exhibit many more copies throughout Austria—and their overhead (no Vormerkscheine required) is much less.

The regulations for the control of foreign exchange have been greatly relaxed and no difficulty is experienced in securing the necessary valuta.

Copyright Relations—Established by government decree of September 20, 1907; April 9, 1910; March 11, 1925 and December 19, 1929. The draft of a new copyright law is now under discussion. (The new copyright law was promulgated on April 9, 1936, Federal Gazette No. 24, Decree No. 111, A. U.).

Production—During 1936 (10 months) the Austrian film industry produced 19 feature sound films and 10 short sound films, compared to 23 and 15 in all 1935, 16 and 155 in 1934, and 15 and 87 in 1933.

Little progress was made in the contemplated establishment of an institution to finance the production of Austrian films, but conferences have commenced with German and Austrian (bank) capital under consideration.

Taxes—The tariff on sound films is 120 gold crowns ($40.70 at current rate) per quintal, plus 4% of duty-paid c. i. f. invoice value.

(1) local censors' fee—50 schillings ($9.25) per 1,000 meters, but not more than 100 schillings per film. Fee for Federal approval is three groschen per meter plus government stamps.

(2) Amusement ("Lustbarkeite") tax—4 to 20% of gross receipts depending on seating capacity and class of house. This tax has not been changed since December 15, 1933. Films reviewed and passed by the Ministry of Education and cultural shorts recognized as such by that Ministry in most of Austria enjoy a reduction of this tax, varying according to the classification the film has received. In Lower-Austria and Carinthia the amusement tax is entirely eliminated, in six other provinces it is reduced but in Vienna no reduction in the tax is made for films in these two categories.

(3) Owner or lessee pays usual taxes on earning and personal income, also various Federal or Municipal public welfare taxes (unemployment fund, insurance of employees against illness or accident, pension fund, etc.).

(4) For price of Vormerkscheine, compulsory purchase of cultural shorts, etc., see text.

Theaters—Estimated total 765 in Austria.

Detailed figures on the number of moving picture theaters in the nine provinces of Austria are given in the table below:

Province	Sound	Silent	Total
Vienna	176	2	178
Lower Austria	271	22	293
Upper Austria	71	16	87
Styria	62	10	72
Carinthia	26	7	33
Salzburg	20	6	26
Tirol	19	3	22
Vorarlberg	11	1	12
Burgenland	36	6	42
TOTAL	692	73	765

Sound—692 theaters are wired for sound. Of these 692 theaters, 271 are in Lower-Austria, 176 in Vienna and the remainder, 245, in other provinces of Austria.

AUSTRALIA

Legislation—During 1936 legislation became operative in New South Wales and Victoria which provides quotas in those two States for Australian-produced feature films. In both cases, the quota for exhibitors is 4 per cent for the first year, 5 per cent for the second year, 7½ per cent for the third year, 10 per cent for the fourth year, and 12½ per cent for the fifth year; for distributors it is 5 per cent for the first year, 7½ per cent for the second year, 10 per cent for the third year, 12½ per cent for the fourth year, and 15 per cent for the fifth year. The operation of the quota appears to have satisfied Australian producers, as there has been no agitation during the year for an increase in its scope.

There has been some agitation during the past year for the acceptance of British (produced in England) films as "Quota" pictures in Australia. The basis for this agitation is, that Australian-produced films are accepted as "quota" pictures in England, whereas films produced in England do not qualify as "quota" pictures in New South Wales and Victoria, the two States in Australia which have quota laws. However, this agitation is not strong at the present time, and it appears that British films will not, in the immediate future, be given any more advantage in the Australian market than they have enjoyed for some time—namely free customs entry.

There has been no serious agitation against American films, as such, during the year. Restrictions which were placed on the imports of many products from the United States, in May, 1936, did not affect films.

Censorship—Very severe. A Board of Censors, which consists of three members, one of whom is a woman, continues to exercise censorship authority over all films imported or exported. Censorship appeal is vested in one person who has all the powers of the former three-member board. In addition to this Federal Censorship Board, there is a State censorship law in Victoria, but in practice Victoria usually accepts the Federal Censors certificate. The Censorship Board passes pictures for "general" or "adult" exhibition. In all States except Victoria, this does not prohibit the admission of minors to shows designated for "adults" but is merely information for parents; in Victoria, a picture passed for "limited" exhibition can not be shown to persons between the ages of six and sixteen. In all States the police can act to stop the showing of a film, but this power is practically never used in the case of imported films. It has, however, been used at times to stop the screening of Australian-produced films, over which the Federal Censorship Board has no jurisdiction.

Competition—A new company was formed in Australia during 1936 to coordinate the distribution of films produced by several of the major studios in England. However, British films have not during 1936 made any appreciable gains in Australia, where personal preference, rather than patriotic appeal, remains the predominating influence. American films appear still to be in as strong position as they were in 1935, when the United States supplied 353 of the 481 feature pictures imported into Australia. American films have now regained some of the ground lost in 1933. Of all feature films imported into Australia, the United States supplied 76.4 per cent in 1932; 71.7 per cent in 1933; 72.5 per cent in 1934; and 73.4 per cent in 1935. The share enjoyed by British films was 22.6 per cent; 23.3 per cent; 27.1 per cent and 25.6. Figures for 1936 are not yet available, but it is believed that American films have more than held their own during 1936. Some individual British pictures have been popular, but as a class the American films remain supreme.

Copyright Relations—Presidential Proclamation of April 3, 1918.

Production—Due to quotas in New South Wales and Victoria for Australian-made pictures, production activity increased greatly during 1936. Six feature films had been completed during the first ten months of the year, with three more scheduled to be finished before the end of the year. In three of these pictures, the lead was played by Hollywood artists who were brought to Australia for the purpose. The most expensive of these pictures is said to have cost £35,000 (about $140,000), but some cost considerably less. Critics agree that the quality of Australian pictures has improved considerably, but it appears that they still have a fair distance to go before being equal to the average imported film.

Before an Australian picture can be registered as a "quota" film, it must pass an inspection and convince the authorities that it has attained or surpassed the minimum requirements as to quality. This is designed to discourage the production of low quality films, and at least one feature picture has been refused registration as a "quota" film because of its low quality. This requirement has had the effect of discouraging the production of extremely cheap films by persons without proper backing, and has tended to confine the increased activitiy to the well-established producers.

The quota laws of both South Wales and Victoria stipulate that distributors shall "acquire and make available for distribution" the number of pictures specified. The use of the word "acquire" has caused some uncertainty as to whether the distributor must obtain the pictures only in case they are available from producers, or whether the distributor must himself produce the pictures if necessary to obtain the required number of Australian films. However, it now appears that the object of the quota legislation was to assure a market for the films voluntarily produced in Australia, and not actually to force production. The films which have been produced so far have been marketed satisfactorily, and there is good reason to believe that distributors will not be forced to become producers, but will be exempted from the limited supply produced voluntarily. Although the first year of the New South Wales quota ends on December 31, 1936, several distributors at the end of November had not "acquired" any quota pictures. They are ready and willing to "acquire" pictures from others, but they are going on the assumption that they will not be held responsible for any failure to "acquire" Australian pictures by producing them.

Distributors of American films are greatly concerned with a provision of the quota law which permits an exhibitor to disregard his contract for American films to whatever extent may be necessary to find program time for quota pictures. Some exhibitors are now using this to reject a film whenever they like, so long as the total rejections do not exceed the number of "quota" pictures exhibited. The distributors believe that it was not the intention of the legislation to permit such discretion for the exhibitor, and they are now seeking a correction to limit the rejection of a film to the specific picture actually displaced by a quota film.

Taxes—The Federal Government tax for 1936 was one shilling per £1. For the various States of the Commonwealth a company is taxed only on the business done in that particular State. The rates vary from State to State. In New South Wales, where most of the film companies have their head offices for Australia, the tax last year ranged from 1 shilling 9 pence per £1 to 2 shilling 6 pence per £1, depending on the amount of income, but this has just been changed to a flat rate of 2 shillings 3 pence per £1.

Theaters—There are now 1,420 theaters operating in Australia. The improvement in box-office takings, noticeable during the past three years, was continued in 1936 when theater attendance was probably as large as in pre-depression years.

The State of New South Wales still enforces the Act providing relief to exhibitors on hire agreements covering sound equipment. While no such legislation has been passed in other States, companies hiring sound equipment have, in most cases, extended terms throughout Australia which were required in New South Wales.

Sound—1,420 theatres are wired for sound. The construction of new theaters, which was very active in 1934 and early 1935, has now slowed down somewhat.

BAHAMAS

Legislation—There appears to be no agitation against the exhibition of American motion pictures.
Censorship—The Commandant of Police has charge of the censorship of motion picture films. No gangster films are permitted to be shown. The Cinematograph Act of 1912 (Bahamas Laws, Chapter 112) forbids the presentation or exhibition by means of a cinematograph or other similar apparatus, of "any picture, drawing, print, films or representation of any kind, of a treasonable, seditious, profane, blasphemous, immoral, indecent or obscene character."
Competition—Of the films shown in the Bahamas, 90% are of American production, the remaining 10% being British.
Copyright Relations—Same as the United Kingdom.
Production—There is no production whatever.
Taxes—Are considered moderate.
Theaters—Five motion picture theaters are operated in the Bahamas.
Sound—All five theaters are wired for sound.

BARBADOS

Legislation—On January 1, 1936 there was put into effect a compulsory British exhibition quota of 20% on features and 50% on news reels, the former increasing in the second year to 25%. Due to the lack of British and other foreign films, not being available, the American importations were not effected and consequently increased.
Censorship—There are no censorship laws in Barbados, however, there is an Act which requires the appointment of censors fully authorized to reject or change any film received on this market, and furthermore their decision can not be questioned or repealed. Local censorship is not considered as being strict, and while a considerable portion of the films shown here receive "cuts" it is believed such action is beneficial.
Competition—95 percent of all the films shown are of American make.
Copyright Relations—Same as United Kingdom.
Taxes—There is no admission tax. A Parochial Trade Tax of 8.5 percent on net profits and a Colonial Income tax on net profits amounting to 2/6 on the pound are levied. These taxes may vary slightly from year to year, being fixed by the appropriate bodies.
Production—There is no production of motion pictures in Barbados.
Theaters—There are at present 3 theaters all of which are wired for sound, in Barbados. The combined seating capacity for these theaters is 1987. The average range of motion picture admission prices is from 12 to 48 cents for first run theaters and from 6 to 24 cents in the second run houses. The average motion picture program consists of a short news reel, comedy and a feature. One theater, however, shows double feature programs on week ends. Two theaters change programs three times a week while the third theater changes its programs twice a week. The favorite type of film are those of a musical comedy nature. Next in importance are heavy dramas and comedies.
Sound—3 theaters are wired for sound.

BELGIUM

Legislation—The serious agitation for local synchronization of foreign pictures imported into the territory has abated, since the various organizations which at one time during 1935 were active for governmental intervention in behalf of the Belgian studios failed to establish their demands, and later disagreed among themselves as to the plan of operation for "dubbing." The result has been the disorganization of former syndicates. At the moment the American distributors are cooperating with a union of local exhibitors, producers, and other importers and distributors, while refusing to unite with them in a single corporate body. Pressure may eventually be brought to bear to create a single organization embracing all aspects of the Belgian cinema. For the time being, local synchronization has lost its importance as a central issue.
Censorship—The only censorship to which a picture is submitted in Belgium is the "Commission de Controle" which decides whether a film can be played, children admitted or not. This formality is not obligatory and if a distributor does not care to have his picture approved for projection before children under sixteen years of age, he has the right not to present it at all before the said commission. During the 1935-36 season, 473 sound films were released.
Outstanding episodes in scenes to which the Belgian control takes exception are gun play, gambling, kidnapping, extortion, and intimidation. Therefore the attitude of the committee of control toward Wild West pictures is usually to order them so cut as to destroy the continuity and make films which were successfully exhibited in the United States less appealing in Belgium.
Competition—For sound films it is necessary to divide the country into three parts in relation to the language spoken:

	American	German	French	Others
Flemish speaking area	183	64	52	49
French speaking area	134	32	103	22
Brussels	164	32	103	35

Copyright Relations—Established by Presidential Proclamation on July 1, 1891, extended April 9, 1910 and July 14, 1911.
Production—Two sound films in Flemish; three sound films in French were produced during the 1935-36 season.
Taxes—Taxes levied on the price of seats in cinemas at present are as follows:
(a) Establishments where the admission price has not exceeded 8 francs during the fortnight collection period taken into consideration:
Seats not exceeding 4 frs., 4% plus 10% of 4% crisis tax plus 25% of 4% town tax, 5.40%.
Seats between 4 and 5 frs., 6% plus 10% of 6% crisis tax plus 25% of 6% town tax, 8.10%.
Seats between 5 and 8 frs., 10% plus 20% of 10% crisis tax plus 25% of 10% town tax, 14.50%.
(b) Establishments were the admission price exceeds 8 francs:
Seats up to 5 frs., 6% plus 10% of 6% crisis tax plus 25% of 6% town tax, 8.10%.
Between 5 and 8 frs., 10% plus 20% of 10% crisis tax plus 25% of 10% town tax, 14.50%.
Between 8 and 12 frs., 12% plus 30% of 12% crisis tax plus 25% of 12% town tax, 18.60%.
Above 12 frs., 15% plus 30% of 15% crisis tax plus 25% of 15% town tax, 23.25%.
Theaters—Number to date, approximately 800.
The character of business has not much improved since last year. Negotiations for commitments are still very difficult, due to exhibitors being very cautious and unwilling to engage themselves for a long period, as they do not know what the general situation of the Belgian market will be during the coming months. This situation is due to political rather than economic uncertainty.
Sound—Approximately 740 theaters are wired for sound.

BERMUDA

Legislation—None detrimental to American films.

Censorship.—There are no censorship regulations in Bermuda and such regulations as do exist are purely voluntary between the manager of the theater company and the Board of Education. If there is any feeling on the part of the management that objections might be found with any picture, members of the Board of Education and the Clergy of the Colony are invited to see the picture at a private showing.

Competition—174 pictures were contracted for during the year 1936, of these 150 were American and 24 were British films. American films are popular in the Colony both with the local population as well as with American and Canadian visitors, and it is believed that in the future only British films of exceptional quality will be used. In 1935 the total number of films shown was 160, of which 36 were British.

Copyright Relations—Same as United Kingdom.

Production—There are no film studios in the Colony nor is it likely that any important number of pictures will ever be produced here. On rare occasions portions of American films are made here.

Taxes—No amusement taxes are levied in the Colony by the Bermuda Government.

Motion picture films, excluding undeveloped films of British origin, are subject to an import duty of one pence, approximately two cents, per 100 feet. Films not of British origin are subject to an import duty of six pence, approximately 12 cents, per 100 feet, plus a surtax of 25 per cent.

Theaters—At the present time there are but two important theaters in the Colony and both are located in Hamilton, where shows are given nightly except Sundays. At Somerset and St. George's three shows weekly are given, and weekly shows are given at Bailey's Bay, Prospect, the Dockyard and Southampton, a total of eight houses throughout the Colony. The houses in the City of Hamilton have seating capacity of 385 and 400. The seating capacity at St. George's is 325, at Somerset 325, at Bailey' Bay 250, at Bockyard 200 and at Somerset 325. Admission prices have remained unchanged for several years, and range from 25 cents to 75 cents per person, with 50 cents being the regular price for admission to evening shows. Prices for matinees are 25 and 35 cents per person. A price of 75 cents per person is occasionally charged for special pictures.

Sound—8 theaters are wired for sound.

BOLIVIA

Legislation—There is no definite legislation imposed against motion pictures. The only restriction is that of transmitting funds abroad.

Censorship—The Government Decree of February 22, 1926, forbids admittance of children under 12 years to picture houses on week days. Censorship is executed by the various municipalities on the points of moral, religious and political standpoints. It is not strict. Ten pictures were refused in 1934. These were war pictures and most of them have since been released.

Competition—98 per cent American films are shown.

Copyright Relations—There are no copyright relations with the United States.

Production—No films were produced during the past year. There are no studios in Bolivia.

Taxes—In Bolivia there are the following national taxes collected in all parts of the country: 10 per cent of gross receipts: stamp tax of from Bs. 0.02 to Bs. 2.50 per ticket according to price. In La Paz there is a 4 per cent municipal tax, a municipal tax on outdoor advertisements, an annual municipal license tax of Bs. 2,000 for first class theaters, and Bs. 1,000 for second class theaters. In the other principal cities of the country, there are, in addition to national taxes, departmental taxes of from 6 to 10 per cent of gross receipts and annual municipal license taxes of from Bs. 1,000 to Bs. 1,500.

Theaters—19 theaters in Bolivia. 3 in La Paz, 2 in Sucre, 1 in Cochabambo and one in Oruro may be considered relatively important.

Admission prices range between Bs. 2.50 and Bs. 3.00. Very rarely prices reach Bs. 4.00 for outstanding films. Sometimes prices are reduced to Bs. 1.00 for films that have been already shown several times. The usual program consists of a newsreel, comedy and feature picture. Theaters in La Paz offer one new film weekly which is generally exhibited about three times during the week. All other exhibitions about three times during the week. All other exhibitions during the week are films that have been previously shown. Films preferred by the natives are musical comedies, sensationals and thrillers. There is no special preference to nationality of stars and films in the Spanish language would probably be preferred, but exhibitions of pictures in this language are very few. English language films enjoy a great preference over European language films that have been shown.

BRAZIL

Legislation—The law requiring exhibitors to show a minimum of 100 meters (328 feet) of domestic film with each program continued to sustain the thirty odd producers of newsreels and short subjects. The action of the Federal Government in offering an annual cash premium for the best picture of this type produced has done much to improve the quality of domestic shorts. Despite this, however, the majority of these are technically poor and audiences continue to regard them as a necessary evil.

Censorship—Brazilian censorship laws are regarded a reasonable and their application appears to be uniformly fair throughout the entire country. Decree No. 21240 of April 4, 1932, sets forth justifiable reasons for the whole or partial rejection of a picture by the Board of Censors:

(1) Offence to public decency:
(2) Suggestive of crime or other conventional acts:
(3) Conveying illusions which might prove prejudicial to international relations;
(4) Insulting to race, collective groups or religious sects;
(5) Offensive to National dignity or provocative of defiance to public order.

are reasons for rejection of films by the Censor Board. Less than one-half of one per cent of the 1,135,420 meters of film censored during the first nine months of 1935 was rejected.

During the ten months from January to October of 1936 a total of 1,215,574 meters (3,899,561 feet) of film was submitted for censorship, of which only 10,700 meters (34,325 feet) or less than 1 per cent was rejected by the censors.

Competition—According to the records of the Federal Censorship Bureau of the Ministry of Justice, 86% of all the feature length pictures submitted for censorship during ten months of 1936 were of American origin.

Copyright Relations—Protection is afforded titles which have been duly registered with the Censorship Board of the Ministry of Justice.

Production—During 1936 a total of 231,000 feet of motion pictures were produced in this country at an approximate cost of around $75,000. Of this footage 49,000 feet represented seven feature length sound pictures, while the balance (182,000 feet) consisted of 530 newsreels and short subject with sound accompaniment, ranging in length from 330 feet to 490 feet.

Although it may be aid that some advancement was made by domestic producers during the year, locally made feature pictures are not regarded as a competitive factor and, being inferior to foreign pictures, their appeal is largely regional.

Theaters—According to the latest estimates of several of the larger film distributors, there was a total of 1,400 motion picture houes in Brazil at the close of 1936 of which only 30 are currently dark. Brazil's two leading cities, i. e., Rio de Janeiro and Sao Paulo have 90 and 60 houses, respectively, currently in operation.

Sound—According to latest estimates, 1,170 theaters are wired for sound, leaving only 230 houses, the majority of which are located in the interior, showing silent pictures. The aggregate seating capacity of Brazilian motion picture theaters is in excess of 645,000 seats.

BRITISH MALAYA

Legislation—The agitation for more British films which was evidenced in past years has almost completely died out. The wave of sentiment noticeable among Britishers here is now for quality films and British films are subjected to the same degree of criticism as those manufactured in any other country. Films earning the largest gross revenue during 1936 have been American. Generally speaking, British films do not appeal to the native audiences especially the Chinese and theater owners seem willing to forego flag waving when it adversely affects the box office receipts.

There has been a general improvement in the class of British films shown during 1936, and some of them have attracted large audiences. British producers continue to sell their films on a fixed license fee plus cost of printing of the positive film. They have not as yet adopted a policy of selling their film on a basis which takes into consideration gross earnings of the film in the territory.

Censorship—The local censor is sure to cut any film or ban it which reects on the prestige of the white race. Murder, gangster, excessive gun play, false imprisonment, or gruesome films are banned. In films that cover a period or costume plays the objections are relaxed to a certain extent but are practically all barred in modern themes.

There has been no change in Censor's fees, for the year on newly imported films of 100 feet, silent or sound; the charge is S$1.20. Copies, provided the original has been censored 30 (Straits) cents per 100 feet. For an appeal, after banning by the Censor, the charge is S$1.00. If the appeal is approved the reviewing fee for the whole film is S$10. If the Appeal Board sustains the Censor's ban the charge is S$10 per reel for the first five reels and S$5 per subsequent reel.

Of the Chinese films those in Cantonese dialects are the best revenue makers. Films in the Hokien and National language (Kuo-U) are not as popular as they once were. This is probably due to the fact that the production of pictures in those dialects is irregular.

Of the Indian films, those in the Tamil language are the most popular followed by those in Hindustani. The majority of the Indians in British Malaya are of Tamil and Hindustani extraction.

Indian films are severely criticized for adapting an Indian story along American lines. At times they duplicate American scenes but cheapen the product. It is generally believed that the Indian films would be more successful if they would use their own historical background for themes and discontinue to ape the American.

From a standpoint of making money, where the cast does not effect the story, the light comedy produces more money and appeals to more people than any other type. However, Malayan audiences are very partial to their favorite actor or actress and will attend any production in which they appear. The historical dramas shown here have been the largest revenue producers but the number of films in this category has been limited.

For a long time, musical films had a good appeal to local audiences, but unless the picture is almost totally different than the ordinary run of the mill musical show, they fail to make big money.

During the year 1936, there has been a noticeabe decrease in attendance at animal pictures which were very popular at one time. The public seems to have had enough on this type of picture for the time being. Society dramas have no appeal beyond the European and Eurasian audiences. Detective stories only draw fair audiences with the possible exception of Charlie Chan. The success of the Charlie Chan pictures is due to the build up of the leading man. Aviation pictures are only mildly popular and this type of picture makes less money than the average type.

Competition—During the first ten months of 1936, the Official Censor of Cinematograph Films of the S.S., F.M.S., and Jehore reviewed 4,183,600 feet of film, of which 2,555,000 feet was American film, as against 3,319,500 feet, during the first nine months of 1935. During 1936, 61 per cent of the films reviewed by the Censor during the first ten months was American as compared to 71,6/10 per cent for the first nine months of 1935.

Great Britain supplied 626,500 feet, China 785,000 feet, British Topical 157,900, and Other Countries 59,200 feet to British Malaya during the first ten months of 1936.

Copyright Relations—Practically the same as United Kingdom.

They are protected under an Ordinance known as the Merchandise Marks Act. It is considered sufficient protection to the owner to publish a declaration of ownership in the local newspapers.

Production—Other than some wild animal and native life pictures made in Borneo, no pictures were produced.

Taxes—There is no taxation on theaters in Malaya. The police, however, have a license fee according to seating capacity. In Malaya for cinema performances, if the theater seats less than 200 people, the fee is S$2 per performance; seating not less than 299 people, S$3 per performance; seating not more than 399 people S$4 per performance; seating 400 people and over, S$5 per performance. For second and subsequent performances on the same day half of the above fees is charged.

Theaters There were 122 theaters operating in British Malaya during 1936.

During the year two new theaters were opened in Kuala Lumpur and one in Butterworth. A new theater is under construction at Ipeh and two open air theaters have secured permission of the Municipality of Singapore to operate. It is generally believed, however, that only one of these open air theaters will materialize.

Economic conditions of the masses in British Malaya are continuing to improve. This condition has been reflected with increased box office receipts from most theaters and the outlook for 1937 is brighter than it has been for some years. There is no reason why American films should not continue to dominate the market.

Singapore is the distribution center of practically all films shown in British Malaya. All of the leading American film companies have representatives or agents located in Singapore.

CHINA

Legislation—The feeling continues with increasing intensity that at times American pictures depict the Chinese in an unfavorable manner. It has been noted, however, that for some time past American producers have become increasingly aware of this situation, not only in China, but in foreign countries in general, and are endeavoring to avoid situations or dialogue that could be construed as disparaging to the peoples of other nations. China offers big potentialities for American films and intelligent consideration should be given to the market's expansion possibilities. Writers and producers when dealing with things Chinese should bear in mind the Chinese point of view and thereby avoid censure, gain increased revenue, and add to the prestige and desirability of American films in China.

Censorship—The liquidation of the Kwangtung independent provincial regime during 1936, and the amalgamation of this important area with that of the National Government had a direct effect upon the censorship requirements formerly enforced at Canton. Prior to the direct control of this area by the National Government, Canton demanded a censorship fee in addition to the fee levied by the Central Motion Picture Censorship Board in Nanking. This Canton requirement was in complete disregard to instructions issued by the Nanking authorities which stated that all films passed by the Central Motion Picture Censorship Board were free from further provincial censorship in China. Upon the fall of this independent political regime in July, the Canton Censorship Board was abolished and all motion pictures have since been relieved of this local administration. In addition to Nanking censorship, local censorship at no additional charge is enforced in the International Settlement and French Concession at Shanghai; separate certificates are necessary for the British Crown Colony of Hong Kong for which a nominal charge is made, while films entering Manchuria (as distinguished from the South Manchuria Railway Zone) must first pass the censorship of the Department of Civil Affairs at Hsingking (formerly known as Changchun). Films entering the South Manchuria Railway Zone are charged a nominal inspection fee by the Dairen police which permits their exhibition throughout this entire area without further censoring.

When feature motion pictures imported from abroad are submitted to the Censorship Board at Nanking for inspection, they must be accompanied by 20 printed copies of an English-Chinese translation of the story, its dialogue and action as well as a table of contents of each separate reel; 10 printed copies of the dialogue and action as translated for the title slides that will subsequently be made and used in conjunction with the actual showing of the film or be subsequently engraved on the emulsion of the film itself, and 4 complete copies of the foreign language continuity detailing the dialogue and action. Shorts and newsreels require 16 printed copies of a Chinese translation of the dialogue, titles, and action, while trailers require 8 copies. All of the above printed matter, with the exception of the foreign language continuities which are generally made up in the country of origin, must be printed on special forms authorized by the Censor Board and at the expense of the distributor. The censorship fee levied by the Nanking authorities is yuan 20.00 per 500 meters or fraction thereof. After the Board's approval, a license and tax fee amounting to yuan 3.10 is charged per subject. Stronger measures have recently been adopted whereby the prints of all foreign motion pictures imported into China and deemed derogatory to the nation by the Central Film Censorship Board will be confiscated. In addition to this there are strong possibilities that efforts will be made to have every motion picture that has been judged derogatory to China confiscated and destroyed, exhibited neither in China or anywhere abroad. It is said that any producer refusing to comply will find his product banned from China permanently.

Competition—Approximately 80% of the films exhibited in China are American films. This represents an increase of approximately 2% when compared with the 1935 estimates. During the first 6 months of 1936, the business of American film distributors in China rose approximately 35% when compared with the business done during the corresponding period in 1935. This level, however, was not maintained during the last half of the year as witnessed by the fact that box office receipts, contract renewals and the distribution business in general dropped for the majority of the companies to the 1935 level and in some instances even below.

This decline in revenue is mainly attributed to political disturbances in the North and to the unsettled conditions that obtained during the liquidation of the Kwangtung independent provicial regime in the South together with the distinct increase witnessed in the popularity, quality and distribution of Chinese pictures which has chiefly been accomplished through Government promotional activities instigated to stimulate and foster this Chinese industry.

Despite further efforts of European producers to establish their product in favor in China, American pictures continued to maintain their strong position in this market. This is due in no small degree to the ably directed distributional organizations handling the products of the major companies in China together with the skill and technical resources maintained by the studios in the United States. Definite improvement has been made by most of the major studios in that they now allow their China representative to select pictures, from their respective company's program, which would be most suitable for release in China. Formerly this system was not so generally adopted and many of the films that were imported met with mediocre receipts or ran into censorship difficulties with its attendant red tape when such might have been avoided had the selection been left to the judgment of local representatives.

The gain noted during 1935 in the release of British pictures in China did not continue during 1936 and it is believed that in most cases financial loss was the result of these further attempts to popularize the British product. Occasionally outstanding productions of the British studios are shown and have met with varying degrees of success but the average program pictures of these companies have not been popular with theater managers.

Films of action and adventure, melodrama, comedy, and musicals continue to be most generally liked by the Chinese. Pictures of the "gangster" type are steadily losing their box-office value while historical epics, light comedy, musicals, and stories with a sentimental appeal are becoming increasingly popular in both the large coastal cities and those of smaller size in the interior. Westerns or "horse operas" have lost considerable ground and their future value to distributors in the China field is doubtful except in the case of smash hits.

Copyight Relations—United States Commercial Treaty of October 8, 1903, provides for reciprocal protection.

Production—Inasmuch as this resume has been prepared before the end of the year, exact figures on the number of Chinese pictures produced during 1936 are not yet available. Estimates gathered from Chinese producers and distributors in Shanghai and Canton, the two principal centers of production, reveal that during the year the transition from silent to sound films, which was generally begun in 1934 and 1935, has now been practically completed. In 1935 there were approximately 12 silent features and 34 sound features produced in the Shanghai studios while reports from Canton show that there were approximately 30 sound features (Cantonese dialect) and only several silent films produced, thus making a total of approximately 64 feature sound films and about 16 silent for that year. Incomplete returns for 1936 from Shanghai studios show that approximately 43 to 50 sound features will have been produced and only several silent films. Production figures for Canton for 1936 are unavailable at this time but it is believed they will correspond to the production increase witnessed in the Shanghai studios during the year.

One of the interesting developments in 1936, and which is directly a result of the liquidation of the Kwangtung independent provincial regime, is that the Cantonese dialect for picture purposes is definitely discouraged. It is believed that high officials of the Central Publicity Committee in Nanking have decreed that the use of dialects other than Mandarin, the national language, will be prohibited in domestically produced motion pictures. However, all motion pictures with Cantonese dialogue now in circulation shall be allowed to continue showing in Kwangtung and Kwangsi but pictures now under production and using the Cantonese dialect must be completed and censored at Nanking within 2 months (ending about December 31) and from then on, no picture with such dialogue may be produced.

These studios were not active during the first half of 1936 but production increased noticeably during the latter half partly as a result of government promotional activities instigated to create interest in domestically produced pictures which have had emphasis placed on more modern methods of technique. Films having a patriotic appeal have been especially successful during the year. Principal improvements for 1936 in the industry are: (1) increased efforts to modernize studio equipment, (2) condensation of story plots, (3) quality of photography, (4) construction of sets and set dressing, and (5) advertising. There is still, however, much room for improvement in such departments as financial and business management, direction, recording, dubbing, special effects, editing, and laboratory work. Much of this improvement, of course, depends upon the installation of proper equipment and the facilities for training technicians in its use.

Definite advances have also been made during the year in educational motion pictures. The Ministry of Education has put into execution a plan which has three main objectives, (1) to use educational films to supplement teaching in the primary and secondary schools, (2) to import common knowledge to the masses, and (3) to provide suitable recreation for the public by the showing of films of educational value. Each province has been divided into 2 or 3 districts in order to facilitate the distribution of films. One trained operator is assigned to each district whose duties are to show educational films in every town and village in his district. These programs are to be supplied regularly by the Ministry and presented in schools, guild halls, temples, or wherever it is conveniently suitable. This operator works under the direct supervision of the Department of Education of his particular province and each provincial department is held responsible for the distribution and showing of these films and must submit monthly reports to the Ministry.

The Central Studio in Nanking, a government project completed in 1935, has evidenced genuine merit in the technical resources employed in the 2 feature sound pictures it produced in 1936, namely, "The Warrior" and "The Secret Code."

One of the highlights in the distribution field is the rapid stride Nanking has made in assuming a place of major importance for the exhibition of motion pictures. Fifteen years ago, with a population of approximately 300,000 the city has rapidly grown in size until today 1 million people are within the capital's limits. However, as recently as 5 years ago the city was not considered of any value to distributors; Shanghai, Hong Kong, Canton, and Tientsin then holding the ranking positions for the release of imported pictures. Today such is ot the case as Nanking has moved into third place being only surpassed by Shanghai and Hong Kong for the release of both foreign and domestic pictures. In addition to 4 sound theaters showing first run Chinese pictures and second run foreign films, the city has two large, first class cinemas, "The New Capitol" and "The State," the latter being opened during the year and which is favorably comparable to first class theaters in the United States.

Chinese pictures are steadily gaining in domestic popularity and producers are now paying increased attention to their entertainment and educational value as well as extending efforts to improve their technical qualities.

Taxes—Taxation is high and varies in different parts of the country.

Theaters—There are about 300 standing theater properties including Manchuria, Hong Kong and Macao with an aggregate seating capacity of approximately 155,000 for theaters equipped for sound and approximately 80,000 for silent houses.

Sound—Approximately 183 theaters are wired for sound with an average seating capacity of 850 per house. During 1936 the installation of American sound reproducers for projection equipment is reported to have advanced by more than 100% compared with 1935. This increase is principally attributed to augmented sales efforts on the part of American representatives in China and to the fact that silent theaters are being converted into sound with another contributing factor being that much of the old sound equipment of various makes has now become obsolete. Theater owners are also becoming increasingly aware that the additional expenditure necessary for the installation of American equipment is compensated for by its durability, quality, and by box office receipts. These new orders have chiefly gone into first class theaters situated in the larger cities such as Shanghai, Nanking, Hong Kong and Canton and are about equally distributed between foreign and Chinese enterprises.

It still holds true, however, that China generally remains a price market particularly for equipment of this type. While domestically manufactured or "reassembled" sound reproducers are principally used in the smaller Chinese theaters, the market for such equipment has not progressed in proportion to the rise witnessed in the demand for the American product. In fact, one of the leading Chinese manufacturers of sound reproducers discontinued this line of their business during the year as it is reported to have proved unprofitable due to delayed payments of outstanding accounts and to instances of minor organizations copying their product to the detriment of their own sales. While American representatives are anticipating that the 1937 market will remain at least on par with the 1936 level, China's nationalization of silver and the yuan's subsequent decline in value in terms of foreign currencies, coupled with domestic products and other offerings from abroad, such conditions, exclusive of any political uncertainties, may tend to make it increasingly difficult for the Chinese to extend their full import volume of

COLOMBIA

Legislation—None.

Censorship—Censorship comes under the direct control of the National Government in accordance with the provisions of Nos. 331 and 700 of 1932. Boards of censorship in each departmental capital, consisting of three members and three alternates (5 members and alternates in the City of Bogota), serving without remuneration review pictures in each department. Once a picture has been passed by two members of any departmental board of censors the law prescribes that it may be exhibited throughout the Republic without further censorship. However, in practice certain departmental boards of censors insist upon approving a previously censored picture before allowing it to be shown in the district under their jurisdiction. Censorship is not strict.

Competition—Approximately 80% of the features released in Colombia are American made. During the past year there has been a considerable increase in the number of British features displayed, and also some increase in the number of French, German and Mexican pictures shown.

Copyright Relations—Colombian basic copyright law dates from 1886 and subsequent laws do not specifically deal with motion pictures. Present copyright laws are considered inadequate. Colombia is not a member of the International Convention. The following laws and decrees make up Colombian copyright Legislation:

Law 32 of 1886, Decree 655 of 1886.
Law 57 of 1887, Decree 1226 of 1922.
Law 104 of 1922, Decree 1708 of 1930.

Production—There are no studios in Colombia, porduction being limited to occasional news reels and advertising films.

Taxes—The National Defense Tax of 10 per cent on gross receipts of motion picture exhibitions established by Law 10 of 1932, was modified by Presidential Decree effective as of March 1, 1935, as follows:

5% on tickets up to and including 20 centavos.
6% on tickets from 21 centavos to 30 centavos.
7% on tickets from 31 centavos to 40 centavos.
8% on tickets from 41 centavos to 60 centavos.
10% on tickets of over 60 centavos.

This reduction represents a saving of about 3.5 per cent of the former tax, and lowers direct taxes on the motion picture, exhibitor to about 20 per cent as compared to 23.5 per cent previous to the recent decree.

Poster taxes: for one-sheet posters, 0.80 centavos per set of 30; for two-sheet posters, 1.60 pesos per set of 30; for three-sheet posters, 2.40 pesos per set of 30. (Peso valued at approximately $0.57 U. S.).

Theaters—Approximately 210 theaters in Colombia with a total seating capacity of 40,000.

One of the most interesting developments in the motion picture exhibition business in Colombia during recent months has been the steady increase in the number of non-American films shown in Colombian motion picture houses. The more effective competition is to be found in European produced pictures, but films of Latin American origin also are being marketed even though in comparatively small numbers.

It is believed that British made films represent the most important competition both from a quality and numerical standpoint. The theater-going public, while seemingly preferring American made pictures because of more interesting plots, better acting and superior direction, appreciate the superiority of the British picture over its European rivals.

Sound—130 theaters are wired for sound, and about 30 others are supplied periodically with portable sound equipment.

COSTA RICA

Legislation—There are no laws affecting the importation of motion pictures.

Censorship—There is a Government censor. The censor is appointed by the Governor of San Jose, though the Secretary for the Interior is the final judge.

Competition—During 1936, out of 484 films shown in Costa Rica, 449 were American.

Copyright Relations—Exchange of copyright courtesies.

Production—No films are produced in Costa Rica.

Taxes—A tax is imposed by the National Government of 5 per cent of the gross box receipts. Another tax of 5 per cent is imposed in the net receipts (income tax). This latter tax applies to practically all businesses.

Theaters—37 theaters in Costa Rica. Total seating capacity 20,727.

Theaters present shows daily at 3, 7 and 8:30 P.M. and on Sundays and holidays give additional exhibitions. Tastes of audiences are similar to those in the United States, with action pictures in demand. American stars and American pictures in general, with super-imposed titles in Spanish are preferred. There is a general objection to dubbed Spanish films.

Sound—36 theaters are wired for sound.

CUBA

Legislation—In the Gaceta Oficial of June 10, 1936 Extraordinary Edition No. 190 there appeared Decree No. 1556 signed by the President and the Secretary of Interior on June 8, 1936, creating a Cuban Board of Motion Picture Censors in the City of New York. The stated purpose of this board is to review all pictures destined for Cuban distribution which have been produced in the United States. The old Board of Review, Comision Revisora de Peliculas created by Decree 1521 of September 20, 1926, and 361 of March 2, 1927, will continue to function in Habana but its activities have been limited to reviewing pictures not produced in the United States.

As a result of protests by American film companies and their refusal to submit films to the New York Board there was issued Decree No. 2131, published in the August 5 issue of the Official Gazette rendering null and void Decree No. 1556 of June 2, published in the Official Gazette of June 10, which authorized the establishment in New York of a film censorship board.

By the dissolution of the New York board censorship of American films is returned to the Habana Censorship Board.

A bill has been introduced in the Cuban Senate providing for the creation of an organization to be known as the Patronato de la Cinematografia Nacional (National Motion Picture Board), to supervise, foment and otherwise assist the development of a motion picture industry on the Island.

The proposed legislation would create an Academia de Cinematografia (Motion Picture Academy) which would engage the services of cameramen make-up artists, electricians, etc., organize a section of declamation for motion picture work, provide dancing masters, etc.

The bill also states that the Board would lend financial assistance to Cuban individuals or companies set up in the country to produce films.

Funds for the financing of the Board and its activities would be raised by an emission of postage stamps not exceeding a total face value of 100,000 pesos. A special drawing of the National Lottery is also proposed in the bill, to enlarge the funds of the Board.

Censorship—Regulations governing the censorship of films provide for the inspection of films by the Film Censorship Board under the jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior (Gobernacion). The decision as to whether a picture may or may not be exhibited is determined by this Board, which was reorganized in August, 1936, and is composed of the Secretary of the Interior and five members. Decisions are valid provided they are concurred in by three of the members. Most of the films are approved by the Commission from synopsis sheets and photos. Law No. 61, promulgated in the Gaceta Oficial on April 3, 1935, creates a "Comision Nacional de Examen de Obras Teatrales y Peliculas Cinematograficas," to be composed of 11 members of various organizations.

The Secretaria de Governacion (Department of the Interior) which is charged with the censorship of motion pictures exhibited in Cuba, has verbally requested the distributors of news reel films to make an effort to eliminate from such films all scenes showing salutes of the factions engaged in the Spanish civil war. The step has been taken in order to lessen the possibility of disturbances in the theaters, due to the too vigorous expression of approval on the part of members of the audience, of one or other of the warring groups.

Competition—Films shown are 80 to 85 per cent American. The remaining business is divided among the films from Great Britain, Spain, France, Germany, Mexico and Argentina.

Copyright Relations—Copyright Act 1909 by Presidential Proclamation, November 17, 1902, extended April 9, 1910, December 9, 1920. The new Patent and Trade Mark Law of 1936 gives special protection to motion picture films apart from that under copyright law. Trade mark of manufacturer or producer must have been registered prior to application fo registration of film. Application must be held by producer or assignee in Cuba.

Production—Motion pictures are not produced in Cuba. There is a small production from time to time of news film shots. Two firms have been working during recent months in the preparation, for showing in Cuban theaters, of very short films with sound accompaniment, of an advertising nature.

Taxes—Distributors in Habana are subject to a municipal business tax of $375.00 per year. They are also subject to the Cuban Government tax of 3 per cent on gross receipts and a tax of 1½ per cent on gross sales. In addition, there is a scaled stamp tax on the face value of contracts signed by exhibitors and distributors; ¼ per cent remittance tax; and Maternity Tax of ½ per cent of gross payroll.

Theaters—It is estimated that at present about 350 theaters are in operation throughout the Island.

Sound—300 theaters are believed to be equipped with sound apparatus.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA

Legislation—American producers resumed distribution on February 8, 1935, no American sound feature having been sold by any large producers from April 30, 1932, until that date, with the exception of one company which was bound by contractual relations. Negotiations regarding the return of American pictures to the market were conducted several times in 1933 and in 1934 without result due to refusal of Government to modify existing control. At the end of October, 1934, negotiations were resumed.

An instruction of the Ministry of Commerce, published in the Official Gazette of November 16, 1934, and effective on that date, set forth certain new regulations applying to the import of export motion picture films. The provisions thereof, with subsequent amendments, were as follows:

1. Exposed motion pictures may be imported only by individuals, companies or juridical persons who possess a trade license for producing or dealing in such films and who comply with the provisions set forth in this instruction, provided that upon their own application they are entered in the register of importers by the Ministry of Commerce. Import licenses are not transferable and will be issued to the exchange which will distribute the respective films in the country.

2. Applications for an import permit are to be submitted through the Czechoslovak Association of Film Industry and Trade in Prague.

3. Each importer must in advance and at his own expense show the picture to the Film Advisory Committee.

4. Each sound feature film imported into Czechoslovakia and approved by the Film Advisory Committee must be entered in the register of imported sound feature films, which is kept by the Czechoslovak Association of Film Industry and Trade in Prague.

Imported silent pictures, as well as sound features up to 300 meters in length, nature, sport, industrial, news and documentary pictures must be entered in the register of other imported pictures, kept by the Czechoslovak Association of Motion Picture Industry and Trade, Prague.

5. Entry in the register may be made only when the applicant submits a certificate from the Ministry of Commerce showing that there are no objections to the import of the picture under considerations.

6. Only after the importer submits evidence that the picture was entered into the register will the Ministry of Commerce issue to him an import permit for customs clearance and a certificate designated for the Ministry of Interior to be presented when the picture is submitted for censorship.

7. Imports of exposed motion picture films will be permitted in Czech language versions and in the language version of the country of origin. Dubbing of imported films to be shown in Czechoslovakia into another language is permitted only in cases when dubbing has first been done in the Czech language. All copies of imported films shown in a version of the language spoken by a local minority must be provided with superimposed titles in the Czech language. The titles must be made in Czechoslovakia. Exceptions from the above provisions may be granted by the Ministry of Commerce after a hearing of the Film Advisory Committee.

8. Importers of News-reels must include in them weekly at least 20 per cent of the total meterage in quality Czechoslovak sound news and must have all copies of news reels made in the country.

9. Whoever imports a minimum of 5 sound feature pictures during a 12 month period must prove prior to October 1 of each current year that he is offering for distribution at least one cultural-propaganda short produced in Czechoslovakia in accordance with the suggestions of the confirmed Film Advisory Committee. A producer of a sound feature picture may be released from this obligation by following a hearing by the Film Advisory Committee provided that said producer's feature contains sufficient cultural subject matter.

10. The proceeds of the registration fees will be applied to subsidizing the production of Czechoslovak sound films. The Association will pay to the producers of these films, within the limits of these funds, a maximum subsidy of 210,000 crowns per film under the following conditions, as amended to date:

(a) The producer is to submit the complete scenario to the Film Advisory Committee at least 3 weeks before starting production.

(b) The Film Advisory Committee, under regulations adopted October 27, 1936, shall classify contemplated Czech feature productions into four categories: (1) those which the Committee does not recognize and therefore grants no subsidy; (2) those which the committee recognizes and accords a subsidy of 70,000 crowns; (3) those which the committee recognizes and recommends and accords a subsidy of 140,000 crowns; (4) those which the Committee considers of exceptional quality and accords a subsidy of 210,000 crowns.

(c) Upon approval of the scenario by the Film Advisory Committee and upon submission of proof by the producer that production has been started in a local studio, the Association will pay 70,000 Czechoslovak crowns to the producer;

(d) The remainder of whatever subsidy is awarded the producer is to be paid to the producer when the finished film is approved by the Film Advisory Committee which may refuse payment in total or in part, if the quality of the film is not satisfactory;

(e) Producers of educational or propaganda films approved by the Film Advisory Committee will receive a subsidy fixed by the Film Advisory Committee.

11. Provided that no uniform circumstances endanger the duration of this new regulation of importation of films into Czechoslovakia, the Czechoslovak authorities hope it will give satisfaction and will remain in force for a period acceptable to the importers.

Because the new instruction failed to contain a time clause and because United States companies considered even the new regime as being discriminatory against American pictures in favor of German sound films, they did not return to the market and no further negotiations were carried on until January 14, 1935, when an agreement was reached with the Czechoslovak authorities. The American companies accepted the major points of the new regime in principle as it provided basically for a free market. In return the Americans procured a valuable concession which enables them to bring in without payment of the regular 20,000 crowns registration fee one picture dubbed in German for every 8 American sound features imported. The companies are permitted to distribute the dubbed film in sections where English sound features have no market because of German competition, i. e., in certain districts specifically designated by the local authorities where the majority of the population is German. The granting of this concession, which was important since it presented to American firms operating in the market a unique opportunity of amortizing German dubbed films which they are obliged to produce in Germany and Austria in order to remain in those markets, assured the return of American companies and they resumed distribution on February 8, 1935.

A total of 16 such dubbed films were brought in under this arrangement during 1935, and as far as can be ascertained at this time, about 14 were imported during the first 10 months of 1936.

American Companies Leave Association.

Feeling that the voting power which they had in the Czechoslovak Association of Motion Picture Industry and Trade was not commensurate to their importance as distributors of films in Czechoslovakia, the 5 branches of American film distributors operating in Czechoslovakia stepped out of the Association in November, 1936, and established an independent organization known as the Federation of Film Import and Trade in the Czechoslovak Republic. Questions pending, on which the American distributors did not wish the Association to speak for them, include the proposed establishment of a Film Exchange to regulate film distribution and trade and the concentration of power implied therein. Less important was the alleged inadequate representation on the Film Advisory Committee. It appears possible that in addition to the representative of the Association of Motion Picture Industry and Trade a representative of the newly created Federation will be admitted to the Committee.

Censorship—Under the Ministry of the Interior, very strict. A total of 1,081 pictures censored during 1935, of which 1,060 were released for showing, the latter number including 346 sound feature films; 21 pictures were banned, of which 13 were American and 5 were German. During the January to September period of 1936, 220 feature films were passed by the Board of Censors. 101 features were of American origin, of which 12 were German versions.

Competition—Of the total 346 sound features released by the censors, 157 were American, 80 German, 36 Czechoslovak, 20 Austrian, 18 French and 13 British. This indicates the important position American companies have assumed since distribution was resumed on the Czechoslovak market February 8, 1935. In 1934 only 25 American features had been authorized for showing. Preliminary returns for the first 10 months of 1936 show that 111 sound features (including 14 German versions) out of a censored total of 250 features were American.

Copyright Relations—Reciprocal declarations between Czechoslovakia and the United States exchanged April 27, 1927. Citizens of one country are assured full copyright protections in territory of other country. Went into effect March 1, 1927, under United States Copyright Act of March 4, 1909 and Czechoslovak Copyright Law of November 24, 1926, and amendment made thereto in Law of April 24, 1936.

Production—During 1935, a total of 24 sound feature films were produced, of which 21 were in Czech and 3 in other languages (German and French). In addition 6 versions of Czech films were made. During the first nine months of 1936, 19 feature films produced in Czechoslovakia were passed by the film censors.

Studios—The A-B Motion Picture Studios showed a net profit of 282,435 crowns from 1935 operations as against 324,504 crowns in 1934. Czechoslovakia's second studio—the "Host"—which has been in financial difficulties since it was opened (and even before) in 1934 procured a Government guarantee of credits in an amount of 3,500,000 crowns in October, 1936. A third film studio and a color film laboratory are reported as projected.

Taxes—Very high. The present municipal entertainment taxes averaged 35 per cent of gross receipts in sound theaters and 25 per cent in silent theaters. The Ministry of Interior has prepared a draft of a law which would lower these rates to about 20 per cent and 15 per cent, respectively, and in addition establish differential tax rates for films rated according to cultural value.

Theaters—There are 1,833 theaters (290 showing daily, 715 two to six times weekly, and 828 once weekly) as against 1,955 at the close of 1933. The decrease resulted from communities where unemployment has been particularly heavy. The total seating capacity was 578,877 persons.

Sound—Of all theaters, 1,343 were wired for sound and had a seating capacity of 483,615 representing an increase of 525 theaters in the last two years.

DENMARK

Legislation—As in recent years motion pictures during 1936 were not affected by the Danish import control system which has severely reduced the importation of most other commodities, especially those of American origin. However, since July, 1936, import permits have been required for the importation of exposed films with Danish text and as a result such films are now provided with Danish text locally by such firms as Nordisk Films Company A/S, Frederiksberggade 25, and Joh. Ankerstjerna, Lygten 49, both in Copenhagen. A proposal for a new foreign exchange control law is now under consideration by the legislature which will extend the system until the end of 1938, but so far as can be ascertained this will not operate to restrict the importation of films.

Patent Decision—The supreme court in Denmark on October 14, 1934, sustained a decision of a lower court granting an injunction to Nordisk Films Company A/S, Copenhagen, forbidding the showing in Denmark of American pictures using the so-called "noiseless intensity system" on the ground that this use infringed the Petersen & Poulsen patents held by Nordisk Films Company A/S. Following this decision four American companies closed agreements with Nordisk Films Company A/S whereby the American companies obliged themselves to pay a license fee to the Danish company amounting to 350 kroner for each film showing using the "noiseless" patent. The agreements run for six years from February 5, 1934, the date of the injunction. The agreements further provide that news reels and shorts are exempt from the tax if they are shown only as extra numbers. If they comprise the major part of the program they are subject to the fee.

Two American film companies refused to sign the agreement, claiming that their films, which are re-recorded on special equipment, are not covered by the Nordisk Film Patent. The lower court in these cases upheld the legality of showing these re-recorded films without payment of a license fee and the case was appealed to the supreme court which in the early part of 1936 affirmed the decision. Nevertheless, one of these companies, made an agreement obliging itself to pay 700 kroner for each film shown using the "noiseless" patent.

The other American company which won its case continues to import its own re-recorded films.

It is claimed that the Petersen & Poulsen motion picture patents cover the "noiseless intensity system" as used by a well-known American company.

Efforts are being made to enforce the Petersen & Poulsen patents in Sweden, England, Norway and Poland.

Censorship—The Danish film censoring bureau in the fiscal year 1935-36, ended March 31, reviewed a total of 2,187 films (including copies and advertising) having a length of 1,713,120 meters as compared with 1,884 films with a total length of 1,446,140 meters the year before. Of these films 398 (of which 259 were copies) were pictures having a length of over 1,000 meters as compared with 584 (of which 264 copies) the year previous; 364 were pictures having a length under 1,000 meters (190 the preceding year); 566 were news reels, topical films, etc. (407 the previous year); 113 were comics (166 the previous year); and 367 were advertising films practically all of which had a length of less than 25 meters (537 the year before).

Of the 2,187 films (including copies) examined by censor in 1935-36, 1,097 having a total length of 973,960 meters were American (Corresponding figures for the previous year were 821 and 740,000); 279 totaling 206,740 meters were Danish (194 and 278,840); 253 totalling 265,770 meters were German (163 and 192,110); 61 totalling 66,245 meters were Swedish (57 and 76,840); 57 totalling 72,000 meters were British (46 and 49,085); 39 totalling 25,235 meters were Austrian; 6 totalling 8,820 meters were Russian; 5 totalling 4,475 meters were Hungarian; 4 totalling 2,050 meters were Norwegian, 2 totalling 2,585 meters were Italian; 2 totalling 2,390 meters were Swiss; one of 370 meters was Jugoslavian; and one of 325 meters was Estonian.

The number of silent films shown in 1935-36 is estimated to have been less than 20 as compared to 67 in 1934-35, of which none were feature fiims.

No dubbed films were exhibited in the Danish market in 1936.

Censorship Regulations—All films shown publicly in Denmark must be censored by Statens Filmscensur (The Government Film Censor), Frederiksholmskanal 27, Copenhagen, who is under the jurisdiction of the Ministry of Justice.

In 1935-36 the censor gave approval to 2,092 films, including copies, having a length of 1,499,410 meters as opposed to 1,750 films, including copies, having a length of 1,152,095 meters in 1934-35.

In all 86 films (including copies) with a length of 194,930 meters were forbidden for children in 1935-36 as against 129 films (including copies) with a length of 282,320 meters in 1934-35. 9 films totalling 18,780 meters were completely rejected by censor in 1935-36. In the 1935-36 year a total of 1,427 meters was cut from 48 films, including copies, as compared with 1,131 meters cut from 43 films, including copies, in 1934-35.

16 millimeter films became more popular in 1935-36. One theater owned and operated by the State Railways and located in the building of the main railway station in Copenhagen specializes on these films. A total of 120 films of the 16 millimeter type were shown in 1935-36, most of which were topical or news reels.

Censor fees are 6 ore per meter (one krone equals 100 ore, about 22 cents) for Danish and and foreign films except news reels and advertising films for which the fee is 3 ore per meter.

Competition—A total of 229 feature films were released during the first 9 months of 1936 as compared with 285 during the same months of 1935. American leadership made further advance on a percentage basis, viz. from 59 per cent of all films shown in 1935 to about 64 per cent in 1936. Of the total releases through September 1936, 147 American as against 170 in the corresponding period of 1935. German producers increased their participation from 40 films in 1935 to 41 in 1936, or from 14 per cent to 18 per cent. British releases dropped from 30 in 1935 to 11 in 1936, or from 10 per cent to 5 per cent; French films declined in number from 15 to 9, or from 5 per cent to 4 per cent; Swedish from 13 to 10 films, or about 4 per cent; and Danish from 10 films to 6. Other films released were two Austrian, one Hungarian, one Russian, and one Jugoslavian. The number of prints of domestic films continued to outrank all except the American.

The demand as to types of films remained unchanged. Two American historical films were especially well received.

Copyright Relations—Established by Presidential Proclamation May 9, 1893, extended April 9, 1910, and December 9, 1920.

Production—Nordisk Films Company A/S, Frederiksberggade 25, Palladium A/S, Axelborg; and Teatrenes Filmskontor (Asa Film) Jernbanegade 4, all of Copenhagen, are the only Danish producers of motion picture features. The other companies specialize in advertising films or short subjects.

Each of these producerrs own one sound studio. The studio owned by Nordisk Film Company A/S has four stages and one sound recording apparatus, a Danish Petersen and Poulsen recorder. The Palladium A/S studio has two stages and a Bofa sound system (made by Bang and Olufsen, Struer, Denmark), Teatrenes Filmskontor (Asa Film) has one stage and a German Bauer sound apparatus.

Only 6 features were released by Danish producers in 1936 as compared to 10 in 1935. Three were produced by Palladium, two by Teatrenes Filmskontor, and one by Nordisk Films Company. No films were produced in cooperation with Swedish or other foreign producers in 1936.

The Danish Film Industry claims that the existing amusement tax of 40 per cent of box office receipts is too heavy in view of the limited size of the market for Danish films and has petitioned the government for relief. This request has not been acceded to and as a result the producers have preferred not to give out information respecting their production plans in 1937.

The three films released by Palladium during 1935 were "Snushanerne" (The Prying Fellows), "Milliomardrengen" (The Millionaire Boy), and "Panserbasse" (The Cop). The two films released during the same year by Teatrenes Filmskontor were "Sol over Denmark" (Sunshine over Denmark) and "Cirkus Revuen" (The Circus Revue), while the title of the only film produced by Nordisk Films Company A/S in 1936 was "6' Traekning" (Sixth Lottery Drawing).

Taxes—Exhibitors in Denmark are burdened with a 40 per cent tax on box office receipts.

In the fiscal year 1934-35 ended March 31 (the latest year for which statistics are available), the amusement tax on films yielded 6,491,725 kroner (5,909,975 kroner in 1933-34). Of this amount 3,378,978 kroner was returned by Copenhagen theaters (3,124,426 in 1933-34). As the amusement tax on films is equal to 40 per cent of the gross ticket price it will be seen that the total box office turnover at all Danish motion picture theaters was approximately 14,775,000 kroner in 1933-34 and 16,230,000 kroner in 1934-35.

Films of special social or educational value may be exempted from tax by the Ministry of Justice. Four or five films are granted this privilege each year.

Theaters—On April 1, 1936, there were 352 motion picture theaters in Denmark as against 340 the year before.

The generally improved domestic economic conditions prevailing in Denmark in 1936 benefited owners of cinema theaters and receipts from ticket sales, particularly in the urban districts, are estimated to have been above those for 1935.

American productions strengthened their foothold and so did all foreign films considered as a whole. Danish films continued to exercise great drawing power but because their market is limited to one small country it is difficult to keep a high artistic standard and at the same time make a profit on them. Competition among local film exchanges was enhanced by the establishment of several new offices.

Most important of the new theaters constructed during the year are "Bella Bio" in Copenhagen with about 900 seats (German Bauer sound installation) and "Slotsbiografen" in Randers with about 500 seats (Danish Bofa sound installation). The former is a first-run and the latter a second-run theater.

A number of older theaters were reconstructed and modernized during the year particularly in the provinces where many smaller theaters were housed in buildings or rooms that were originally constructed for other purposes.

No theaters are owned by foreign motion picture producers or distributors and there are no chain theaters, both such forms of ownership being impossible under the provisions of the Danish motion picture law.

The table which follows lists Danish cinemas according to seating capacity, number of performances given yearly and the annual license fee to which they are subjected:

No. of Theaters	Seats Up to	Performances Up to yearly	Lic. Fees Kr.
131	500	151	0
47	500	300	150
25	500	400	300
90	800	850	800
14	1,000	1,200	1,800
8	1,200	2,000	2,500
4	Unlimited	Unlimited	5,000

Greater Copenhagen (including suburbs) with a population of approximately 900,000 had 44 motion picture theaters on January 1, 1936, with a total seating capacity of 26,874 as against 41 theaters with 24,578 seats a year previous. Of the 44 theaters 18 seat up to 500 persons; 21 from 500 to 1,000; and 5 over 1,000.

Statistics pertaining to greater Copenhagen indicate that attendance at motion picture houses increased from 10,081,000 in 1934 to 11,020,000 in 1935, a gain of 947,000 or about 9 per cent. The increase in ticket sales in Copenhagen proper has continued in 1936, its cinema having sold 5,127,931 tickets during the first eight months of 1936 as compared with 4,975,840 tickets during the same months of 1935, a gain of 152,091 or about 3 per cent.

Sound—Practically all of the theaters are now wired for sound and about 175 give daily performances.

DOMINICAN REPUBLIC

Legislation—Laws affecting the motion picture industry are confined to laws imposing taxes on undertakings and admission prices and such as restrict the admission of minors into the theaters.

Censorship—Censorship is exercised by a Municipal Commission. While there is no national law in regard to censorship, the municipal ordinance of Santo Domingo or a practically identical one has been adopted by the other municipalities. Censorship is very strict; while censorship has not been refused on any films, objections have been raised to many films on moral grounds.

During the year 1936 the censors have forbidden the showing of at least two pictures, because they have allegedly offended the national or patriotic feelings of the people of a country other than the Dominican Republic. In one case the showing of a film was prohibited on the alleged protest of the Cuban Minister or Charge d'Affairs, but in both cases it is believed that the objections were far-fetched.

Competition—95 per cent of the films shown are American, the other 5 per cent are British.

Copyright Relations—The title of each film might be registered under the Dominican trade mark law, but no occasion has yet arrived to resort to this recourse.

Production—There is no production in this market nor any studio facilities.

Taxes—High.

Theaters in addition to the regular property taxes which are assessed against real estate of any class, must pay a special tax of 40 cents per annum for each seat. Tax on admissions is 2 cents per each admission up to 20 cents and 10 per cent of the admission price above 20 cents.

Theaters—23 theaters in Dominican Republic. Two new theaters, both wired for sound have been installed during the year 1936, one additional theater was opened in Santiago, and one theater was closed in Moca. The total seating capacity of the 23 theaters is 10,400.

The range of admission prices is reported to be from 5 and 10 cents up to 40 cents for specials. It rarely, if ever, exceeds the latter figure while the average motion picture program consists of a feature and a comedy or cartoon.

Programs are changed daily, but occasionally specials are run in the two leading theaters of Santo Domingo for two consecutive days, Saturdays and Sundays.

The favorite types of pictures are musical comedies, or reviews and comedies. An occasional good heavy drama is well received. American stars are well known and are decidedly preferred. Pictures with Spanish sound, or pictures with English sound and titles or legends in Spanish are preferred. There is strong objection to American stars with native language "dubbed in."

Sound—23 theaters wired for sound.

EAST AFRICA

Legislation—There are no laws inimical to American motion picture interests in this market.

Censorship—Rules under the Kenya Stage Plays and Cinematograph Exhibitions Ordinance became effective on September 23, 1930, prescribing the method of constituting the Film Censorship Board, and granting the Board wide powers over silent and sound films, and posters, and advertising matter.

Films may be approved for public exhibition, refused approval, or approved subject to excisions. Approval may also be subject to a condition that the film may be exhibited only to non-Africans.

There are Censorship Boards at Nairobi, Kenya Colony; Dar-es-Salaam, Tanganyika Territory; Kampala, Uganda Protectorate; and Zanzibar. Gangster films are seldom passed by Censorship Boards in East Africa. This is especially true in the Uganda Protectorate.

Competition—Mostly American films. With the improved quality of British films, the number shown has greatly increased. It is estimated that at least 75 per cent of the films shown in East Africa are of American origin. It is understood that almost all of the theater operators and the motion picture importers are tied up with contracts which in effect close the market to American and foreign firms not already having connections in East Africa.

Production—There is no production of motion pictures in East Africa.

Taxes—Taxes are very moderate.

Theaters—The theater at Eldoret, Kenya Colony, has been burned down, and one theater at Kampala, Uganda Protectorate, and another at Nairobi, Kenya Colony, equipped for sound are not operating at the present time. Of a total of 13 theaters in East Africa, 11 are operating as follows:—

Country	Town	Sound	Silent
Kenya:	Nairobi	3	—
	Mombasa	2	—
	Nakura	1	—
Tanganyika:	Dar-es-Salaam	2	—
	Tanga	1
Uganda:	Kampala	1
Zanzibar:	Zanzibar	1
	Total	11

Sound—13 theaters are wired for sound, of which only 11 are operating. There are also two sound outfits in Kenya Colony carried on trucks on circuit to halls and hotels in Eldoret, Kitale, Kisumu and Kakamega.

It is possible that during 1937 a total of four more theaters equipped for sound will be constructed at the following places:—Mombassa, Kenya Colony; Tanga and Mwanza, Tanganyika Territory; and Kampala, Uganda Protectorate.

ECUADOR

Legislation—A decree of August 8, 1887, known as the law of Authors' and Artists' Proprietary Rights (Ley de Propiedad Literaria y Artistica) protects writers and artists, but this law is antiquated and its provisions do not cover the rights and protection of film producers and exhibitors. Consequently the laws of this country make it impossible to enforce exclusive rights to films by punishing the showing of them by unauthorized concerns, and do not give any protection to the rights of producers of films. It is understood, however, that each individual film can be registered, and in that way the exclusive right to show that particular film in Eucador can be obtained.

Difficulties continued to be encountered by most distributors in obtaining foreign exchange for payment of rentals of films although film imports have been exempt from the principal provisions of the control of foreign exchange established by an executive decree of July 30, 1936.

Censorship—Board of Censors established in each province by executive decree. Only special prepared films or those receiving special permission may be shown for children. However, the law is not enforced and apparently the question whether a film is suitable for children is left to the parents.

Competition—85 per cent American.

It is reported that there has been a slight increase in the showing of foreign films during the period because of the advent on the market of low-priced Mexican films which have been circulating at the cheaper theaters.

It is estimated that twelve German, eight British, four Mexican, and two Argentine pictures were exhibited during the first ten months of 1936. It is said that no French films were exhibited during this same period. Quito appears to be the better market for foreign films than Guyaquil. The competition of foreign films in Ecuador cannot be regarded as significant but it is the opinion of one distributor that this is partly due to lack of efficient distribution of such films.

Copyright Relations—Inter-American Copyright Convention at Buenos Aires, August 12, 1910.

Production—No moving pictures, either silent or sound, were produced in Ecuador. The small market would not warrant a domestic studio. During the past years a number of scientific and semi-scientific expeditions have been taking pictures in Ecuador, specially in the Oriente region.

Taxes—In accordance with an executive decree of January 30, 1926 (Registro Oficial No. 170, February 2, 1926 and No. 322, May 12, 1930) providing for municipal taxes, the municipalities are authorized to collect up to 10 per cent on the gross receipts from the sale of admission tickets to theaters, motion pictures, concerts, horse racing, etc. In Guayaquil this tax is 10 per cent; Quito 8 per cent; and in other cities it ranges from 5 to 7 per cent. A tax of 10 centavos for national defense is now collected on all admissions to theaters except on tickets for the cheapest seats which are situated in the gallery or second balcony.

Theaters—There are a total of 34 moving picture theaters with a seating capacity of 40,765 in Ecuador. This does not include the various projection rooms generally in club buildings in about 12 towns and villages; total shows were approximately 240 per month; total seating capacity is estimated at 6,000.

Important developments during 1936 may be considered the establishing of a circuit moving picture service which covers the small villages situated on the railroad line of Guayaquil to Riobamba, the chief centers being Alausi and Huigra, important railroad stations where there are school buildings and club houses of the railroad workers. It is understood that portable equipment is used for this purpose and performances are twice weekly.

Sound—34 theaters are wired for sound.

EGYPT

Legislation—Nationalistic propaganda is fostering the development of local sound film production in Arabic, since most Egyptians are not acquainted with foreign languages. A proposal has been made to the Egyptian Government, based on nationalistic grounds, by the local film industry proposing the compulsory use of a quota of Egyptian films in relation to foreign films. The object of this proposal is to encourage the infant local film industry. Due, however, to the paucity of the Egyptian production at the present moment, it is expected that this proposal will not be favorably acted upon by the Government.

The sole effective propaganda against foreign films in Egypt is being by Jews and Jewish sympathizers against films produced in Germany. Not more than three German films have been shown in Egypt since the inception of the anti-semitic movement in that country.

By decree which appeared in the Journal Officiel No. 54 of May 7, 1936, the Egyptian Government promulgated the International Convention of October, 1923, to facilitate the circulation of educational films. This decision, it is expected, will have a beneficial effect on the introduction of educational films in this market.

By decision of the Ministry of Interior, films produced locally should be accompanied by a certificate issued by the Censorship Office of that Ministry. The idea is to prevent the showing abroad of films which might be prejudicial to Egypt.

Censorship—Regulations are made under the Cinematograph Films Law, 1934.

In exercise of the powers vested in the Governor by the Cinematograph Films Law, 1934. His Excellency the Governor, with the advice of the Executive Council, is pleased to make and hereby makes the following Regulations:

1. These Regulations may be cited as the Cinematograph Films Regulations, 1935.

2. In these Regulations—
   "the Board" means the Board of Censors;
   "film" means a cinematograph film;
   "the Secretary" means the Secretary of the Board and includes an Assistant Secretary.
   "the Treasury" means the Public Treasury of Cyprus.

3. Every application of the approval of a film by a Censorship Committee shall
   (a) be submitted or forwarded to the Secretary;
   (b) be in accordance with Form A in the First Schedule hereto; and
   (c) be made not less than three days before it is proposed to exhibit such film.

4. Every film in respect of which an application as in Regulation 3 hereof prescribed has been made shall be submitted for approval to a Censorship Committee.

5. Upon receipt of an application made as in Regulation 3 hereof prescribed, the Secretary may arrange with the applicant to have the film projected at the applicant's risk and expense at Nicosia at such time as the Secretary may appoint:

Provided that if the applicant requests to have the film projected at any place other than Nicosia, the Secretary may, on payment by the applicant of all travelling and other expenses required therefor, arrange that the film should be projected at the place requested by the applicant.

6. There shall be paid into the Treasury in advance by every applicant a fee of five shillings in respect of every film submitted for examination and approval by a Censorship Committee, and the official receipt for such fee shall be attached to the application by the applicant:

Provided that no fee shall be paid

(a) in respect of any film which does not exceed one thousand and two hundred feet in length and depicts or relates to comics, reviews of world news, musical extracts, cartoons, educational or cultural subjects, or

(b) in respect of any film taken in Cyprus of less than thirty-five millimeters in width.

7. The decision of a Censorship Committee on an application for the approval of a film made as in Regulation 3 hereof prescribed shall be given in accordance with Form B in the First Schedule hereto, and shall be delivered or forwarded to the applicant within two days of the date thereof.

8. Every application for the approval of a poster by a Censorship Committee shall—

(a) be submitted or forwarded to the Secretary;

(b) be in accordance with Form C, in the first schedule hereto; and

(c) be made not less than two days before it is proposed to display or distribute such poster.

9. The decision of a Censorship Committee on an application for the approval of a poster made as in Regulation 8 hereof prescribed shall be given in accordance with Form D in the First Schedule hereto, and shall be delivered or forwarded to the applicant within two days of the date thereof.

10. Any person who desires to appeal to the Board against the refusal of a Censorship Committee to approve a film or part thereof, shall forward to the president of the Board an appeal in accordance with Form E in the First Schedule hereto, and shall pay into the Treasury a fee of five shillings;

Provided that if the Board allows the appeal, the said fee shall be refunded to the appellant.

11. Upon receipt of an appeal made as in Regulation 10 hereof prescribed, the President of the Board may arrange with the appellant to have the film projected at the appellant's risk and expense at Nicosia at such time as the President may appoint:

Provided that if the appellant requests to have the film projected at any place other than Nicosia, the President of the Board, on payment by the appellant of all travelling and other expenses required, therefor, arrange that on the film should be projected at the place requested by the appellant.

12. The decision of the Board on an appeal made as in Regulation 10 hereof prescribed shall be given in accordance with Form F in the First Schedule hereto, and shall be delivered or forwarded to the appellant within two days of the date thereof.

13. Any person who desires to appeal to the Board against the refusal of a Censorship Committee to approve a poster shall forward to the President of the Board an appeal in accordance with Form G in the First Schedule hereto.

14. The decision of the Board on an appeal made as in Regulation 13 hereof prescribed shall be given in accordance with Form H in the First Schedule hereto, and shall be delivered or forwarded to the appellant within two days of the date thereof.

15. Every person exhibiting a film which has been approved by a Censorship Committee or by the Board, as the case may be, shall at every such exhibition, cause Form B, or Form F of the First Schedule hereto on which such approval is recorded to be posted and kept posted for public inspection in a conspicuous place in the theater, building or space in which such exhibition takes place.

16. The Secretary shall keep a Register of Films in accordance with Form J in the Second Schedule hereto.

17. Where these Regulations require that any decision or appeal shall be in accordance with a form in the First Schedule hereto, it shall be sufficient if the same is as nearly in accordance with such form as circumstances permit.

18. The following classes or kinds of advertising matter shall be exempted from censorship, that is to say—

(a) any slide, handbill or leaflet which displays only the title and class of the film and the names of the actors, and

(b) any locally produced programme, handbill of leaflet relating to a film which has been approved by a Censorship Committee or the Board, as the case may be.

Competition—78 per cent American, 10 per cent French, 8 per cent British, 4 per cent Egyptian and all other countries.

Copyright Relations—The Mixed Tribunals deal with infringements of trademarks, copyrights and patents under the principles of general law and rules of equity. There are no specified laws regarding this.

Production—Egypt's motion picture industry has made some progress since its establishment in 1927. The production of films, however, is still very limited and consists mainly of Arabic feature films. During the 1936-37 season only five films have been screened while 5 other films are at the time of reporting in the cutting room in comparison with 13 films produced during the 1935-36 season. Most of the films are made for account of individuals who pool their capital as a speculative venture. These films enjoy runs generally in native theaters in Egypt and nearby Arabic speaking countries.

There are 5 small studios operating intermittently in Egypt and their equipment is relatively unimportant. The only one large and up-to-da e studio inaugurated in October, 1936, is that of the Societe Mier pour le Theatre et le Cinema, which is located about 5 miles from Cairo and one mile from the Pyramids. It is equipped with modern apparatus for taking both talkies and silent films. The Company has so far produced only one musical drama and 6 or 7 news reels, but plans to work out an extensive production programme including a regular weekly news service and shorts on tourist propaganda, etc.

Taxes—The Egyptian Government has been induced to modify the amusement tax imposed as from December 11, 1933, which worked out roughly on a 10 per cent scale but with a minimum of P. T. 5 (approximately 25c) per seat on tickets for theaters and other public places of amusement in Cairo, Alexandria and their environs. This tax has a serious effect on second and third run houses owing to the fact that in many cases the P.T. 5 minimum represents a tax of 15 to 30 per cent, considering the very low price of tickets at these establishments. The new taxation scheme enforced as from January 3, 1935, applies a 10 per cent scale on all categories up to P.T. 5. For tickets between P.T. 5 and P.T. 10 the tax is P.T. 1 and from P.T. 10 to P.T. 250 the tax is 10 per cent of the next highest even ten; i.e., for P.T. 231 the tax would be P.T. 24, etc. From P.T. 250 to P.T. 400 the tax is 10 per cent of the next highest even fifty; i.e., for P.T. 305 the tax would be P.T. 35. From P.T. 500 to P.T. 1,000 the tax is 10 per cent of the next highest even hundred; i.e., for P.T. 702 the tax is P.T. 80. Over P.T. 1,000 the tax continues at 10 per cent for every hundred or fraction.

On March 21, 1935, import duty on developed positive films was raised from L.E. 1 to L.E. per kilogramme (L.E. 1—$5 approximately) but reduced on May 9, 1935, to L.E. 2.5 per kilo net.

Theaters 102 theaters in Egypt, including 10 military theaters for the amusement of the British troops stationed here. Of these ten or twelve operate in the open air during the long summer season only while 8 to 10 indoor theaters close during the summer months on account of the excessive heat prevailing here and as none of the theaters in Egypt have, so far, been equipped with air-conditioning systems.

EL SALVADOR

Legislation—No quota or contingent laws, decrees, etc., inimical to any film interests have been promulgated during recent years.

Censorship—Very strict. A censorship board exists which reviews all pictures. Pictures are banned on the request of foreign Ministers accredited to the Government of El Salvador. Very strict on communistic and socialistic films.

Competition—90 per cent American films are shown.

Mexican, Spanish-speaking pictures are popular with the masses.

Copyright Relations—Convention at Mexico, January 27, 1902.

Production—None. The one company formerly operating, principally on newsreels, has gone out of business.

Taxes—On admissions:

Tickets 15 to 24 centavos, tax 1 centavo.
Tickets 25 to 49 centavos, tax 2 centavos.
Tickets 50 to 99 centavos, tax 3 centavos.
Tickets 1 colon and over, tax 5 centavos.

(Two and a half centavos equal one U. S. cent).

On performances:

Vary with time of performance and locality. Maximum c12 ($4.80); minimum c3.50 ($1.40).

Theaters—29 theaters, seating 36,000.

The average program consists of long feature, occasional comedy, newsreel, usual total of 10 reels.

There are about 5 releases each week, 3 to 5 performances daily in San Salvador. Most films are repeated numerous times at different hours. Films ordinarily are given one Sunday feature showing. American stars are preferred speaking the English language. Spanish talkies are second. Dubbed films are objectionable.

ESTONIA

Legislation—American motion picture films will be shown less in the next 12 months than heretofore, according to the import quotas that the Government has allotted to motion picture distributors for the year that will end June 30, 1937. The quotas of the three principal distributors of American films were reduced by from 20 to 50 per cent, although the total of all quotas remains about the same (220, for the 1936-37 year; 226 for the preceding 12 months).

The aim of the Government, it appears, is not so much to reduce imports of American films as to get the distribution of films in Estonia into the hands of Estonians. This does not mean merely Estonian citizens, but also persons of the Estonian race. The principal distributors in Estonia of American firms are Estonian citizens, but their racial origin is not Estonian.

Censorship—Under Film Inspector of the Ministry of the Interior; films approved by the Film Inspector upon request by motion picture theater owners are further passed upon by the Estonian Ministry of Education and Social Welfare for its decision as to which particular films are fit and proper to be attended by minors. Advertising carries announcement whether a film may or may not be attended by minors.

Competition—35% American; 44% German.

Copyright Relations—Member of Berne Union.

Production—One film laboratory in which local reviews are developed; operated by the endowment "Eesti Kulturfilm" at Tallinn. Mostly news reels and educational films.

Taxes—High. The tax on film imports is computed on the basis of the data relating to the length of films as contained in the shipping documents accompanying the imported motion picture films; if in doubt, the film inspector shall have the right to check the data relating to the length of films.

Motion Picture films which are not permitted to be imported shall be taxed at the rate of one quarter of a cent per each meter length for control expenses.

The tax, in case of foreign made motion picture films, shall be payable at the time of the importation of such films into Estonia when applying for the grant of the import license, and, in the case of films produced in Estonia, at the time of presentation of such films for registration; in both cases the tax is payable by the applicant to the account of the motion picture film fund at the Ministry of the Interior.

Theaters—58 theaters in operation in Estonia.

FINLAND

Legislation—None.

Censorship—The censorship of motion picture films is provided for by three decrees issued by the Government on October 30, 1935. The first decree itemizes the types of films which shall not be approved for exhibition. The second decree provides for the appointment, by the Ministry of Education, of a Government Film Censorship Bureau (in Finnish, Valtion Filmitarkastamo) comprising one film censor and three associates who are charged with reviewing films intended to be exhibited publicly and stipulating the class of amusement taxes applicable when the particular film is exhibited. All expenses of the Censorship Bureau are borne by the Finnish Cinema Association (in Finnish, Valtion Filmitarkastamo) comprising one film censor and three associates who are charged with reviewing films intended to be exhibited publicly and stipulating the class of amusement taxes applicable when the particular film is exhibited. All expenses of the Censorship Bureau are borne by the Finnish Cinema Association (in Finnish, Suomen Biogsaafiliitto). The third decree provides for the formation of a Government Film Commission (in Finnish, Valtion Filmilautakunta) of five persons appointed by the Ministry of Education to render final judgment, at the request of the owner of the film and at the owner's expense, on any film prohibited by the Censorship Bureau from being exhibited.

Competition—During 1935, features 65 per cent American, short subjects 55 per cent American, 30 per cent domestic.

Copyright Relations—Copyright laws were enacted in Finland on June 3, 1927, and modified by the law of January 31, 1930. Finland entered into reciprocal copyright relations with the United States on December 8, 1934, effective January 1, 1929. On April 1, 1928, Finland became a member of the Berne copyright convention on November 13, 1908.

Production—6 features and 186 short subjects produced in 1935. About 8 features produced in 1936.

Taxes—According to the law of December 21, 1932, effective January 15, 1933, motion picture films exhibited in Finland are subjected to the following taxation:

(a) Art films, 15 per cent of admission charge.
(b) Other films, 30 per cent of admission charge.

If a minimum of 200 meters of domestically produced film is exhibited at a performance the tax shall be reduced by 5 per cent. In practice, therefore, exhibitions of films in the art class are taxed 10 per cent and other films 25 per cent, as 200 meters of Finnish film are usually shown at every performance.

Theaters—220 theaters in Finland.

There are in addition 7 ambulatory theaters.

Sound—210 theaters are wired for sound.

Imports from U. S. A.—

1935—	Positive sound	743,134 ft.	$15,037
	Negative sound	46,210 ft.	1,466
1936—	(First 10 months)
	Positive sound	686,320 ft.	$15,872

FRANCE

Agitation—French Film Regulations from July 1st, 1936 to June 30th, 1937:

The President of the Republic:

On reports of the Minister of Commerce and Industry of the Minister of the Interior and the Minister of National Education.

By virtue of articles 49 and 50 of the Law of December 31, 1921, article 152 of the Law of April 29, 1926 and articles 58 and 59 of the Law of March 19, 1928:

By virtue of the decree of July 25, 1919, of February 28, 1928, of July 21, 1932 and of July 22, 1933, June 21, 1934 and November 24, 1934, and May 27, 1937.

DECREES—

ARTICLE 1.

The present decree will be effective from July 1st, 1936 to June 30th, 1937.

ARTICLE 2.

With the reservation of the restrictions mentioned below the importation and presentation in France of films "impressionnes" (printed of foreign origin) is unrestricted.

Foreign films are subject to the same regime as films "impressionnes" produced in France, particularly as concerns the application of censorship by the film control service.

ARTICLE 3.

"Dubbed" films of more than 900 meters, of foreign origin, may not be shown in public in France except within the limit of 94 films per semester and under the following conditions:

1. Dubbing must have been effected in studios situated on French territory within a period of four months from the date the request was filed certified by the payment of the required tax.
2. These films must be presented to the public at the beginning of the presentation as "dubbed films" with mention of the names of the artists interpreting the visual part and the names of the artists interpreting the spoken parts. Furthermore, mention must be made of the country of origin and the "commune" in which the dubbing has been effected.
3. For films regularly inscribed before July 1, 1936, and which could not receive a vise as a result of the contingent for the period of the last decree; July 1st, 1935, to June 30th, 1936, having been exhausted, the four months delay will begin to operate only from July 1, 1936.

ARTICLE 4.

For films "impressionnes" of all kinds originating in foreign countries where the exploitation of French films is subjected to any restrictions, the public showing in France will be subordinate to agreements with the interested Governments.

ARTICLE 5.

With the reservation of the application of article 4, orignal films in a foreign language, with the exception of animated cartoons, may not be shown in public except in five theaters in the Department of the Seine and 10 theaters in other departments, but not more than a maximum of 2 theaters per department.

Derogations from this limitation may be accorded by the Minister of National Education.

ARTICLE 6.

Non-observance of any one of the above provisions will cause the refusal or withdrawal of a vise.

ARTICLE 7.

The Minister of Interior, the Minister of Commerce and Industry and the Minister of National Education are charged with the execution of the present decree.

Made at Paris, May 26, 1936.
Albert Lebrun
(President of the Republic)

Censorship—Censorship is still carried on by the Department of Fine Arts.

Competition—In 1936, 141 French talkies have been released among them 116 produced in French studios, and 25 produced in Germany, Czechoslovakia, England and Italy.

About 190 Foreign Talkies dubbed in French among them 150 American films, 20 German, 15 British and 5 various.

In the specializing theaters showing Foreign talkies with French titles (mainly in Paris), 260 films shown in original version: 195 American, 25 British, 25 German.

Except the case of big American pictures, Foreign dubbed films are generally shown as supporting pictures in a programme where French films are the features.

Majority of the theaters (except the first run cinemas of Paris known as "Salles d'exclusivite") show double bill programmes with two French films, or one French film and a dubbing, or two dubbings.

Production—About 110 French films have been produced in the French studios in 1936 instead of 116 in 1935 and 120 in 1934. More than ever the French production is now only matter of independent producers who do not turn out more than 2 or 4 films per year.

The two big concerns G.F.F.A. and Pathe Cinema are still under receivership and do not produce any more films. Their only activities are in the renting of their studios to Independent Producers, and the exploitation of their Theater Circuits.

United Artists, Paramount and Warners are the only three American companies which distribute in France pictures made by local producers. Paramount released in 1936 5 French films, U. A. 2 and Warners 1.

Among the best French pictures made in 1936: L'Appel du Silence (Call of the Wilderness), directed by Leon Poirier (Grand Prix of the French Cinema) Les Bas Fonds (The Underworld), directed by Jean Renoir (Prix Louis Dellu), Mayerling directed by Anatol Litvak, Courrier Sur, directed by Pierre Billon, Le Roman D'un Tricheur, written, directed and acted by Sacha Guitry, Jenny, directed by Marcel Carne, Helene, directed by Jean Benoit Levy, Club of Femmes, directed by Jacques Deval, Beethoven's Great Love, directed by Abel Gance.

Taxes The question of taxes which had been reduced in 1935 has stayed unchanged in 1936. Exhibitors are still fighting for a reduction of their heavy burden.

Organization of the Industry—The French industry is now united in one official organization: the Confederation Generale du Cinema which groups four branches. Producers, Distributors, Exhibitors and Technical Industries.

There is also a section concerning nothing but French films.

Taxes—1935 has seen at last some reduction of the taxes affecting the motion picture theaters. The proect published in the last film year book has been approximately adopted but it is not enough and the fight is going on.

The following is the text of decree concerning the Taxes:

ARTICLE 1.

Fourth paragraph of article No. 474 of indirect taxes is changed by the following one:

Motion Picture Theaters—Monthly taxes on the net receipts of the motion picture theaters are, according to steps:

The rates of the tax on moving picture theaters as fixed by Article 88 of the decree of codification of December 28, 1926, and 47 of the law of April 16, 1930, as amended as follows:

2% up to 10,000 francs net monthly receipts.
5% above 10,000, and up to 30,000 francs net monthly receipts.
10% above 30,000, and up to 50,000 francs net monthly receipts.
15% above 50,000, and up to 100,000 francs net monthly receipts.
20% above 100,000 francs net monthly receipts.

The second paragraph of Article 90 of the decree of codification of December 28, 1926, modified by Article 40 of the decree of July 19, 1934, concerning fiscal readjustments, is redrafted as follows:

"Tax rates are reduced 50% for music halls, bicycle races, moving picture shows with the exception of the receipts included in the first category of taxes, cafes-concerts, dance halls at fairs, merry-go-rounds and shooting galleries at fairs, operated or organized outside Paris, and, in all localities, for amusement parks to which a general entrance fee is charged in addition to the collection of separate fees for admission to the side-shows, as well as for concerts not given daily by musicians' associations or by societies subsidized by the State, by departments or by communes to give concerts of classical music." Which means Cinemas outside Paris pay only 50 per cent (half) of the taxes rates of the Article One.

ARTICLE 3.

Municipal towns will be allowed to reduce the so-called "Pauper taxes" on all kind of entertainments provide they find some other way of getting the same money.

ARTICLE 4.

From the date of promulgation of the foregoing law, any contract having as object the showing in public of a moving picture film will become binding upon the parties thereto only after the expiration of a 48-hour delay following the trade showing or the first public showing of such film.

Paris 25 Juillet 1935. Signed
ALBERT LEBRUN

FRENCH WEST INDIES

Legislation—So far as can be ascertained there was no adverse film agitation in this city during the year.

Censorship—There appears to be no censorship practiced in this Colony although by decree of the President of France dated May 16, 1935, and published in the Journal Official of Martinique on pages 405, 406 and 407 of the issue of June 15, 1935, there is established a censorship of films and a commission composed of the Secretary General of the Colony, or his delegate; the Prosecutor of the Colony or his delegate; a representative of the Commandment of the troops; a representative of the Chief of Public Instruction; and the President of an organization known as the "Syndicat d' Initiative." There is no record extent of any films being refused censorship, and children of all ages are admitted to theaters at any time there is a showing.

Competition—French and American films.

Copyright Relations—French laws apply.

Production—There is no production in Martinique or the island colony of Guadeloupe.

Taxes—Moderate; varies according to locality, city and town.

Theaters—There are a total of 11 theaters in Martinique with an estimated seating capacity of 8,000. These are located in the following cities: Fort-de France 3; Lamentin 2; Vauclin 2; Trinite 2. All other towns on the island have two buildings where pictures are shown. All theaters have two or three showings a week, and no theaters are properly wired for sound. Admission prices in the cities range from Frs. 5.00 to Frs. 15.00 and in the smaller towns and villages from Frs. 3.00 to Frs. 10.00 (Note a Fr. is equal to $0.0666 American currency). In the cities and larger towns where prices of admission are higher, the program consists of one news reel and one feature picture. Sunday nights when there is an increase in the prices a short comedy is included. In the low price villages only one picture is shown. Feature pictures are shown twice, usually at the 6 p.m. showing and also again at the 9 p.m. performance. The picture then starts its trip around the island to the different towns and villages and after showing one day in each town is returned to Fort-de-France where it is again shown for one day. It is then sent around the island for one or two showings and this moving about is repeated several times or until it is worn out. Of course if the demand for a picture is enough to warrant repeated showings in each city or village, it is shown until the demand ceases.

Favorite type of picture: It would appear that any picture is acceptable just so long as French is used, the accepted language of the island. American films, "dubbed" in French are not objected to by the theatergoers. The amount of the tax on each admission is included in the cost of the ticket and it varies according to the locality and the city and town.

The remarks made in the foregoing under Martinique apply equally to the industry as established in Guadeloupe with the following exceptions: There are two motion picture houses, similar to those established in Martinique, operating in Pointe-a-Pitre; and it is assumed that each town and village on the island has at least one place where films are shown.

Sound—15 theaters are wired for sound.

GERMANY

Legislation—The industry continued under about the same regulations as during the previous year: 1. the Film Bank continued as part of the Film Chamber. This bank was instituted in order to provide reputable producers with the necessary capital for production at moderate interest rates, and to replace the previous system of film financing which operated without discipline and at heavy costs to borrowers; 2. the single-feature show is now general throughout the country; 3. the fixation of minimum entrance prices in order chiefly to eliminate cutthroat competition among cinemas operating in the same localities, but also to provide preferential admissions for members of the uniformed ranks, the unemployed, etc.; 4. exhibitors remained organized into a single body within the Film Chamber, which has already accomplished much to correct the earlier system of sharp practices and irregularities. Whereas the greatest charge against the German industry in recent years has been its instability, its plethora of "fly-by-night" producers and "bad-pay" exhibitors and the consequent exorbitant cost of borrowed money, the supervision of the industry by the Film Chamber under the close surveillance of the Ministry of Propaganda gives evidence, in theory at least, of correcting these major faults; and, 5. the obligation to show together with every standard feature film one cultural film of at least 300 m. length, in order to promote German culture film production. Educational and propaganda films are also being promoted; 6. in order to better utilize the studios and to employ the actors equally throughout the whole year, the Reichsfilmkammer has ruled that one-half of the film production must be completed by the beginning of the film season (July) and the other half by the beginning of October.

On July 1, 1936, new contingent regulations were issued. On the whole, the wording of these is practically the same as that of the old ones, but the few alterations made are of great importance. Although the United States is not explicitly mentioned in these regulations, they are undoubtedly directed against the American film industry.

It will be recalled that foreign feature films are admitted into circulation in Germany either against internal contingent licenses or external contingent licenses. The first are earned by distributors in proportion to domestic production released, and the second by producers in proportion to the receipts from German films shown abroad. Internal licenses are non-transferable, while the export licenses may be transferred. After considerable effort on the part of American film companies, the Ministry of Propaganda lowered the price for export contingent licenses in 1935 from RM 20,000 to RM 10,000. A further reduction is granted if a foreign feature film is dubbed in Germany,—the price of the contingent license being decreased according to the dubbing costs, (the latter including actors' salaries, studio costs, costs of German film material, etc.). For the first RM 20,000 of dubbing costs the license price will be lowered by RM 1,000, and for every additional RM 5,000, by another RM 1,000. When the contingent certificate is transferred, the American firm in question has to pay the seller of the license the sum of RM 5,000, the balance being determined with the Contingent Office after the dubbing costs have been fixed. In a few exceptional cases, especially where films are either technically interesting or for political reasons suitable for Germany, the Ministry of Propaganda has the right to grant the foreign film producers an import license without fee.

The American exchanges for the most part bring their feature product to the market against export licenses and have for the past few years used very few of the internal licenses. It appears that with the internal license American producers have not always been satisfied with the way their product was handled by German film renters, who in most cases are closely connected with German producers.

In spite of the reduction in the cost of a contingent license, the high price in effect places the German market for American films in the prohibitive class. The regulations concerning the use of blocked marks have also been considerably strengthened. All these difficulties will eventually force a decision from the American companies, as to whether they will participate to a greater extent in domestic production by producing locally themselves or by distributing locally made products, or whether they will entirely withdraw from the country.

Censorship—In order to meet the demands of the Nazi moral code, censorship has been greatly intensified and is most vexatious to film importers, particularly to Americans. As has been officially declared, the aim of German film politics is to import American super films, but, on the other hand, to exclude average American films from competition with the German product. The pre-censorship, under the direction of the Ministry of Propaganda, through the inspection of films prior to their submittal to the Board of Censorship, or the reading of manuscripts or scenarios by the office of the Film Critic of the Ministry, is considered in the trade to have slowed up the machinery of production, the more so as it serves to increase the Ministry's arbitrary control over the industry. Sometimes, however, it is advantageous in that it obviates difficulties with the Board of Censors by aiding producers and distributors to determine the types of film and story that the German public may be expected to appreciate, and, consequently, the German censors to approve. The apparent severity of the censorship policy would indicate a market supply of domestic film of distinct national character.

Under the film law, censorship is now centered in Berlin alone, instead of Berlin and Munich, as formerly.

Contingent licenses are no longer sacrificed when films to which they were applied, are rejected by the censors.

Competition—On the basis of official censorship figures, 201 features were shown during 1935, of which 94 were German, 50 American and 67 "other foreign" films. During the previous year, the total was 196 including 122 German, 37 American and 37 "other foreign" films. Thus during 1935, foreign films accounted for 53.2 per cent of the total market supply as against 37.8 per cent during the previous year.

During the 1935-36 film season, there were 187 first-runs in Berlin, as against 188 in the previous season. Of the 1935-36 total, 108 included films of German origin, 35 of American origin and 44 of "other foreign' origin. As compared with the previous season, there was an increase of 4 in German first-runs and a decline of 5 in American. It is noteworthy, that domestic production made up 57.7 per cent of the Berlin first-run market in 1935-36, American features 18.7 per cent and "other foreign" 23.6 per cent. Germany's annual requirements for standard feature films amount to approximately 250. In consequence of both decreased domestic production and import difficulties, this normal need has not been satisfied since 1933.

Copyright Relations—The anticipated Government action in regard to copyrights has not so far been taken. It appears, however, that no important changes in existing law and practice are to be expected. The committee to consider the principles involved and make recommendations, has concluded that

1. only the author is entitled to copyright, and according to the general principle of German copyright the author is the one who wrote the story;

2. on the other hand the right to exploit the film, including reproduction, distribution, public performance, translation, synchronization, etc., is held to belong exclusively to the producer. This is in accordance with regulations already in force, but in the new interpretation the producer's right is based, not as hitherto on copyright, but on a newly defined right of exploitation ("Verwertungsrecht"). The right to proceed against persons who through alteration, mutilation or insertion spoil the film, belongs formally to the author, but in practice would be actually exerted by the producer.

As compensation for the rights of the composer of the musical score, an amount is to be paid, according to the seating capacity of the theater, of between RM 0.90 and RM 1.30 per seat per annum, or about 1 per cent of gross receipts.

Production—Production during the past 2 years:

	Number	Length (in meter)
1934
Long feature films	129	314,345
Short feature and educational films	1,891	554,007
TOTAL	2,020	868,352
1935
Long feature films	130	315,510
Short feature and educational films	2,072	509,127
TOTAL	2,202	824,637

The number of film producers declined from 83 in 1928 to 49 in 1933, and the number of distributors from 41 to 22 during the same period. This decrease was due partly to the elimination of "non-Aryan" firms. During the past season the program of eliminating from the German film industry all persons classified as "unreliable" or "un-German" was brought to completion and as a result, membership in the distributors' association was reduced to 2/3 that of the previous year and other branches of the industry were similarly affected.

Production costs including the costs for culture film and news reel, though difficult to determine are estimated to have reached RM 50,000,000 (about $20,000,000 at RM 2.50) as against an estimated total of RM 30,000,000 (about $12,000,000) in 1933. During 1935, the average production cost of a feature film is said to have been approximately $160,000 as against $120,000 in 1934. In exceptional cases, however, especially if the film is destined for export, production costs are as much as $320,000. Star salaries, in general, do not exceed 25 per cent of the total production costs.

German film producers suffer from a lack of sufficient capital. In most cases, the producer himself has only a small part of the money necessary for the production of a new film and the means of the Film Credit Bank are not sufficent to cover his need. The producer must, therefore, rely more and more on the financial support of the distributors, who will, on their part, have to borrow some of the money required from the picture theater owners. Thus it happens that distributors, as well as theater owners, have gained a tremendous influence over the production of films and the selection of actors.

Production costs average RM 160-180 a meter of long feature film and about RM 10 a meter for cultural films. During the past 2 or 3 years production costs have increased by 70-80 per cent, while domestic receipts have risen by only 30-40 per cent and export income has heavily declined. This has resulted in a serious decrease in the earning power of the whole German film industry in consequence of which there was a deficit for the past season estimated at between RM 8,000,000 and RM 10,000,000.

Distributors' turnover in 1935 amounted to $28,000,000 as compared with $25,600,000 in 1934.

The output of German copying studios during the season 1935-36 is estimated at about 10,000,000 meters of negatives and 60,000,000 meters of positives of standard films, to which must be added narrow gauge film for educational purposes and for amateurs which is growing in importance.

American production in Germany was practically nil, its efforts for the most part being confined to dubbing.

Distribution is usually made on a percentage basis with a minimum guarantee. The average terms are 30-35 per cent of gross receipts less compensation tax and no distinction is made between the German and the foreign films. In exceptional cases films are rented at a fixed price, especially to very small cinema owners.

Taxes—The so-called amusement tax makes up 15 per cent of the entrance fee and is generally absorbed by the film renter. For a film that has been qualified as "valuable from a cultural or political viewpoint," this tax is reduced by the proportion which the qualified film strip bears to the total length of all films shown. As in every performance a qualified culture film has to be shown, the tax is reduced in any case to at least 12 per cent. When the feature film and the news reel are also qualified the tax is further diminished and may even be entirely eliminated. During the past year the amusement tax averaged 7.5 per cent. For the 1935-36 season, box office receipts are estimated at RM 250,000,000 and the amusement tax at RM 17,000,000. For the preceding year the respective figures were RM 205,000,000 and RM 15,000,000.

Theaters—According to the latest statistical compilation there were 5,273 film theaters with a total of 1,933,059 seats in Germany at the beginning of the film season 1936-37. Of the 5,273 theaters, 2,227 had a seating capacity of 250 or less; 2,127 theaters a capacity of from 500 to 900, and 194 theaters, of more than 900. The capacity of the German film theaters appears to be utilized to only about one-third, in spite of the increase in the number of visitors. The number of persons employed in the film industry is estimated at 51,500, of which about 29,000 are employed in production, 3,500 in distribution, import and export, and 19,000 in cinemas. The capital invested in German film theaters is estimated at around $180,000,000 or about $93 for every seat.

Sound—In 1936 all but two cinemas were fitted with sound film apparatus, while in 1934 there were still 420 theaters without such equipment.

GREECE

Legislation—Motion picture films are included in Group A of the Greek import quota schedule, which permits their importation without restrictions as to quantity or value and regardless of whether the importing firm was previously in the film trade.

For films imported from countries such as Germany, which have official clearing arrangements with Greece and a trade balance in favor of the latter, the payment of drafts covering royalties and prints is effected without difficulty. When the clearing account shows a debit balance, however, as is the case with Czechoslovakia and Austria, payment is delayed by settling drafts in chronological order as funds become available in the clearing accounts. Imports from countries such as France, which are subject to private barter, require payment by means of clearing exchange derived from the exportation of Greek products. Such private barter transactions usually involve the payment of a premium by the importing firm to the holder of the clearing exchange permit. In the case of the United States and England, foreign exchange in settlement of the value of imported films (including royalties) is made available in two ways. On films purchased outright and imported by local exchanges for their own account, payment for prints and distribution rights in foreign currency may be effected either by means of a letter of credit or by sight draft attached to shipping documents and presented through a local bank. In the case of films imported by the local branches of foreign producing or distributing organizations, where the royalties are determined by the proceeds from the exhibition of each individual film, remittances in foreign currency are authorized upon application after the books of the local branch have been audited by the Bank of Greece. Due consideration is given to the working agreements between local branches and their head offices in the matter of royalty payments.

Foreign shippers are required to sign and mail direct to the Invoice Control Commission at the Greek port of destination the original invoice covering each shipment to be cleared through Greek customs. A signed copy of the same invoice must be mailed to the Greek consignee for presentation by him to the Invoice Control Commission for purposes of comparison and verification. For the city of Athens original invoices must be mailed to the Commission de Controle de Factures, 6 University Avenue, Athens, Greece. For other cities the title of the Commission in French and the name of the port of destination will be sufficient address.

Censorship—Controlled by the Public Morals Division of the Police Department. Existing regulations provide that children under 16 years of age may not be admitted in motion picture theaters unless the film shown has been approved by the censors as suitable for children and adults. However, this regulation is almost never strictly enforced. Censorship is particularly rigid on communistic propaganda, but quite lenient in other respects.

Competition—At present American films control about 70 per cent of the Greek trade. This includes films dubbed or produced in the European studios of American producers. Society dramas and musical comedies appeal to the more prosperous classes of the population, but there is also a fairly good market for American "action" films among the so-called "popular" theaters. English not being very widely understood. French versions of American films are preferred where dubbing can be done well and appropriately; many films, of course, lose too much of their character when dubbed, and English is sufficiently intelligible to a Greek audience to be preferable to French in such cases. German producers lead in the field of operetta or musical comedy, while certain French society dramas have been quite successful in recent years. Historical films are of comparatively minor interest. During the 1935-36 season (October-May) a total of 323 feature films were released in Greece. Of these 232 (72%) were American, 43 (13%) German and 32 (10%) French.

Copyright Relations—Under the reciprocal copyright protection agreement signed between Greece and the United States on January 27, 1932, American films receive full protection. No films are allowed to be exhibited unless it is proven that they were duly imported through customs and that the necessary import duties and taxes were paid.

In September 1935 the Greek Government established a Bureau of Educational Cinematography under the jurisdiction of the Ministry of Public Instruction. In October 1936 Swiss and Austrian 16 mm projecton equipment was purchased and a call for tenders was issued to supply educational films. The Greek Government also ratified the International Convention on Educational Films whereby customs franchise is extended to films used for instruction.

Production—Confined to news and advertising reels. There are no studios.

Taxes—On tickets costing up to 8 drachmas, 25 per cent; over 8 drachmas, 30 per cent. (The drachma is about $0.009).

The import duty on positive films, including all surtaxes, amounts to 87½ drachmas per kilogram or approximately 36c per pound. In addition there is a 1½ per cent turnover tax payable at the time or entry, which is calculated on the basis of (1) the landed cost of prints (including import duty and surtaxes) and (2) the royalty value or distribution rights. For the assessment of the turnover tax the distribution rights have been fixed by ministerial decision at 1,000 gold dollars ($1,690) for feature films intended for exhibition in first-run house and at 100 gold dollars ($169) for cheaper films generally exhibited in "popular" or second and third run houses.

Theaters—According to a census taken in March 1936 there were 153 moton picture theaters n operation throughout Greece. During the hot summer months all indoor theaters close down for lack of air-conditioning facilities, while at the same time a large number of outdoor theaters are started using the projection and sound equipment of the indoor houses. The aggregate seating capacity of all the regular theaters is estimated at about 70,000. There are six first-run houses in Athens totalling 8,000 seats. Three more large motion picture theaters are under construction in Athens which are expected to be ready for operation before the end of 1936. When completed these new theaters will increase the seating capacity of the first-run houses in Athens to approximately 13,000.

Sound—About 140 theaters are wired for sound. The equipment used in the provincial theaters is mostly assembled in Greece from imported and locally made parts. Practically all sound systems used can reproduce sound on film and disc.

GUATEMALA

Legislation—There is no adverse legislation in Guatemala governing the motion picture industry.

Censorship—At present there is no Censorship Board acting in Guatemala, although the Chief of Police reserves the right to prohibit the showing of any picture that he sees fit.

Competition—Seventy-five to eighty per cent of the films shown in Guatemala are American.

Copyright Relations—Copyright relations remain the same as previously reported.

Production—There is no film production in Guatemala.

Taxes—Fifteen per cent of gross theater receipts are turned over to the Government for public charities under the Beneficiencia Publica. Duties and other taxes remain the same as previously reported.

Theaters—There are thirty-one theaters operating in Guatemala with a seating capacity of about 18,000, admission prices ranging from ten to fifty cents.

Distributors of American films in Guatemala continue to complain of the competition from Spanish speaking pictures. It is reported that American films are being pushed slowly out of all of the smaller towns, now that Mexican pictures are becoming more available, and that one of the three first class theaters of Guatemala City is showing about 65 per cent Spanish speaking pictures. The smaller theaters of this city, like those of the small towns, are showing all the Spanish speaking pictures obtainable in preference to American productions. It is known that the first class theater now showing 65 per cent Spanish speaking pictures has purchased 65 Spanish films for next year, 20 of which are said to be of Argentine production and the balance Mexican. There have been relatively few Argentine productions exhibited in Guatemala heretofore.

Sound—Twenty-five of the theaters mentioned above are wired for sound pictures.

HAITI

Legislation—There is no legislation adverse to the introduction of motion pictures in Haiti.

Censorship—According to the censorship law of July 12, 1935, those pictures which are found to be inadmissible to children less than 18 years of age must be so advertised on the motion picture billboard, and children of this age must be refused admittance. The Department of Interior is given the power to censor films which are considered to be immoral or dangerous to the maintenance of internal order. Any one who does not comply with the regulations laid down is subject to a fine of from $100 to $500.

Competition—40 per cent American; 60 per cent French.

French pictures have gained immensely in this market during the last year. The above percentages are based on weight of films imported. If value is taken, the percentages are about 20 percent American, 80 percent French. The language question is believed to be the principal factor in favor of French films. There is no objection to dubbed films if they are in French.

Copyright Relations—Copyright protection is not available in Haiti.

Production—There is not, nor has there been, any production of motion pictures in Haiti.

Taxes—A tax of 10 percent is imposed on theater admissions.

Theaters—8 theaters in Haiti. Admission prices range from 10 to 60 cents. Dramas are preferred, but musical comedies are also well received. American "slap-stick" comedy is neither understood nor appreciated.

HONDURAS

Legislation—There have never been any quota or contingent laws, decrees, etc., issued in Honduras restricting the importation of motion picture films.

Censorship—Regulations exist in the Republic of Honduras by virtue of Executive Resolution No. 1960 of March 29, 1928. This regulation provides that the Governor of each Department of the Republic shall have a board of censors to operate in his jurisdiction. While the regulation is closely followed in most districts, it is less rigidly followed in others.

Competition—15 percent of the motion pictures exhibited in the Republic of Honduras are Mexican and European and the balance American.

Copyright Relations — Inter-American Copyright Conventions, Mexico City and Buenos Aires, January 2, 1902, and August 11, 1910. Ratified July 13, 1914, and April 9, 1914.

Production—No production in Honduras.

Taxes—Municipal taxes varies from 5 to 10 lempiras per day whether the theater has one or more performances.

Theaters—There are 29 theaters in Honduras, all of which are wired for sound, although only 21 are in operation at the present time.

Sound—29 theaters wired for sound.

HUNGARY

Legislation—According to Decree No. 2670/1932, dated May 10, 1932, the duty on films imported into Hungary is 250 gold crowns (one gold crown equals $0.343 present gold basis and about $0.223 at the prevailing commercial rate through the National Bank of Hungary) per 100 kilograms (220 pounds) plus 6 per cent phase turnover tax. "Import certificates" for sound films cost 100 pengo (one pengo equals $0.2961 present gold basis and about $0.1925 at the prevailing commercial rate) for films less than 200 meters in length, 200 pengo if between 201 and 400 meters, 400 pengo between 401 and 800 meters, 600 pengo between 801 and 1,200 meters, and 1,000 pengo for all others. Silent films require no import certificates. The same decree ordered that for the benefit of the Hungarian Film Fund an additional fee of 20 fillers must be paid on each meter of censored and approved film for which the Hungarian titles were prepared in Hungary, and on those for which the Hungarian titles were prepared abroad, 30 fillers per meter must be paid. By Decree No. 5710/1933 M. E. dated May 26, 1933, the second mentioned fee was increased from 30 to 50 fillers. In further modification of the original decree, Decree No. 8484/1934 M. E. dated September 29, 1934, taking effect on October 1, 1934, the fee for films for which the titles were prepared abroad, was increased from 50 fillers to one pengo per meter. The fee of 20 fillers, payable on foreign films for which the Hungarian titles are made in Hungary, was not affected by the subsequent modifications. In addition there is charged a regular censorship fee of 4 fillers per meter on films made in Hungary and 10 fillers per meter if made abroad. Weekly news, educational and scientific films are exempt from all charges except censorship fee and import duty. Foreign made equipment and supplies require special import permits issued by the Ministry of Commerce and Communication.

Besides the foregoing, according to Decree No. 180,000/1935, B. M. importers of films are obliged to submit a censorship card for every film imported into the country. The money paid for these cards is used toward supporting the Hungarian film producing industry. Up to July 1, 1936, the National Motion Picture Examining Committee (Orszagos Mozgokepvissgalo Bizottsag) issued 7 censorship cards to each producer of a Hungarian feature film over 1,600 meters in length. Since August 1, 1936, according to Decree 175,000/1936 B. M., firms producing such films receive 8 censorship cards. These cards are bought and sold in the open market and their price depends upon supply and demand. At present the price varies between 1,800 and 2,000 pengo each. Films which, in the opinion of the National Motion Picture Examining Committee, quality as of the highest quality with regard to cultural and artistic merit, receive special premiums in the form of censorship cards. There are distributed annually not over ten such cards to firms producing meritorious films.

According to Decree No. 175,000/1936 B. M. importers of short films are also obliged to purchase a so-called "short censorship card." For the present there is to be submitted with every short film imported one short censorship card as the Decree orders the submission of a large censorship card only with films over 1,200 meters in length. The short film censorship cards are distributed on the basis of Decree 175,-100/1936 B. M. as follows: up to 200 meters the producer receives 5 cards; from 201 to 400 meters, 10 cards; from 401 to 600 meters, 15 cards and over 600 meters 20 cards. The value of the short censorship cards depends upon supply and demand the present price being between 150 and 170 pengo. It is rumored in trade circles that it is proposed to revise the Decree so that the number of short film cards to be submitted with imported films of less than 1,200 may be established on the basis of the length of the film.

Censorship—Film censorship is under the direction of the Royal Hungarian Ministry of the Interior, the members of the Censorship Board being appointed by the Minister. Appeal can be taken from the Board's decision in the first, second and third instances; the final appeal being to the Minister of the Interior. In most cases one of the appeal boards has permitted pictures previously rejected by the Board, to be shown after certain changes had been made in subtitles or after offending parts had been eliminated. Pictures are classified in two groups by the Board of Censors, viz. whether they may be shown universally or only to persons over 16 years of age.

Non-official censorship does not exist in Hungary. The pictures are censored by the official Board solely with regard to public morals and the safety of the State.

There are no discriminations against American film companies and, in cases rejections were deemed necessary, marked consideration has been shown by the authorities.

974 films (916,968 meters) were censored during 1935, of which 910 (888.716 meters) were sound and 64 (28,272 meters) were silent films. Of the total films censored 46 (90,787 meters), or 5 per cent of the total, were rejected. Of the total sound films licensed for production 435 (48 per cent) were American, 146 (16 per cent) German, 75 (8 per cent) French, 5 (0.5 per cent) Italian, 33 (3.6 per cent) British, 23 (2.4 per cent) Austrian, 8 (1 per cent) Scandinavian, and 185 (20.5 per cent) Hungarian. Of the silent films 2 (3.1 per cent) were American, 13 (20 per cent) German, 2 (3.1 per cent) French, 4 (6.3 per cent) Scandinavian, and 43 (67.5 per cent) Hungarian. According to the subjects of the films 521 were sound and 2 silent feature films, 92 sound and 32 silent educational films, 203 sound and 23 silent newsreels and 94 sound and 7 silent advertising films.

Competition—The film production of Hungary during 1935 continued to be mainly of local importance. The expatriated German film production benefited Budapest to a certain extent and the same situation helped to maintain the American leadership. Five years ago German films held nearly 90 per cent of the trade but in 1932 American films regained the ground lost, representing 55 per cent of the films shown, and in 1933 advanced to 65 per cent. In 1934 American films represented 61 per cent, and in 1935 48 per cent of the sound films and 4.6 per cent of the silent films shown. The decrease in the percentage of American films shown is due principally to the development of the Hungarian film industry, the products of which have practically eliminated American films from the provincial motion picture theaters.

Copyright Relations—A special convention signed October 13, 1913, gives copyright protection.

Production—There are two Government controlled studios in Hungary producing films. During 1935 the Hungarian Film Bureau (Magyar Filmiroda) produced four sound feature films (9,094 meters) three educational films (1,542 meters), and 52 news reels (12,000 meters). The Hunnia Film Studio working throughout the year produced 16 feature films averaging 2,500 meters each, or a total of 40,000 meters. Eleven of the films produced were in Hungarian only, three in German and two in Hungarian and German. The cost of production varied from 110,000 to 800,000 pengo per film. No figures are available concerning the cost of production of films produced by the Hungarian Film Bureau. To develop local production, the producers of Hungarian films may have the use of the Hunnia Studio free of charge provided the Hungarian Film Industry Fund accepts the theme, in which case the Film Industry Fund pays the Hunnia 40 pengo per day for the use of the studio.

Taxes—The amusement tax in first run motion picture houses in Budapest between October 1 and April 30th is 6 per cent of the total receipts if the seating capacity is over 400, and 5 per cent if the seating capacity is under 400. Between May 1 and September 30th the amusement tax in theaters of over 400 seating capacity is 3 per cent, and if the capacity is under 400, 2 per cent. In all other motion picture theaters with a seating capacity of over 600 the amusement tax is 5 per cent and, if under 600, 4 per cent between October 1 and April 30. The amusement tax in these theaters between May 1 and September 30th is 2 per cent regardless of the seating capacity. In the provinces the amusement tax varies between 5 and 15 per cent. The additional turnover tax (national) is 3 per cent.

Theaters—There were 410 motion picture theaters in operation in Hungary during 1935.

According to Decree No. 174,000/1936 B. M. since August 31, 1936, first run houses in Hungary may exhibit only one feature film of over 1,200 meters in length per performance. On weekdays first run houses are permitted to give 3 performances and 4 on Sundays and holidays. A single performance may consist of not over 3,400 meters of film. The same decree forbids first run houses to give half-price performances or to sell tickets at special rates. On the other hand other than first run houses are permitted to show only one feature film at a single performance. Second run and other motion picture theaters in Budapest and the provinces may give 4 performances on weekdays and 5 on Saturdays, Sundays and holidays. The program may consist of 3,800 meters of film. According to the decree all performances must end by 12 o'clock midnight.

Decree 174,000/1936 B. M. orders that every motion picture theater employee must have one free day each week which cannot be exchanged for any consideration.

Sound—Of the above 410 theaters, 385 theaters are wired for sound.

INDIA

Legislation—The failure which met the Indian section of the Calcutta Press in their agitation against the construction of the Metro Theater in that city, did not daunt the spirits of the Motion Picture Society of India, Bombay, a body representing the indigenous industry, who, as soon as the news of the projected construction of another Metro Theater in Bombay reached their ears, staged an even stronger campaign of agitation through the press, direct representations to authorities and public meetings, but the Government having taken the stand that they could not interfere with fair and legitimate trade competition, the agitators were subdued.

During the year there have also not been exhibited any films which have seriously aroused criticism either on the part of the Government or the Indian population as was the case in connection with "India Speaks" and several other films during the past few years.

Censorship—During the year several representations were made to the Board of Film Censors, as a result of which the foreign film industry has not only been able to get from the Board assurances of cooperation but definite concessions in the way of preservation of cuts made in a film for a period of two years before destruction, and reduction of charges for advertising trailers to Rs. 3 instead of Rs. 5 as in the past. Cuts were made in 19 films examined by the Bengal Board during the year ending March 31, 1936.

During the year ending March 31, 1936, 1,198 films representing 3,362,022 feet were certified by the Bengal Board representing 641 films with 1,528,085 feet American; 408 films and 688,880 feet British; 8 foreign with 10,055 feet; and 141 Indian films measuring 1,135,022 feet.

The bill to amend the Cinematograph Act to include the censorship of cinema posters is still before the Government and there are no indications as to when it might be considered in the Assembly. There is considerable doubt among distributors that it will be passed.

Competition—During the fiscal year ending March 31, 1936, about 73 per cent by footage of the imported pictures were American. This figure is an estimate as inaccuracies are found in import statistics due to reimportation of American films from Ceylon. The distribution arrangements for British pictures continued to improve and British pictures accounted for 24 per cent during the above period.

Copyright Relations—Same as United Kingdom.

Production—In India there is no organization, official or private, which assembles data relative to the production of Indian films. It is understood that the Motion Picture Society of India recently issued a questionnaire to the various indigenous producing units but the response they received was disappointing. According to the trade there are in India 25 major Indian producing companies. There are also 40 to 50 small producing concerns which may exist today and discontinue operations on the morrow. It is also estimated that there are at least 70 motion picture producing concerns in South India alone and that this number is increasing rapidly.

It is the general impression of the public that the quality of Indian films is steadily improving and several produced and exhibited during the past year, despite the local language difficulty, have attracted the discerning attention and admiration of the European members of the public.

During the period January to October, 1936, a total of 396 Indian pictures with a total footage of 2,627,334 feet were examined by the Bombay and Calcutta Boards. During the same period of 1935 a total of 346 Indian pictures with a total footage of 3,101,314 were examined by these boards. No segregation is made between sound and silent films but the trade reports that a larger proportion of the films censored were sound.

Taxes—During the year under review, the Government of India withdrew the drawback of 7/8th per cent Customs duty which the foreign film industry was enjoying in the past as a fair and reasonable privilege. The Kinematograph Renters' Society made able representations to the Government, supported by statistics appealing for reconsideration of their decision, but to no avail. This action on the part of the Government, which is claimed by the Motion Picture Society as being directly due to their initiative, is regarded as an additional imposition placed on the distribution of foreign films in this territory, including of course the existing excessive tariffs.

The present rate continues to be seven annas per foot on foreign exposed films.

The foreign film industry in this country has submitted their second petition to the Government seeking at least a small measure of relief from the existing excessive tariffs and it is hoped that the Government will not disappoint the petitioners this time.

Theaters—670 theaters now operating in India.

Sound—According to the trade the number of theaters equipped for sound in India is 600. From this total there were 150 theaters showing exsively American, British and Continental pictures, 120 theaters showing mixed foreign and Indian films and the balance of 330 theaters showing exclusively Indian films.

ITALY

Legislation—The importation of films into Italy is subject to ministerial licenses. In the administration of this system, as regards American films, it has been recently decided that for the year ending June 30, 1937, 250 American films may be imported. However, the amount of money which can be exported for American films pertaining to the said year's business is limited to 20 million lire. Amounts which will accrue to American companies in excess of 20 million lire must remain in Italy.

Theaters are compelled by law to show one Italian picture for every three foreign films.

All films must be dubbed in the Italian language, and such dubbing must be done in Italy. All films dubbed have to pay a tax of lire 30,000 for each film dubbed. Considerable opposition was attempted when the law was under way, but distributors were and are compelled to comply with this regulation and to pay the tax. It is claimed that this measure was enacted to safeguard the interests of dubbing studios and indirectly to provide work for deserving actors whom the moving pictures have thrown out of employment.

Today there are nine dubbing studios in Italy and they are reported to be doing very high grade work.

Italian products are made with Italian capital, but where two or more versions are made, the foreign version is made in cooperation with foreign producers.

The past year has seen no further development than took place in earlier ones in the application of the quota law, passed in October, 1927, requiring that 1/10 of the exhibition time be reserved for domestically produced film. The reason for this non-application still lies in the fact that domestic production has not yet reached a volume sufficient to require the enforcement of this legislation.

An annual State allowance of two million lire for meritorious films is awarded each year. In the year 1935-1936, 21 films received prizes out of 35 produced.

The ban on other than the Italian language in talking films is rigidly enforced, but singing sequences are permitted and the restriction does not apply to newsreels. War and Russian subjects are still liable to severe scrutiny, and, in general, are not accepted.

The following are the provisions of the Decree putting in effect newly created taxes upon "dubbed" films which became effective by Decree No. 1301, July 20, 1934. By this Decree the dubbing tax is payable in three installments: 10,000 lire before the granting of the permit to dub the film, and 10,000 lire and a further 10,- lire within 3 and 6 months of issuance of permit.

1. It imposes the obligation that all foreign films must be "dubbed" in Italy.
2. It imposes a tax of 30.000 lire on each "dubbed" film.
3. It grants producers of each film in Italy the right to "dub" three foreign films free of said tax.
4. It obliges every cinema owner to show one Italian film for every three foreign films shown.

Censorship—Censorship continues to be rigorous, though not unreasonable. The chief objection is that even after a film has passed the censors and been screened, it can be objected to by any private citizen or organization, on complaint to the police, who have the power to review the film, and if deemed necessary or advisable, to order it off the screen.

Competition—About 65 per cent of the films shown continue to be American, with the balance domestic, German, French, English and Austrian, all dubbed the same volume. All foreign films are now projected in "dubbed" versions in Italy.

Copyright Relations—Protected by the Statute and Regulations of November 17, 1925.

Production—There are four producing studios in Italy, the oldest being of course Cines, the others being as follows:

Caesar, Rome
Tirrenia, Leghorn
Safar, Rome.

While Cines uses American equipment, Caesar and Tirrenia use Klangfilm recorders. Safar uses Tobis equipment.

The combined production of these studios is some thirty historical, patriotic and farcical pictures.

Taxes—Taxes on cinema tickets and on the operations of distributors remain high, but not higher in proportion than those on other types of entertainment or business in general.

Theaters—4,800. Total seating capacity 1,600,000. Theater prices range from Lire 0.50 in the small towns to Lire 12.00 in the first run houses in the principal cities. This figure is occasionally increased to Lire 15.00 where it is considered that the picture warrants it.

Yearly box office receipts are computed at more than 400 million lire. Of this total about 100 million lire is turned over to the producers, while 70 million lire is collected by the Government for taxes.

Sound—2,800 theaters now have some sort of sound equipment of which 11 per cent have American equipment, the balance being Italian with a few German and English machines.

JAMAICA

Legislation—There are no laws affecting the importation of motion picture films.

Censorship—Films are censored in Kingston for showing in the whole Island under Jamaica Law 14 of 1913, Jamaica Law 13 of 1925 and Jamaica Law 21 of 1926. Censorship is moderate and about 3 per cent of the pictures submitted are refused each year. Pictures showing drunkenness or unconventional frivolity on the part of white people will not pass the censor. This is because of the large negro population. Pictures showing robberies and hold-ups are banned, since it is believed that they might have a bad impression on some of the lower classes, and might act as an incentive to crime.

Competition—75 to 85 per cent of films shown come from United States; remaining 15 to 25 per cent from England.

Copyright Relations—Same as United Kingdom.

Production—There is no production of motion pictures in Jamaica.

Taxes—General property taxes and income taxes are imposed on theaters. There are no taxes on theater admissions.

Theaters—15 theaters in Jamaica having 12,500 seats. Admission prices range from 6 pence ($0.12½) to 1 shilling 6 pence ($0.36¾).

Sound—15 theaters wired for sound.

JAPAN

Legislation—Two important developments have taken place in the Japanese motion picture market in recent months. Both developments are significant from the standpoint of American participation in this market. The first is the formation of the American Motion Picture Association of Japan while the second important development is linked up with the financial collapse of the Japan Motion Picture Co., Ltd., known locally as "Nikkatsu," oldest motion picture producing company in Japan. The "Nikkatsu" interests, which include working arrangements for exhibiting in a considerable number of theaters, were taken over by Shochiku Production.

In general, the position of American films in the Japanese market was better during the first 10 months of 1936 than was the case in 1935, due partly to the difficulties of the "Nikkatsu" concern, but mainly to a falling off in popularity of European films. The bulk of the European films were of German origin and it is said that Nazi propaganda has been inserted into these pictures to such an extent that they are no longer to the taste of the Japanese, including official and private entities.

There are at present in Japan proper no quota or contingent laws, decrees, etc., inimical to the interests of American films promulgated recently. Such legislation may be forthcoming as a result of the drive for compulsory showing of educational films.

The question of establishing a censorship in Karafuto (Japanese Saghalien) is being discussed by the authorities, according to several American film distributors. Distributors and exhibitors are against such a plan on the basis that the censorship in Japan Proper should be sufficient for this colony with its very limited population.

In Chosen (Korea), regulations are in force whereby meterage of foreign films must not exceed two-thirds of the total meterage of the films screened in one month in one theater and the balance of one-third of meterage must be supplied by Korean or Japanese pictures. In 1937, this ratio will be increased to one-half. No information is available regarding the production of motion pictures in Korea.

The threat of legislation being enacted in the near future providing for compulsory showing of educational pictures and for the free showing of such pictures, tend to reduce attendance at houses showing foreign films. Another threat is the development of the Toho-Nikkatsu producing and exhibition combine that will further limit the outlets of American pictures in this market.

Censorship—No foreign or domestic films were banned by the censor during the first half of 1935. During that period a total of 391 feature films were passes by the censor compared with 341 during the 1935 first half. The following table summarizes the feature films censored according to origin:

	First Half of 1935	First Half of 1936
Japanese	211	231
American	107	137
European	27	23
Total	341	391

Of the 23 European films censored during the first half of 1936, 11 were of German origin, 8 French, 2 Austrian and 2 Italian.

Martial law which was put into effect after the February 26th incident, was lifted in Tokyo during the summer and apparently, insofar as the censors at least are concerned, martial law is still in effect. Several American film distributors are reported to be keeping certain films, which should be smash hits under normal conditions but which now would probably be banned, in bonded warehouses pending less strict application of the censorship law. The fact that no foreign pictures were banned during the first half of 1936 is indicative of the care and effort used by local distributors in selecting pictures for this market. It is obvious, also, that their respective home offices are interested in sending out only such films that will surely pass the censors either entire or with the least amount of mutilation.

Competition—During the first six months of 1936, 35 per cent of the films shown were American.

Copyright Relations—Treaties of May 17, 1903, October 11, 1908.

Production—470 motion pictures were produced in Japan during 1935, of which 283 were with sound and dialogue, and 187 were silent. Shochiku Cinema Co., Ltd., produced during 1935 a total of 96 pictures, the Shinko Cinema Co., Ltd., a total of 85, and the Japan Motion Picture Co., Ltd., (Nikkatsu) 62 pictures. Other minor companies accounted for the remaining 227 pictures.

Regarding the inability of domestic producers to make quality films, nothing much has transpired during 1936 that might cause an impartial observer to change or modify this statement although the entrance of the Toho-Nikkatsu combine into the field may stimulate superior output. The shorter hours for programs may also help producers to devote greater attention to quality than has heretofore been the case.

The popularity of foreign films, particularly American, with the theater going public in the urban centers, it may be noted that the Japanese intelligentsia invariably prefer foreign films. They claim that the Japanese pictures are made for the uneducated masses, are juvenile in plot, are poorly directed and, save for rare exceptions, generally cannot appeal to the middle and upper classes of society. It seems no exaggeration to say that the future of American films in this market hinges largely upon the fact that the educated classes want them and will object strenuously to legislation curtailing their screening in Japan. Judging by reports, American films are maintaining their popularity with the public, but as indicated they are suffering more from threat of increased and improved domestic production, a more complete tie-up of outlets by domestic producers and greater Government interest in the industry.

Taxes—Taxes on theaters and theater admissions in Japan are extremely moderate. City and prefectural exhibition taxes, paid by the theater owners as part of operating expense, approximate 2 per cent of gross receipts. The taxes, and methods of assessing the taxes, vary from city to city. In Tokyo, for instance, the prefectural tax is the most important and amounts to Y8.00 per Y1,000 received. To this total a sum amountin to 144 per cent (of the Y8.00) is added, making a total of Y19.52 per Y1,000.

In other areas, the method is extremely complicated. In Osaka, for example, the method of calculating the various taxes, which in the aggregate are moderate, calls for advanced calculus and all the ingenuity of the Japanese abacus (calculating machine) for its solution. Herewith a rough translation of the Osaka method:

When the motion picture theater has a seating capacity for 1,000 people, admission fees being Y0.50 as the lowest, Y1.00 as the medium rate and Y1.50 as the highest, tax is payable as follows

(a) National tax is 20 times the figure calculated by adding the lowest admission fee to the highest admission fee and dividing by two.

(b) City tax is about the same.

(c) In case seating capacity exceeds 1,000 the tax is increased at the following ratio:

(1) Capacity being 1,100: 22 times the figure mentioned in (a).

(2) Capacity being 1,500: 30 times the figure mentioned in (a).

(d) The above tax is payable in case the performance is played only once a day. If the performance is repeated more than twice a day, half of the above figure is taxed upon each of the second and following performances.

Theaters—According to the Department of Home Affairs, there were a total of 1,586 theaters operating in Japan at the beginning of 1936. Approximately 30 new theaters were opened during 1936.

Sound—1237 theaters in Japan are equipped for sound motion pictures. This is 76 per cent of the total theaters in the country.

LATVIA

Legislation—The Latvian Government's project to establish a film import monopoly has not been abandoned, but no concrete plans have appeared as yet. The production of sound films in the Lettish language has been increasing, and the complete product is now made in Latvia. The Latvian authorities appear determined to develop such production.

Censorship—By special instruction issued by the Latvian Film Censoring Board all texts, advertisements and other printed matter must be in the Lettish language only instead of Lettish, German and Russian, as formerly. No foreign language except in the form of sound is permitted. This places American films in a disadvantage since the local population does not generally understand English, and certain sections of the population do not understand Lettish and used to depend on the printed accompanying text, each racial subdivision of the population reading its own language.

Competition—The percentage of American films imported into Latvia in 1935 amounted to 43.3 per cent of total imports of films.

Copyright relations—The Baltic States still use the former Russian copyright law, which has never been revised and has therefore become obsolete. Does not offer proper protection to producers. The Latvian Government has decided to adhere to the Berne Convention of 1886, revised in Rome in 1928. This will not become effective in Latvia until May 15, 1937.

Taxes—Turnover tax payable, for tickets up to Lats 1.20, 25 per cent; tickets sold for 1.21 to 2.00 Lats, 30 per cent. When programs consist exclusively of educational films, the tax levied is 15 per cent of the admission price. The tax levied on tickets in provincial theaters averages 20 per cent of the cost of tickets, which for educational films, is reduced to 15 per cent. Importers of films pay a special tax of 0.15 Lats per meter for the benefit of the Culture Fund.

Theaters—There are 98 theaters in Latvia, of which 37 are in Riga.

Sound—There are no moving picture houses showing exclusively silent films. All moving picture theaters in Latvia are equipped for sound.

LITHUANIA

Legislation—There are no quota or contingent laws on motion picture films in Lithuania.

Regulations governing the importation of cinema films into Lithuania were promulgated on November 19, 1932, retroactive to September 1, 1932, by the Minister of Finance, in agreement with the Minister of the Interior, on the basis of Paragraph 103 (1) of the Customs Statutes, as amended on September 1, 1932, and contain the following important provisions:

1. Cinema films may be imported into Lithuania only through the Kaunas Customhouse.

2. Cinema films being imported through other customhouses shall be forwarded to the Kaunas customhouse for inspection.

3. After the Kaunas customhouse has inspected the film and received the assessed customs duty as a deposit from the owner, or the forwarding agent, it shall submit it to the Film Censor for inspection. Cinema films shall be submitted to the Censor sealed.

4. Films passed by the Censor shall be returned to the owner or to his authorized representative together with a permit from the Censor, who shall so inform the Kaunas customhouse.

5. Cinema films prohibited demonstration by the Censor shall be returned to the Kaunas customhouse sealed; shall be re-exported and the deposit made by the film owner shall be returned to him.

6. Cinema films received from abroad by parcel post shall be forwarded to the Kaunas customhouse for inspection. The expense of sending cinema films to the Film Censor shall be covered by the owner or his authorized representative.

Import Licenses—By an extension of the Lithuanian import license system effective February 15, 1936, cinema films were included in the list of products for the import which a license is required.

Regulation of Domestic News Reels—According to an amendment of the censorship law, effective April 15, 1935, permits must be procured for the exportation of films produced in Lithuania.

The same amendment also provides that for the production of news reels in Lithuania a permit has to be obtained from the Ministry of Interior.

According to a decree of the Minister of Interior, promulgated on October 1, 1935, domestic news reels may be demonstrated in cinema theaters in Kaunas and its suburbs, not longer than 9 weeks from date of the license by the censor's office. In the towns in Siauliai, Penevezys, Mariampole and Ukmerge the demonstration may last 14 weeks, in other district towns not longer than 24 weeks, and in other places not longer than 8 months.

Censorship—The Lithuanian Cinema Censorship Law also became effective on September 1, 1932, the most important provisions of which are as follows:

1. All films imported into Lithuania must be censored by the Film Censor of the Lithuanian Ministry of the Interior.

2. No films will be permitted to be demonstrated which endanger the safety of the State or public safety, public order, morality or health.

3. A nominal fee shall be charged for censoring films.

For infraction of the above laws offenders may be sentenced to imprisonment or fined up to Lits 5,000 with confiscation of the film, in accordance with an amendment of the Penal Code, effective September 1, 1932.

On December 22, 1934, the Minister of the Interior issued instructions for the censorship of films on the basis of Article 10 of the Censorship Law of September 1, 1932, the most important provisions of which are given below:

1. The importation and demonstration of every film in Lithuania must be licensed by the Film Censor.

2. In order to obtain a license, a petition must be submitted to the Film Censor.

3. All sub-titles and texts written in a foreign language must be removed from the film before it is censored, and, where necessary, replaced by Lithuanian sub-titles and texts.

4. Sub-titles on films or slides must correspond with the context.

5. Films imported from abroad must be censored not later than 15 days after they are released by the customs authorities, or be liable to confiscation by the Censor, and to re-exportation at the owner's expense.

6. Films, or parts of films, prohibited demonstration by the Censor are to be surrendered by the owner for reshipment abroad, not later than two days after censoring.

The non-compliance with this provision may result in the destruction of he film.

7. For the re-importation of films already demonstrated in Lithuania, a petition shall be filed in the usual manner and shall contain the date and number of the former license.

No new laws or regulations regarding the censoring of films were promulgated during the first seven months of 1936.

No statistics as to the number of films censored and demonstrated during the years 1934 and 1935 have been compiled by the Censor. The number of films prohibited demonstration during 1935 was 12, of which 4 films were of American production, 3 of Soviet production, 3 of German origin and 2 of French origin. More detailed statistics were not compiled during this year.

The compilation of detailed statistics commenced on January, 1936. During the first seven months of 1936, a total of 434 films, having a length of 504,693 meters, were censored. Of this number 204 films, having a length of 237,383 meters, were of American production; 117 films, with a total length of 170,443 meters, of German production; 31 films, with a total of 95,191 meters, of Austrian production; 25 films, with a total of 4,364 meters of Lithuanian production; 19 films, with a total of 29,132 meters, of Soviet production; 19 films, with a total of 28,048 meters, of British production; and 12 films, with a total of 23,585 meters, of French production. The rest were of Latvian, Polish, Palestine and Swedish production. Of the total number of films censored, 174 films were in the English language, 148 in the German language, 17 in the Russian and 12 in the French languages. The language of the remainder of the films is unknown. A total of 14 films were prohibited demonstration during the first seven months of this year, of which 7 were of German production, 4 of American production, 2 of Soviet production, and one of British production. Statistics for later months are not yet available.

Competition—According to a reliable individual in Lithuania, as well as officials of the Film Censoring Section of the Ministry of Interior, approximately 50 per cent of films exhibited in Lithuania in 1933 were of American origin, followed by German (about 35 per cent), French, Soviet Russian, Czechoslovak and Polish films. About 50 per cent of American films were dubbed in the German language. The percentage of films demonstrated in Lithuania in 1934 is as follows: German and Austrian films 50 per cent, American films 40 per cent, one-half of which were dubbed in the German language, and the rest Soviet Russian and French films.

According to the Film Censor of the Ministry of the Interior, approximately 60 per cent of films exhibited in Lithuania during the year 1935 were of American origin, followed by German (about 30 per cent), Soviet, French, and others. During the first eight months of 1936, approximately 60 per cent of films prohibited were of American origin, 30 per cent of German origin and the rest Soviet, Austrian and French origin.

Copyright Relations—There are no copyright relations with Lithuania.

Production—A monopoly for the production of news reels in Lithuania for a period of 5 years was granted in April, 1935, to Mr. Jurgis Lanartas, who later established the firm "Musu Lietuva" ("Our Lithuania"). This firm is producing principally news reels depicting Lithuanian life but of a very poor quality.

During the first 10 months of 1936 the firm "Musa Lietuva" produced 78 news reels. The average length of a news reel is 120 meters. "Musu Lietuva" has purchased the necessary equipment for the taking of sound-on-film news reels. It is believed that the demonstration of sound-on-film news reels of local production will begin in the near future.

Taxes—The current Amusement Tax Law became effective August 1, 1932, and taxes admission to motion picture houses as follows: Tickets up to Lit 1.00, 20 per cent; from Lits 1.00 to Lits 2.00, 30 per cent; over Lits 2.00, 40 per cent.

Theaters—64. The yearly box office receipts of cinema theaters are considered as strictly confidential by the owners of the theaters, as well as by the tax authorities.

According to unofficial information, the average gross receipts of the four principal theaters in Kaunas, the capital of Lithuania, during 1935, amounted to approximately Lits 500,000, compared to Lits 400,000 in 1934. Net receipts average about 25 per cent less than gross receipts.

Owners of the larger theaters in Kaunas receive films either on a rental or percentage basis or both. They guarantee a certain rent for the film or a certain per cent from the net profit, in cases involving a high class film, which they may derive from its demonstration. The net profit usually varies between 3 and 50 per cent of the net receipts.

In conformity with the Cinema Law, effective September 1, 1932, films of Lithuanian life are required to be shown daily. The usual demonstration order in local cinema theaters is as follows: advertising of local commercial and industrial institutions, local news reels of a length of from 120 to 150 meters, foreign (usually American) weekly news reels of from 300 to 350 meters, a grotesque comedy or scenic film of 150 to 300 meters and then the feature.

Sound—44 theaters are wired for sound.

MEXICO

Legislation—Preferential taxes accorded Spanish dialogue films were reduced on foreign films not falling in this category through compromise in February, 1936, and their influence on American competition is now described as negligible. Also, imports of Spanish dialogue films during 1936 were of little importance, and are expected to continue so during 1937, with a fairly open field, therefore, being left for American enterprise.

Censorship—Foreign pictures are cleared through the Customs at the border and duties are paid. Immediately upon their arrival in Mexico City, an application for their exhibition is placed with the Central Department. Arrangements are made by the Central Department for the trial exhibition of the picture either in its own studio or in the projection room of the exhibitor. Censors are appointed by the Central Department in accordance with the demand and the censor is usually a woman. The censors are particularly interested in securing the use of correct Spanish and eliminating scenes which are termed too hot or which may be derogatory to Mexico. The censors are very reasonable and the motion picture producers are not experiencing any difficulty from that source. A fee of 5.75 pesos per reel is charged, and if the reel is over 300 meters, the censorship fee is 10 pesos.

Censorship in Mexico is not considered burdensome. An additional censorship has been added and is now being effected in the Interior Department of the Government. The object of this is to obtain assurance that films shown in Mexico are not inimical to national pride, culture, institutions, customs, history, Government policy, etc. No fee for this additional censorship is charged.

Organized labor is reported to have proposed to present the exhibition of Nazi or Fascist films in Mexico. Such films containing propaganda may be expected to be blocked by the additional censorship in the Department of the Interior as opposed to national policy. Imports of films from Germany and Italy, therefore, may be adversely affected by the additional censorship and the policy of organized labor.

Competition—From 85 to 90 per cent of films exhibited in Mexico are of American manufacture. Imports during 1936 of films by countries are estimated in the trade as follows:

Country	Number of Films
France	6
United States	420
England	25 (*)
Germany	20
Spain	15
Others	20
Total	506

(*) Of these, about 12 are credited to an American company.

Copyright Relations—By Presidential Proclamation of February 27, 1886, and April 9, 1910. An additional copyright regulation was published in the Diario Oficial of April 16, 1924, and is also recorded on page 350, Chapter VII of the Reformed Civil Code of the Federal District.

Production—Although about 50 national films were produced in 1935, many of them were by no means box office, with the result that 1936 production has been reduced and the total for the latter year is placed at about 28 films. Of these eight were reported to have been "flops." Studios of Cinematografica Latino Americana were completed in 1936, but only one film has been produced, according to report. It is not considered that this company will offer much competition for some time. Cia. Nacional Productora de Peliculas is stated not to have been able to complete any films during 1936 because of prolonged strike. "Mexico Films" has three sound stages and is reputed to be the second best equipped studio in Mexico. Industria Cinematografica continues to operate a sound stage. Total investment in these aforementioned studios is said to not exceed 900,000 pesos. Sound film apparatus used in Mexican production is owned and operated by other entities with the exception of Cinematografica Latino Americana which is reported to have its own sound recording equipment. The greater part of national films is produced by companies which rent a studio and sound recording apparatus only for the duration of production on a film, although only seven companies regularly produce films, there are many more which are organized for only one film.

Taxes—Taxes are not considered high in the majority opinion of the industry. Generally, it is considered that taxes are fair and not disproportionate to those charged in other countries. Protests have been made by some national producers, but these are laid to production failures which leave producers at times unable to meet taxes.

Sr. Don Cosme Hinojosa, Chief of the Central Department (Federal District), on January 12 last was reported by the press to have denied petitions made by national producers in the Federal District that certain taxation exemptions be accorded them. The reply directed to the Union of Mexican Film Producers (Union de Productores de Peliculas Mexicanas) stated that if national producers were unable to meet taxes such was due to the "incipiency" of the industry, to lack of sufficient capital and proper organization. Technical equipment was considered not enough and the prime need of adequate talent and story material and artistic direction was pointed out. "Practical and positive protection" of national industry was seen as a problem belonging to the industry and not one of the Government. Therefore, no immediate further protection or additional preferential tax treatment is expected to be accorded national industry.

Theaters—A total of 835 houses are reported to be functioning in Mexico. Of these 402 are wired for sound. A considerable part of the remainder are said not to be operated consecutively. Seating capacity of those regularly operating is placed at 700,000.

In Mexico City about five new houses opened during 1936 and are operating. Among these is the "Alameda," a very large and modern house.

Sound—402 wired for sound.

NETHERLANDS

Legislation—Agitation against motion picture film exhibition, distinguished from censorship, is practically nonexistent in the Netherlands.

The most important development in September, 1936, affecting the motion picture trade was the action taken by the Netherland Government to depreciate (in terms of dollars) the value of the guilder. Prior to September 26, 1936, the exchange value of the dollar in the Netherlands had been stable for some time at about Fl. 1.48. Following the change in the financial policy of the Netherland Government on that date exchange rates have fluctuated considerably and there is no assurance that the current rate will be maintained. In October, 1936, the local exchange value of the dollar is slightly about Fl. 1.85. The exchange value of the dollar has appreciated approximately 37 guilder cents or about 25 per cent during the month of October.

There can be no immediate increase in the guilder rentals or royalties on American films exhibited in the Netherlands so that American producers must accept a loss in dollar returns from the local exhibitions of their films; they accepted an increase in dollar returns when the depreciation of the dollar in 1933 was not accompanied by any decrease in guilder charges locally. The dollar value of some of the fixed charges of distribution in the Netherlands, such as import duties and censorship fees, which are at specific footage rates, will be reduced.

Censorship—Censorship is quite strict. Under the present law of May 14, 1926, (S. 118), power is vested in a Central Commission of sixty members at the Hague from which reviewing boards are appointed. Films are placed in one of three classes: (1) "long" (feature) films; (2) "cultural" and "scientific" films, usually short but feature films are occasionally so classified; (3) "short" films, including newsreels. Each film is given one of four ratings: (a) suitable for all ages; (b) not to be shown to children under fourteen years of age; (c) not to be shown to persons under eighteen years of age; (d) not to be exhibited. Films prescribed may be passed on subsequent review, usually after alterations, and occasionally a higher rating is obtained by alterations and subsequent review. The censorship fees are Fl. 0.035 per meter for feature films and Fl. 0.001 per meter for cultural and scientific films.

A Catholic censorship must review and pass all films rated "C" by the National Board before they may be exhibited in 28 municipalities of the provinces Limburg and North Brabant. There is no fee for this censorship.

Any Mayor may forbid the showing of any film in his community; that action is rare. The City of Nijmegen requires approval by a local censorship board; no censorship fee is charged.

During the first tee months of 1936 the Natioaal Board passed, "A," "B," or "C," 389 long feature films compared with 344 similar films passed in the corresponding period of the previous year. During the 1936 period 27 feature films were prescribed, 10 of that number passed subsequent reviews. In the 1935 period 16 feature films had been prescribed without passing subsequent reviews.

Films are barred which are believed apt to incite disorder or immorality or which have objectionable political tendencies. American gangster pictures are most often rejected by the censors; immorality (nudity in the "Catholic Provinces"), unacceptable treatment of religious subjects and certain political propaganda are other usual causes for rejection.

Competition—In recent years the dominant position of American feature films has improved while German films have declined in popularity; there is no serious competition from Netherland producers. The following table gives the nationality of the long feature, or cultural, films passed by the National Board of Censors in the Netherlands.

Copyright Relations—Netherlands is a member of the "Berne Convention." Present copyright laws are dated September 23, 1912. Copyright continues, with some exceptions, 50 years after author's death.

Production—Only two studios, Barnstijn at Wassenaar and Cinetone at Amsterdam, are used for regular production. Studio facilities elsewhere are used occasionally for special work. There are no producers working on regular production schedules; nine producing companies are listed but some of them have not produced a picture during the current year. Nine Netherland long feature films were released during the first ten months of 1936.

Taxes—Import duties are fixed at Fl. 0.04 per meter to which must be added a compensatory duty of 1% and a sales tax of 4%.

Amusement taxes vary with municipalities but are generally reasonable.

Theaters—About 305 theaters are listed; a few are not operated regularly.

It is customary for American films to be released in the Netherlands for "first runs" on a percentage basis. The exhibitors guarantee a fixed minimum and pay the distributors a percentage, usually 25 per cent, of the net profit. American films are usually released for "second runs" on a straight guilder rental. Eventual improvement in business, which is expected to follow the new financial policy of the government, may increase percentage returns from "first runs" more than enough to compensate the American producers for the guilder depreciation. The exhibitors are confident that they will be able, although not immediately, to increase the fairly staandard rental charges for "second run" showings.

For the past several years exhibitors have been able to maintain satisfactory attendance figures only by reducing entrance prices. The reductions have been fairly orderly but have not been governed by any definite agreement among the exhibitors so that it has been apparent for some time that regulation was necessary. The recent depreciation of the guilder will facilitate the efforts of those exhibitors who have been working to arrange such regulation. It is expected that the exhibitors will, shortly, agree on fixed minimum prices. The trade hopes that business developments will, somewhat later, justify increases graduated from those increased minimums.

Sound—On October 31, 1936, there were 297 theaters wired for sound in the Netherlands; 90 installations for sound on film and 207 installations for film and disc. There are no regular showings of silent pictures.

NETHERLAND INDIA

Legislation—None. American pictures are popular with the public and the official attitude towards them is favorable.

Censorship—Remains strict as to all subjects involving racial or religious differences, strikes or labor unrest, mob disorders, violence and cruelty. While murder in itself as a necessary part of the plot is not objected to, "undue" violence even in a detective mystery story is frowned on. Censorship from the point of view of sex is as strict as ever, but American films are now encountering little difficulty on that score. The number of American films banned is steadily decreasing, the percentage of American film rejected for showing having been 12 per cent in 1933, 10 per cent in 1934, 5 per cent in 1935 and 4.8 per cent in the first half of 1936. In 1936, 13 American feature pictures were banned up to October 31, chiefly because of alleged excessive violence or cruelty.

Competition—American films made up 68 per cent of all films reviewed by the Censorship Commission in the first half of 1936, as against 64 per cent of those reviewed during 1935, indicating the increasingly dominant position of the American product. German and Dutch films lost ground as against previous years, making up respectively 8.4 per cent and 4 per cent of the total during the first half of 1936. British films showed a slight gain, accounting for 4.8 per cent, while the remaining 15 per cent of the total was divided among the products of 10 different countries, none of which obtained more than 2 or 3 per cent of the market. These Censorship Commission figures will not necessarily agree with import figures during the same period.

The outlook for American films appear to be good, and the decreasing popularity of German films is diminishing their local importance as the chief competitors of the American product.

Copyright Relations—Laws of the Netherlands apply.

Production—Despite the formation during 1936 of a new company to produce films, chiefly travelogues and short subjects, local production remains negligible and while it may increase slightly, it is highly unlikely that locally produced pictures will obtain more than 5 per cent of the local market during 1937.

During the first half of 1936, 16,170 meters of locally produced film were reported as having been reviewed by the Censorship Commission, of which 7,112 meters were silent film. This local film made up about 2 per cent of the total amount reviewed during the period.

Taxes—Taxes remain high and include an import duty of 15 guilder cents per meter of film. An amusement tax on admissions is levied by cities and towns and varies, but averages about 22½ per cent of the admission price.

Theaters—143 theaters are estimated to be regularly open for daily performances during 1936. 198 are estimated total including about 55 opened only for occasional shows.

An accurate estimate of the total number of theaters in the country is difficult to obtain, as many "theaters" in the rural districts are little more than barns, in which shows are occasionally given, sound equipment being sometimes moved from one building to another. Some estimates place the number of buildings available and suitable for motion picture exhibition as high as 250.

Sound—172 theaters are wired for sound. At least 10 per cent of these have been closed for several years and their sound equipment is probably in poor condition at present.

NETHERLAND WEST INDIES

Legislation—There is no agitation against American pictures in the Netherland West Indies. It is unfortunate, however, that under the so-called "block" booking system employed by American distributors, many wholly unsuitable films, either depicting unsavory phases of American life, because of subjects which deal with negro life to the disparagement of the white race, or vice versa, or because of dealing with a subject of no possible interest to local people, must be exhibited. It is realized that the small size of the market of the Netherland West Indies renders difficult any attempt to permit advance showing of films but for that very reason it would seem possible for distributors to choose with more care the kind of films they send to local moving picture houses.

Censorship—It is now possible for the so-called Board of Censors to require the "cutting out" of any part or parts of a film, or to refuse permission for the film to be shown, if objectionable, with especial attention being paid to pictures depicting class strife, political activities and morals. Whether a picture is suitable for both minors and adults or only for the latter, continues to be of especial interest to the censors.

Competition—American films account for fully 95 per cent of all films shown in the Netherland West Indies during the current year. Newsreels from the Netherlands and British films offer the principal competition.

Copyright Laws—Copyright laws of the Netherlands apply to the Netherland West Indies. If a film is copyrighted in the Netherlands, it is protected in the Netherland West Indies by virtue of such copyright.

Production—There is no production of films in the Netherland West Indies.

Taxes—No taxes are imposed upon theaters or theater admissions.

Theaters—There are six theaters showing moving pictures in the Netherland West Indies, an increase of one from the last report. This theater (Theater Brion) located in Curacao is not, however, employed continuously as a moving picture house, although it is wired for sound machines. Prices of admission are (current rate of exchange—1.85 florins to the dollar) $0.13 to $0.65.

Sound—There are six theaters wired for sound in the Netherland West Indies, four in Curacao and two in Aruba.

NEW ZEALAND

Legislation—No new film legislation was passed during 1936. However, under the powers conferred by the Board of Trade Act, the New Zealand Film Licensing Board has decreed that all future applications for exhibitors' licenses will be carefully considered and that no license will be renewed if it is decided that either (a) undue hardship would result to the community, or (b) if unreasonable economic waste would result. It is likely that this will prevent a rise in the present total of motion picture theaters operating in the Dominion, inasmuch as a feeling persists among motion picture distributors and in the community generally that New Zealand is, if anything, already over-supplied with theater facilities.

Censorship—During the year ended March 31, 1936, a total of 2,060 films of all classes, of a total length of 5,142,240 feet were examined by the censors. Of this number eleven were rejected, ninety-one were passed after cutting, and the number of films recommended as more suitable for adult audiences than for children was one hundred and fifty-five. These figures compare with those of the year previous, which were as follows: twenty-eight rejected; one hundred and forty cut, and two hundred and twenty-seven recommended for adults. Opinion among exhibitors is that the drop in censorship activities indicates a general improvement in the type of film shown over the previous year. Of the eleven films rejected, eight were American.

Competition—During the year ended March 31, 1936, British quota films totaled 107, with a length of 767,620 feet, and non-quota films 374, of 384,520 feet. Foreign quota films totaled 376, with a length of 2,750,550 feet, and no-quota films 1,203, with a length of 1,239,550 feet. The grand total consisted of 483 quota films with a length of 3,518,170 feet, and 1,577 non-quota films, of a total length of 1,624,070 feet. The total of non-quota films decreased by 113 from those exhibited in the previous year, while there were two less quota films, shown. The countries of origin of the quota films were as follows: United States, 373 (an increase of 19 over the previous year); Great Britain, 104 (a decrease of 9 over the previous year); Australia, 1; New Zealand, 2; Germany, 1; Spain, 1; Italy, 1.

Copyright Relations—Copyright Act of 1909, by proclamation February 9, 1917, extended May 25, 1922.

(A complete summary of the copyrighted laws of New Zealand is on file in the Commercial Laws Division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce, Washington, D. C.)

A fee of 1d. per New Zealand £1 of theater box revenues is paid by New Zealand exhibitors to the local representatives of the Australian Authors' Rights Protective Association. Those exhibitors who are members of the New Zealand Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association are given a 20 per cent rebate on these fees.

Production—A total of 86,026 feet of film, valued at New Zealand £1,927, was produced in New Zealand and exported therefrom in the calendar year 1935. Three films have been produced and exhibited in New Zealand during the past twelve months. These were: "Phar Lap's Son," "The Friendly Road," and "Romantic New Zealand." The latter film was produced by the New Zealand Tourist and Publicity Department at a studio which the Government has recently taken over at Miramar, Wellington. The Government intends to film a series of educational and scenic films of New Zealand during the comin.g year. One object of this scheme is to export the film to foreign countries for the purpose of attracting tourists to the Dominion.

Taxes—Under the Cinematograph Films Act, 1928, the taxable income derived by any person from the business of renting films shall be deemed to be 12½ per cent of the gross receipts derived from such business. This became operative as from April 1, 1928. The rate payable is on a sliding scale, the maximum now being 4s. 6d in the £1 plus 30 per cent. In September, 1930, the Film Hire Tax was passed, the gross receipts from the renting of foreign films after allowing a deduction of all expenses paid in New Zealand and an amount equal to 12½ per cent of the gross receipts derived from the renting of sound films, being taxed 25 per cent. The rate of British films is 10 per cent. The duty of 1d per foot, payable on all foreign importations of films, was cancelled as from July 1, 1930. The advantages of this system of taxation were:

(a) That it was directly in proportion to the net receipts from and therefore the value of film.
(b) That it did not restrict the importation of film in any way.
(c) That it was only payable after the monies were received by the renter, and thereby reduced the actual capital required for the operation of the business.
(d) That it came into immediate operation and the Government derived revenue from the films already imported which would otherwise have escaped taxation. It is necessary to secure a renter's license to operate in New Zealand.

The only change made by the recently enacted legislation in the method of taxation was that fixing 12½ per cent to the gross receipts of renters as an income for taxation purposes. Heretofore, the taxable income was to be not less than 12½ per cent of the gross receipts, and in some cases, renters were charged at a higher rate than this percentage.

The total film hire tax for the year ended March 31, 1936, was New Zealand £60,657. Recent increases in film rentals indicate that the total collected for the next fiscal year may exceed New Zealand £70,000.

Theaters—A total of 410 exhibitors' licenses were issued during the license year ended September 30, 1934. In addition, licenses were issued to 35 circuit exhibitors, and to 14 film exchanges.

A point of difference between the local distributing and exhibiting interests is the advisability of increasing the number of theaters licensed to exhibit film in New Zealand. Exhibitors argue that more theaters should be licensed, that in the smaller towns the public is not able to witness a good many of even the higher quality films due to lack of exhibiting facilities. The distributors contend otherwise, and argue that even now some of the smaller theaters are unable to earn enough money due to meager attendance.

The New Zealand Licensing Board is understood to have recently consented that two technical advisors, one from the distributors and one from the exhibitors, shall assist it in passing on future applications for theater licenses.

NICARAGUA

Legislation—There are no quota or contingent laws, inimical to the interests of American films.

Censorship—Not strict. Few films are cut and then principally for moral reasons.

Competition—95 per cent American, remainder from Mexico, Germany, and Great Britain.

Copyright Relations—Inter-American Copyright, Convention, Mexico City and Buenos Aires, January 27, 1902 and August 11, 1910, as modified by the Havana agreement of February 18, 1928.

Production—There is no film production in Nicaragua.

Taxes—High. Theaters pay local taxes and import duty.

Theaters—25 theaters in Nicaragua. Seating capacity approximately 20,000.

The average range of admission prices is from 10 to 50 centavos while the average program consists of one feature, one comedy, and one newsreel. Programs are changed daily. In the smaller theaters which do not open daily, the program is changed for each showing. The lower class appear to like "Wild West" pictures while the better educated classes prefer drama.

American stars are decidedly preferred. There is a very pronounced objection to American stars with native language "dubbed in." The performance does not appear real; it is too evident that the person acting and the person talking are not the same; and the spoken words are frequently either too slow or too fast, and consequently do not synchronize with the action. Spanish speaking films are preferred.

Sound—25 theaters wired for sound.

NORWAY

Legislation—The government renders no aid to Norwegian film producers. It has now become the policy to organize a new company when a film is to be made, thus obtaining the necessary capital. Because of the difficulty in raising the funds needed, and due to the small amount allowed for each picture (approximately Kr. 100,000 in comparison with Swedish films costing from Kr. 150,000 to Kr. 200,000), a Norwegian picture has little, if any, chance of becoming wholly satisfactory. The studio built at Jar, outside of Oslo, has not furnished the desired incentive, and although there is still a certain amount of agitation for governmental assistance among those interested in the film industry, the Norwegian public itself seems to have lost interest in the matter. This is evidently due to the lack of enthusiasm over new Norwegian releases, no doubt caused by the low standard of films produced in this country.

Censorship—The censorship plan has remained unchanged, and except for increased efforts to re-restrict the showing of gunplay and gangster films, the same methods are followed as heretofore.

Competition—American films are very popular in Norway. There is, and always will be, a certain amount of criticism with regard to American pictures, many of them being so entirely foreign to the Norwegian trend of thought. However, there is no doubt that American films are preferred, even though European pictures are perhaps more readily understood. During 1935 there were released in Oslo 269 films, of which 169 were American, 41 German, 18 Swedish, and 16 British. As will be noted, German pictures again ranked second in number and are the closest competitors, but the figures for American films and German pictures are so widely separated that the competition seems to be small indeed. That Swedish films have third place is naturally due to the similarity in the Swedish and Norwegian languages.

During the first half of 1936 there were released in Oslo 131 films, an increase of 17 as compared with the last half of 1935. American films numbered 85, or 65 per cent of the total, and German 13, or 10 per cent. As compared with the first half of 1935, there was an increase of 4 per cent in the number of American films shown, and a decrease of 7 per cent in German pictures.

The improved economic condition of Norway has been reflected in the attendance and box office receipts of Oslo, the capital. There has been a steady increase in both for each six-month period during 1935 and the first half of 1936. Inasmuch as all releases are as a rule made through this city, figures for Oslo are believed to show the trend for the entire country.

Copyright Relations—Copyright relations, with legal rights and restrictions, are specified in the royal decree of July 1, 1905, as amended by the decree of April 9, 1910 and June 14, 1911.

Production—So far this year no Norwegian pictures have been produced, but there is a possibility that the only picture now being made, MORDEREN UTEN ANSKIT (The Murderer Without a Face) will be finished and released during 1937. The A/S Merkur Film has been organized for the purpose of producing this film, and it is the intention of the company to produce another picture if that mentioned above proves to be a success.

Taxes—There has been no change in the taxes levied on foreign films, 10 per cent of the gross receipts being collected as in the past. Films of Norwegian production are taxed 5 per cent.

Theaters—There are at the present time 240 motion picture theaters in Norway. It is expected, however, that this number will gradually increase as the popularity of "neighborhood" theaters becomes more apparent. This is, of course, particularly true in the suburbs of Oslo, most of which do not boast of their own movie. During the past year a few districts near Oslo have built small motion picture theaters which are of course most popular with the younger gneration. As in the United States, these houses usually show second-run pictures, however.

The rental of first-run foreign films remains at 30 per cent of the gross receipts and films produced in this country at 40 per cent. Second-run foreign films are rented at 28 per cent of the gross receipts and Norwegian at 33 per cent, as heretofore.

Sound—240 theaters are wired for sound.

PALESTINE

Legislation—None in Palestine.

Censorship—Censorship is very strict. Central Censorship Board, appointed by the High Commissioner, consists of nine members, including the District Commissioner, Jerusalem District, as chairman; representatives of the Inspector General of Police and Prisons, of the Director of Education and of the Chamber of Commerce; the Assistant District Commissioner, Jerusalem District; an assistant secretary from the Chief Secretary's Office, and the Government Welfare Inspector.

No film may be exhibted without first obtaining the required governmental authorization. The fees, prescribed by regulation, are:

For news films or advertisements, LP. 0.100 each*.

For other films, L.P. 1.00 each.

A fee is prescribed of L.P. 0.250 payable to

The Government imposes a revenue tax on all theater and cinema tickets varying according to the price of the ticket, as follows:

Revenue duty on tickets of—

50 mils —	99 mils —	5 mils
100 mils —	200 mils —	10 mils
200 mils —	500 mils —	20 mils
500 mils —	1000 mils —	30 mils
1000 mils —	and up —	50 mils

The city of Tel Aviv is the only Municipality in Palestine imposing a municipal tax on theater or cinema tickets. This tax (which is, of course, in addition to the Government tax) also varies according to the price of the ticket, as follows:

Municipal tax on tickets from—

1 mil —	50 mils —	2 mils
50 mils —	85 mils	4 mils
85 mils —	125 mils —	8 mils
125 mils —	150 mils —	16 mils
150 mils —	200 mils —	24 mils
200 mils —	250 mils —	34 mils
250 mils —	450 mils —	50 mils
450 mils —	1000 mils —	100 mills

PANAMA

Legislation—Panama has no contingent laws, decrees and etc., inimical to American films. If American films could be imported and exhibited in all other markets as easily as they can in Panama, film producers would have very little to worry about.

Censorship—Film producers and distributors have very little to worry about regarding Panamanian Censorship Laws. In reality there is no federal censorship law. The Administrative Code, Article 1221 through 1237 regulates public performances but there is no mention about censoring motion picture films nor is there any federal censorship committee in existence. In practice, the Censorship Committee for the City of Panama more or less acts for the entire Republic. As a rule if the Panama City authorities pass a picture it is accepted in the rest of the country. Municipal Law No. 38 of 1928 provides for the creation of a censorship committee.

The Canal Zone does not have a Censorship Committee. Every picture permitted to be exhibited in the United States is shown in the Canal Zone. Both the Army and Canal Zone theaters have a clause in their contract whereby they may eliminate certain parts of any film if deemed advisable. Panama like all other Latin American countries, is extremely sensitive about any picture or newsreel that tends to discredit her national honor.

Competition—American films are popular and are in the greatest demand. An occasional German, Mexican and English film is exhibited, and the better type ones are fairly well received. Spanish pictures made in Spain and Argentine pictures have found favor with Panama audiences.

Copyright Relations—All copyrights are paid for in the United States before entering Panama.

Production—There are no motion picture producing companies in the Republic of Panama and up to the present no attempt has been made to organize a producing company.

Taxes—The only Federal Tax on motion pictures is assessed against tickets. Tickets that cost up to 20 cents pay a tax of ½ cent. Tickets that cost up to 40 cents pay a tax of 1 cent. Tickets that cost up to 60 cents pay a tax of 2 cents. All in excess of 60 cents pay a tax of 5 cents each.

Motion pictures produced in a foreign language, and where titles are not superimposed in Spanish, pay double the rate quoted above.

Motion picture theaters pay a municipal license tax which varies according to the city, classification of theater, gross income, etc. For an example, in Panama City the municipal tax is divided into five categories. First class houses pay a monthly license tax of $175; second class, $150; third class, $100; fourth class, $50; fifth class, $40; and sixth class, $30.

Theaters—Republic of Panama, 23.

Canal Zone (including Bureau of Playgrounds, Army, Navy, and Y.M.C.A.), 24.
(a) Operated by Bureau of Clubs and Playgrounds, 10.
(b) Army, 10.
(c) Navy, 2.
(d) .Y.M.C.A., 2.

The average program of theaters operating in the Canal Zone consists of one feature of 7 to 8 reels, one 1-reel news, one 2-reel or two 1-reel comedies or some substitute such as a travel or educational short. Programs for first run houses in the Republic of Panama consist of approximately 9 reels. There is usually one 7-reel feature and one 2-reel or two 1-reel shorts.

In the Republic of Panama programs are changed four times each week. The Army theaters in the Canal Zone change seven times each week or once every day. The Bureau of Clubs and Playgrounds change programs six times each week. Generally speaking the drawing capacity is quite limited which explains why programs are changed so often, more in particularly in the Canal Zone. In the first run houses in Colon and Panama City an exceptionally good picture will draw a full house for two and sometimes three days, but in the Canal Zone attendance is always less the second day regardless of the success of the picture.

Admission prices vary considerably. Army theaters charge only 15 cents, except for civilian Government employees, who pay 25 cents. Theaters operated by the Bureau of Clubs and Playgrounds charge 40 cents admission when featuring first run pictures, on all other occasions the entrance fee is 30 cents. First run houses in Panama City and Colon, for week day matinees from 1:00 to 3:00 P.M., charge 15 cents for children and 30 cents for adults; after 3:00 P.M. the price is 20 cents and 40 cents. On Sundays and holidays from 1:00 to 3:00 P.M., admission is 20 cents and 30 cents, whereas third class theaters charge from 10 cents to 15 cents.

The Panamanian market is decidedly in favor of American films made in the English language. The Canal Zone represents approximately 50 per cent of the market for motion picture films and it is natural that American residents prefer American films. Motion picture distributors and theater operators in the Republic of Panama are unanimously of the opinion that the theater going public objects to seeing American made films with Spanish "dubbed in." When the sound films first made their appearance, Spanish "dubbed in" pictures wer fairly popular for a short while but the novelty soon wore off and almost everyone realizes that the majority of the popular American film stars do not speak Spanish and any attempt to dub Spanish in films is objectionable. Practically every educated Panamanian reads and writes and understands the English language almost as well as an American or Englishman and have become accustomed to American films produced in the English language and prefer them to a mediocre film made in their own language.

The theater going public in the Republic of Panama is partial to musical and social dramas and any type of picture that goes over well in the United States. The same situation is true in the Canal Zone. News reels are exceptionally popular in the Canal Zone and it might be interesting to know that the Army and Bureau of Clubs and Playgrounds theaters receive news reels about seven or eight days after they are released in New York. Americans residing in the Canal Zone like to keep with conditions in the United States which explains why the news reels are so popular.

In the Interior, films made in the Spanish language are fairly popular, principally on account of many of the laboring people being unable to read and write. They understand little or no English and superimposed titles in Spanish do not satisfy this class of patrons. The Interior represents such a small part of the market for motion picture films that it is hardly worth while for American distributors to compete for it.

PARAGUAY

Legislation—There is no adverse film agitation in Paraguay, and no quota or contingent laws inimical to the interest of American films are in effect.

Censorship—It is understood that there are no censorship laws, bu the municipality takes the right to refuse censorship if they choose. Censorship is not strict, and it is very seldom that the Municipality requests to see a picture.

Competition—95 per cent American films.

Copyright Relations—No copyright relations in Paraguay.

Production—No production of films in Paraguay. There are no studios or producers at present.

Taxes—Moderate. There is a city tax of 1 peso on each admission; one peso is approximately 5/12 of one United States cent. There is also a tax imposed on theaters to receive their licenses.

Theaters—There are 6 theaters in Paraguay.

The average motion picture program consists of one feature and from one to two short subjects such as newsreels or comedies. Musical comedies are the favorite type of picture. Almost any type of picture is accepted by the public, with one exception, i.e., dramas. There is too much drama in the real life in Paraguay, and for that reason dramas receive very little attendance. American stars are preferred without a doubt and the language has very little importance. Very few Paraguayans speak any other language but Spanish and as long as the sub-titles are used there is no objection. There is no objection to American stars with native language "dubbed in."

Sound—6 theaters wired for sound.

PERU

Legislation—None affecting the importation of motion picture film excepting legislation pertaining to censorship.

Censorship—Complaints by importers of films and cinema owners regarding unjust censorship and other irregularities in film legislation in Peru resulted in a decree dated December 27, 1935, supplementing and modifying former ones on this subject. This decree, in turn, has been supplemented by Decrees of January 9, 1936, and February 19, 1936.

It is provided that all films (features, shorts and trailers) may only be introduced into Peru through Callao Custom House and films entering through other ports will be forwarded to the Callao Custom House for clearance. 50 per cent of duties paid will be refunded on pictures rejected by the Board of Censors. (Decree February 19, 1936.)

According to the new regulations the exhibition of films will not be allowed unless they have first been approved by an individual censor, a special censorship body called "Patronato Nacional de Censura" and by the Minister of Justice in cases where it may be so decided. This censorship body will be composed of the youngest district attorney of the Lima Superior Court of Justice, who will act as Chairman, the Director of Education and three officials representing the Departments of Government and Police, Foreign Affairs, Labor and Social Provision, a Member of the Provincial Council of Lima to be appointed by the Council, and the Municipal Inspector of Shows. All these officials will serve ad honorem. The Treasurer of this body will also act as Secretary and will submit his accounts monthly to the Department of Justice who will in turn pass them on to the Government for approval.

The Film Censorship Office will depend directly from the Director of the Department of Justice, and will have its own staff according to provisions contained in the Budget. The Patronate will depend from the Minister.

Censorship duties at the rate of 3 centavos per meter will be collected on sound films and 20 soles for films not exceeding 500 meters in length. These charges have been in effect since 1930. Silent films will pay two centavos per meter and ten soles for films under 500 meters.

Other articles of the decrees cited regulating the censorship of films, provide that shows will be classified as follows: Proper for adults (adultos); young women (senoritas) and children (menores). The term "menores" is used to designate children of both sexes under 18 years of age; "senoritas" for young women of more than 18 years and "adultos" for men above 18 years.

Children under 18 years shall not be admitted to shows considered improper. One classification is "Not recommendable for Girls." This is given on pictures that while considered appropriate are not recommended for young ladies. Another classification is "Appropriate for boys and girls over 15 years." These last two classifications are contained in Supreme Decree of February 19, 1936.

In shows approved for minors it is prohibited to show pictures or trailers which have not previously been qualified as suitable for minors although these be shown merely for advertising purposes.

Boys and girls under 18 years will not be admitted to any show, approved only for adults even though accompanied by their parents.

Penalties for infringement of these articles range from 20 to 1,000 soles according to the gravity of the offense and the recommendation of police entrusted with enforcement. Outside of Lima censorship will be exercised by Municipal Councils Members of censorship committees will have free entry to all cinematographic shows.

A Ministerial Resolution dated January 3, 1936, stated that the special function of Peruvian censorship is to scrutinize the morality of cinematographic shows throughout the Republic, prohibit exhibition of immoral, anti-nationalistic, and other pictures which may incite crime or delinquency or which may injure the dignity of foreign countries. The Resolution also provides that the Censorship Board shall meet fortnightly, the attendance of one-half plus one of its members being necessary for a quorum. Extraordinary sessions may be called by the President whenever deemed necessary or by two of the members if they request it. Decisions will be arrived at by the majority of attending members. In case of a tie the vote of the President will count as two votes.

The Board will study all applications for reconsideration from film agents and exhibitors when these are not satisfied with the censors' decision; it will pass upon claims or appeals from fines imposed for infringements of present regulations. A committee composed of members of the Board will act upon applications for reconsideration, review the film, and render a decision from which no further appeal can be made. The same applies to reconsiderations of fines exacted. The Board of Censors has the power to adopt measures for improving its operation providing such measures are not opposed to existing regulations. It may also submit recommendations to the Government respecting its functions as experience may dictate.

Correspondence and applications requesting action of the Board shall be sent with the film to be reviewed one week in advance. The Peruvian Board of Censors has no projection facilities of its own. Pictures are screened at distributor's release house. The Board will review all films in chronological order of receipt, advising exhibitors the day and hour their film will be reviewed. Newsreel, animated cartoons, and instructive films will receive priority, that is, they will not have to be forwarded in advance or taken in turn. Other duties assigned to various members of the Board include the maintenance of proper records, preparing weekly programs of films to be passed upon, checking film footage, and regulation of Inspectors.

Competition—Motion picture competition which was 90 per cent American less than a year ago is now estimated at 70 per cent American in playing time and 80 per cent of pictures exhibited. Dominance of the Peruvian cinema market by American productions is said to be threatened by Mexican, Argentinian, and European films. "Help me to Live" (Ayudama a Vivir), an Argentinian feature now being exhibited in second and third run theaters of the capital district is said to have grossed over $4,000 in three days which sum exceeds returns for the same period on several leading American features advertised and advanced in the best manner possible before and during showing.

It is now clear that in Peru American pictures are losing ground daily. Most Peruvians prefer pictures in their own tongue and the Mexican and Argentinian picture, as poorly executed as they are, "reach the soul" (llegan al alma), as the expression goes, of the bulk of the population in both language and plot, whereas, Spanish pictures featuring Mojica, produced in the United States are really American type dramas.

Nevertheless, distributors of American films are confident of holding the lion's share of the trade with present stars and features.

Copyright Relations—Inter-American. Copyright Convention at Buenos Aires, August 11, 1910. Ratified July 13, 1914.

Production—One film produced during past year. No Studios exist in Peru.

Taxes—Municipal license tax; duty on film, ten per cent of admission tickets, and censorship tax of 3 centavos per meter on sound films, 20 soles for films not over 500 meters in length.

Theaters—200 theaters in Peru, including 15 portable equipments. Total seating capacity 100,000. 65 theaters operating in the Lima-Callao district; there were 57 in 1935. Few theaters are closed; estimated number 10. 6 new theaters are in construction.

PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

Legislation—Municipal ordinance prohibiting first-run theaters from selling standing room was declared unconstitutional and is no longer effective. The city of Manila has passed an ordinance covering storage of films, which most of the companies will have some difficulty in complying with if it is strictly enforced. The only feature of this ordinance likely to cause trouble is a requirement that vaults containing motion pictures must be supported by masonry or steel of sufficient strength to carry the load safely, and that beams shall rest at both ends on steel girders, iron or steel columns, or walls or piers of masonry. The supports shall not be used for foundation walls, nor for walls of other than the top vault where vaults are superimposed.

Film companies maintain that this is not necessary and that it would require putting up new buildings to contain their vaults. So far, it has not been strictly interpreted and will probably be amended.

Censorship—The Philippine Board of Censors reviewed 1,976 films in 1935 with an aggregate length of 5,588,082 feet. In 1934, only 1,909 films were reviewed but the footage was 5,754,268 feet. Of the films reviewed in 1935, 1,820 were American; 23 Filipino; 48 Chinese; 18 Japanese; 3 British; 7 Spanish and 3 from New Zealand. No film was entirely disapproved. 1,972 were approved without any cutting and the remaining 4 were cut 1,377 feet.

Competition—92 per cent American.

Copyright Relations—United States Copyright Relations.

Production—15 feature length films to be produced in Tagalog in 1936. One feature film in English with several scenes in color for world distribution. Also a few short subjects.

Taxes—Municipal taxes on theaters vary, the highest being P 1,800 per year for a license for a first-run theater in Manila. A bill has just been passed (but not yet signed by the President) imposing a five per cent tax on admissions over 40 centavos.

Theaters—211 theaters in the Philippine Islands.

PORTUGAL

Legislation—There has been no special legislation since last year, when local producers of motion picture films obtained from the Government exemption from customs duty on all imports of machinery, apparatus and material for the industry until June 4, 1937.

Censorship—There has been no change in the censorship of motion pictures exhibited in Portugal. Legislation on censorship is contained in Decree No. 13,564 (Articles 133 and 135), dated May 6, 1927.

Motion picture censorship, exercised in Portugal by the "Inspeccao dos Espectaculos," Ministry of the Interior, has caused distributors little difficulty. However, due to the militant antagonism of the Government toward communism, and to the conservative catholicism of most of the people, films which are of a communistic or anti-religious nature are very apt to meet with disapproval.

Competition—American films continued to dominate the local market during the past year, and again accounted for more than 50 per cent of the total distribution. Other leading suppliers were France, Great Britain, and Germany.

Copyright Relations—Under Governmental Proclamation of July 20, 1893.

Production—During the year 1936, two ten-reel sound feature films were completed by Portuguese companies, and production was commenced on two others, scheduled to be completed in 1937. "O Trevo das Quatro Folhas" (The Four Leaf Clover), produced by Tobis Portuguese at a cost of approximately 2,200,000 escudos (about $99,000), was released in June and was exhibited for two months at one of the leading theaters in Lisbon. It is understood that the film was not a financial success.

The film "Bocage" (concerning the life of a popular Portuguese poet by that name), was released on December 2, and is still being exhibited at a leading theater in Lisbon. The cost of production is estimated to have been 2,500,000 escudos ($102,500), including a Spanish version.

"Cancao da Terra" (The Song of the Earth) under production by Continental Filmes Lda., at an estimated cost of 700,000 escudos, and "Revolucao de Maio" (The May Revolution), being produced by the Government Bureau of Propaganda, at an estimated cost of 1,200,000 escudos, have not yet been completed, but are scheduled for release in 1937. Indoor scenes and sound effects of all Portuguese films are taken at the Lumiar Studios of Tobis Portuguesa, the only sound studios in Portugal.

Taxes—There were no changes in taxation during the year, but the Government still has under consideration the petition of the Portuguese Industrial Association presented in 1935, requesting the use of box office receipts rather than seating capacity as a basis for taxation. It is reported that the Government will probably act favorably on this proposal.

Theaters—There are 210 motion picture theaters in Portugal.

Sound—There are now 180 theaters wired for sound in Portugal, 10 installations having been made during the current year.

PUERTO RICO

Legislation—There is no legislation affecting the importation of motion picture films.

Censorship—There are no censorship laws in Puerto Rico and no laws prohibiting minors from admission to motion picture theaters.

Competition—99 per cent of the films shown are American.

Copyright Relations—No copyright relations in Puerto Rico.

Taxes—Very high. The following taxes are paid by theaters: income, excise tax on posters, insurance for employees, municipal excise tax based on volume of business.

Theaters—At present there are a total of 100 theaters in the island of Puerto Rico of which 92 are open. The combined seating capacity of these theaters totals 53,694 and the average cost of admission is 15 cents per seat. Theater programs usually consist of a feature and a short subject. First run houses change their programs three times a week while other houses change them daily.

The favorite types of pictures are the sentimental dramas and musical comedy films. American stars are preferred and English speaking films with superimposed Spanish titles, and not Spanish dubbed films are preferred.

POLAND

Legislation—Existing restrictions include the general import and foreign exchange controls, which went into effect during the late spring and which include small charges for the filing of applications for import permits; an exhibitors' quota requiring cinema owners to reserve 10 per cent of their screen playing time for domestic features, if available, and a revised entertainment tax, eliminating reduced taxes for foreign films qualifying as of "artistic" or "educational" value, both of which became effective as of August 24, 1936.

In connection with the general import control in Poland, foreign films were put on an import contingent basis. A global quota of 5,800 kilos was fixed for 1936, with the different importers receiving allocations in proportion to their average imports during 1933, 1934 and 1935. In cases where importers would not derive sufficient product on this basis to warrant the existence of their exchanges, which particularly concerned new companies, the appropriate authorities agreed to make necessary readjustments by deductions from other companies more advantageously situated.

Censorship—Early in 1936, the Polish Censorship materially sharpened its regulations whereby, it was announced, producers should neither produce nor distributors import film subjects including class struggle, riots of a revolutionary tendency, misery as a means for agitation, Russian background, or gangster and certain mystery sequences.

Slight charges are levied for censor costs.

Competition—Distribution, based on trade statistics, for 1935 and the first half of 1936, was as follows:

Taxes—On August 24, 1936, there was published in "Journal of Laws" No. 64, Item 464, an ordinance of the Minister of Interior, dated August 14, 1936, issued in agreement with the Minister of Finance and dealing with communal taxes on the public exhibition of films. The avowed aim of the ordinance is to simplify the taxation procedure, to maintain unimpaired this source of revenue, and finally to promote the Polish film industry.

The revised regulations provide for a new classification of films, reduced tax rates on films produced and dubbed in Poland, or when stamped by the censors as "Polish theme," the substitution, in the case of small towns and villages, of a turnover or lump tax for the system of supplements on prices of admission, and exemption from taxation of certain new picture houses for a period of five years from their opening.

	General Tax Per Cent of Admission Price	"Polish Theme" Tax Per Cent of Admission Price
In Warsaw	60	5
Cities with population over 10,000, except Warsaw	35	3
Cities with from 25,000-100,000	25	3
Cities with from 10,000-25,000	15	3
Cities of less than 10,000	A general tax not to exceed 4 per cent of total turnover.

Exhibitors qualifying under the 10 per cent quota are eligible for rebates on normal taxes paid for films of non-Polish origin and those stamped "Dubbed in Poland." Other tax concessions are made for the playing of domestic product, long and short, except newsreels; while tax reductions are made during the period May-August.

The following rates, plus 10 per cent for customs expenses, are charged (American exports enjoy conventional rates where they exist):

	Conventional Rate (zlotys per kilo)	Autonomous Rate (zlotys per kilo)
Negatives	80	200
Positives	110	200
(Samples for local printing are admitted duty free, under bond)
Rawfilm	5.50	10
Advertising material:
Stills	—	8.50
One-colored posters	—	2
Colored posters	—	6
Mats	60	80

There are no laboratories for printing color positives, so the regular positive rates are applied for each print of a film imported. An appeal has been made to the authorities for special concessions in these cases.

Theaters—In the vast majority of cases, films are distributed through three exchanges in Poland, Warsaw, Katowice and Lwow (formerly Lemberg), in which there is a total of 657 cinemas wired for sound and 36 cinemas without sound.

The total is divided as follows:

RUMANIA

Legislation—Although there have been certain deviations and alterations in the foreign trade regime adopted by Rumania on December 1, 1935, its general framework and objectives remained the same, namely, the expansion of exports and the contraction of imports, the latter to be achieved through limiting by article and country of origin the goods which may enter the country. As a part of the regime of restriction there also should be mentioned the exchange premium, since December, 1935, of 38 per cent, charged by the National Bank of Rumania on all foreign exchange released for paying commercial debts abroad.

For a time in 1936 films and advertising materials could be imported outside the framework of the import quota system through the utilization of extraordinary compensation trading (barter) permits, but by a Journal of the Council of Ministers of November 6, 1936 (No. 2.377), such operations are to be terminated on February 1, 1937, except for certain goods considered of economic necessity among which films and advertising materials are not included.

On the other hand importing films and advertising materials under the normal quota permit system has been somewhat easier during 1936 and local distributors appear to feel fairly optimistic for the future.

The greatest problem yet unsolved is the transfer of old commercial debts which accumulated before 1935 and which are considered as arrears. Except in the case of countries with payment agreements arrears payments are not permitted to burden current trade. In fact the National Bank appears to be waiting until it has a favorable trade balance with the United States before making any effort to liquidate such arrears due there. Some of these old debts have been liquidated through the costly and illegal black market but considerable sums are understood to be still awaiting transfer.

Censorship—Control over moving pictures is exercised in the name of the State by the "Commission of Control and Censoring of Moving Pictures" composed of 16 members nominated by the Ministry of the Interior and appointed by Royal Decree for a period of four years. A new regulation governing the censorship of films in Rumania, replacing the regulation issued on February 8, 1934, entered into force on April 30, 1936 (Royal Decree No. 971 of April 27, 1936). The principal change was the transfer of control over motion pictures from the Ministry of Public Education to the Ministry of the Interior, Office of Radiophonic and Cinematographic Emmissions. On October 14, 1936, through Royal Decree No. 2233, motion picture control was transferred again, this time to the National Tourist Office, another dependency of the Ministry of Interior. Although the tenure of the members of the Board of Censors is for a term of four years, this provision is not strictly observed. A new Board of Censors, replacing a Board appointed for a period of four years on January 18, 1936, was named by Royal Decree No. 2233 of October 14, 1936.

According to article 12 of the new regulation films submitted for censorship are to be divided into three categories: (a) diverting films; those which tend to amuse the public with subjects taken from novels, stories, theater plays, special cinematographic scenes, etc., with contents which neither have the faults enumerated for injurious films nor contain in their entirety the qualities indispensable for classification as educational films;

(b) educational films: those which through their type and their portrayal contribute to general instruction or education, under any form such as: 1. historical films, with subjects taken from historical events with instructive contents representing with truthfulness historical facts; 2. geographical pictures of general interest including ethnological subjects; 3. films popularizing science and technology; 4. films with special educational subjects such as hygiene and prevention of social diseases, social foresight and economy, development of the spirit of sportmanship, expansion of understanding of art, etc.; 5. national and international events of general interest; 6. cinematographic scenes which combine artistic execution with a moral and educational background (art. 19 of the regulations).

The fact that films are made of famed operas devoted to history, literature, epic or dramatic art, does not absolutely earn for a film the qualification of "cultural" or "educational," if by vulgarization the presentation is exaggerated and in bad taste and if historical episodes or works of literary or theatrical fame do not possess cultural and educational attributes.

(c) Injurious films: those which are held to present real or fictitious life in such a way that they contribute to the perversion of the audience and constitute an incentive, even involuntary, to actions detrimental to public order. Such films are those which present: criminal actions of a nature to initiate the audience in the technique of delinquency and the school of crime; political actions against public and social order, especially those which feature enemies among the categories of citizens or which suggest disregard of the laws; actions which may conceal propaganda against the structure, unity, or integrity of the State and the political and moral basis on which it is built, whether it be campaigns directed openly against the country and the Rumanian people, or an attempt is made to present in an exaggerated manner the qualities of other States and peoples with an evident tendency to suggest disadvantageous comparisons with our country and people; episodes which may hurt the honor of the country or which by giving offense to other nations, may give rise to conflicts with other States; actions of a nature to kindle hatred and dispute against other peoples or countries; scenes which may weaken the faith of the nation in its energies and abilities or in the leaders of the State, diminishing the respect due from citizens towards supreme holders of power of the State; subjects which would diminish or mock the fundamental institutions of the State, satirizing, outraging the Monarchy, Church, Justice, Army or School, even when the mockery or offense does not refer to conditions in Rumania but which results in weaking sentiments and obligations of the citizens towards those institutions; actions containing pornographic scenes, obscene episodes of night clubs and taverns, disgusting images of debauchery and vice and, in general, any scenes of a nature to injure the morals of society and the standing discipline of the family; scenes of brutality, torture and terror which, through their violence, may produce nervous shocks in the audience; pretended historical films, the contents of which are evidently exaggerated, the deformity of the historical truth serving visibly to injure our public institutions or tending to inspire revolutionary instincts.

It should be noted that article 41 of the new regulation, although upholding the right of the Minister of the Interior, or the Under Secretary of State or Secretary General of this Department acting for him, to suspend or even cancel an authorization for reasons of public interest, does not give them the right to issue exhibition permits for films which have been refused authorization by the Board of Censors. This limitation was intended to end interventions in favor of banned films by influential politicians or others. The Board of Censors may approve the exhibition of a film after it has been cut or changed in accordance with its dictates. Titles, Texts, posters, and programs are also to be carefully censored by the Board of Control. The title and the written texts, as well as advertising posters and the printed programs, must be in the Rumanian language. This eliminates the use of Hungarian or German subtitles and superimposed titles on American films. Another interesting provision is that children under 16 years of age may attend only educational programs or programs of diverting films specially approved for children. While the previous regulation required the exhibition of educational films only, prior to 8 P. M. every Sunday and holiday, this provision in fact has never been respected because of the shortage of such films and the new regulation omits this requirement but provides that on Sundays, only educational films must be exhibited prior to 1 P. M.

Authorization is granted to the film and not to the person presenting it. Once approved, a film keeps the authorization whoever is in possession of it. The authorization is granted for a period of three years from the date of issue. If it does not contain special restrictions for certain regions, it is good for the whole country. The validty of the authorization is subject to the careful observance of all details mentioned in the final decision of the Commission.

Local distributors are complaining against the attitude of the censors toward certain categories of pictures, which, although of an amusing character, are always rejected. Films portraying gangsters, police and historical subjects unfavorable to the monarchical regime are refused authorization.

Competition—Approximately 80 per cent of the films shown are American. The balance are divided among German, French, British, Austrian and Russian films in the order given.

Copyright Relations—Member of International Union, by Presidential Proclamation on May 14, 1928, President Coolidge issued a proclamation covering copyright reciprocity between the United States and Rumania. No change has occurred during 1936.

Production—During 1936 there was no local production except for shorts and news reels issued by the National Tourist Office in a very irregular manner and of no outside interest. Similarly for the 1936-1937 season no production has been planned. The competent Rumanian authorities have tried, in the last 10 years, to establish a local film industry but in spite of all efforts and financial assistance obtained from the Government, the results have been nil. It is realized that the establishment of a national film industry would require large capital which, in view of the impossibility for exhibiting Rumanian pictures abroad on a commercial scale, would have to be supplied by the Government alone. In order to make possible the production of national pictures (at first educational pictures only), the Council of Ministers issued a Decree on May 18, 1934 (Monitorul Oficial May 18, 1934), establishing a so-called National Cinematography Fund. The local press and the cinematographic circles have often attacked the establishment and the management of this Fund. Although collections are estimated to have surpassed 70,000,000 lei, no real steps have been taken towards creating a national cinematographic industry. The annual revenue of this Fund is estimated at some 400,000,000 lei. The fact that on October 14, 1936, the management of this Fund was transferred to the National Tourist Office indicates that the Government has decided that the fund can be used by the Tourist Office for foreign propaganda work to better advantage than would be the case should a national motion picture industry be established.

Taxes—Laws passed by the Parliament for establishing the Cinematography Fund provide a tax of 10 lei per meter for film passed by the Censor; 1 leu on each ticket of admission to a motion picture show and a tax of 2.40 lei per meter on films presented for censorship to cover the administrative expenses of the Board of Censors. Besides these taxes there is a tax of 1 leu for the Municipality and 2 lei for the Aviation Fund collected on each admission ticket. These taxes are looked on with great hostility by local importers and distributors, but their suppression could not be secured in spite of a very strong press campaign. It is generally believed that these taxes will never be used for the creation of a national industry.

The taxes and expenses which have to be paid by motion picture exhibitors are as follows: 25 per cent of the gross receipts to the State, 25 to 40 per cent for film rentals, 10-12 per cent for publicity and administrative expenses, 1 leu from each admission ticket for the National Cinematography Fund, 2 lei from each ticket for Aviation and 1 leu per ticket for the Municipality. In addition, a tax varying from 200-6000 lei per month must be paid for musical rights to the Rumanian Composers Association. Since December 1, 1935, according to the new import and exchange regime, all imported merchandise is subject to a new 12 per cent ad valorem tax, which is to be collected together with the other existing duties at the point of entry. An increase in the turnover tax was also effected on December 1, 1935, by the adoption of new forms for determining average values. It raises the "established value" on films from 1500 lei per 100 kilograms to 2,300 lei at which rate the regular 12.50 per cent ad valorem turnover tax is also assessed.

Theaters—There are in Rumania about 350 motion picture halls, 52 of which are located in Bucharest.

Sound—Almost all motion picture halls are wired for sound.

Legislation—There has been a complete absence of any legislation on films during the last year. Standards of entertainment are quite high, in fact the trade considers local standards well above the average, and good entertainment is demanded, irrespective of country of origin. There are no quotas or contingent laws on American films.

Censorship—No change in the rigid censorship occurred during the year. The Board has power to approve or reject a film unconditionally, or subject to a condition that it shall be shown only to a class of persons specified by the Board or after specified portions have been cut. The Board shall not approve any film that prejudicially affects the safety of the State, is calculated to disturb peace or good order, prejudice the general welfare or be offensive to decency. Invariably decisions of the Board are upheld upon appeal. Censorship is so strict that distributors often turn down pictures and news reels that have been passed without trouble in other countries, rather than risk subjecting them to censorship here.

Competition—There is a natural sympathetic feeling for British films, but the amount shown remains fairly constant at approximately 15 per cent of the total. Service by airmail gives British news reels an advantage in timeliness on American newsreels.

Production—Local production by African Film Productions is of a high standard, but in the past has been restricted, with several exceptions, to topical and scenic productions that are very well received both here and in connection with publicity work abroad. Gaumont British is about to film "King Solomon's Mines" in South Africa, their work here will most likely be confined to outdoor scenes. African Film Productions will soon start work on an ambitious history of South Africa. It will be a complete South African production. Local production should be benefited by the introduction of films in the schools of the entire country by the Film Division of the Union Education Department.

Taxes—Taxation has remained as high as heretofore, with the exception that in the Transvaal province the tax on admissions of one shilling and less has been removed. High taxation prevalent throughout the country prevents a more rapid increase in the number of theaters, but as indications are that the present prosperity of the country will be maintained, there is not much chance of importations decreasing.

Theaters—There are about 300 theaters in the country. A new theater to seat 2,000 people is under construction in Durban, and preliminary plans for one are under consideration in Capetown. One of the largest in Johannesburg was opened in the fall of this year.

Sound—250 theaters are wired for sound.

RUSSIA

Legislation—The foreign trade of the Soviet Union is a monopoly of the Government. All contracts made abroad for the exportation of goods from that country are made by agencies of the People's Commissariat for Foreign Trade, or under authorization of that Commissariat. Foreign trade transactions are entered into, as a general rule, through representatives of State economic and commercial organizations authorized to enter directly into foreign trade transactions under the general supervision of the People's Commissariat for Foreign Trade. In the United States, the principal purchasing and selling agency is the Amtorg Trading Corporation, 261 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

The agency through which motion picture films are imported and exported is the Intorgkino, Maly Gnezdnikovski Perculok No. 7, Moscow. The agency in the United States of this organization is Amkino Corporation, 723 Seventh Avenue, New York City, to which appropriate inquiries may be addressed. The Intorgkino, in purchasing foreign films no longer adheres to a policy of exchange to the same degree as before and has purchased several films from foreign firms which have not purchased Soviet films in exchange.

Censorship—Very strict.

Competition—Almost entirely Soviet films, exceedingly few foreign films being shown.

Copyright Relations—None.

Production—The following pictures have been produced and exhibited during the 1935-36 season:

Sound pictures	62
Silent pictures	30
Pictures instructive in technical hygiene and school subjects:
(a) Sound	20
(b) Silent	109
Current Events	29
Pictures instructive in military subjects	3
Animated pictures	1

Intorgkino is not a producing organization. It exports films produced by other organizations operating under the supervision of the Chief Administration of the Motion Picture Industry of the U. S. S. R.

Taxes—High.

Theaters—Moving picture theaters in the Soviet Union include: 34,990 theaters of all kinds.

Sound—Of the above, 2,285 regular theaters are sound-equipped.

Imports from U. S. A.—

1935—	Positive sound	62,052 ft.	$2,950
	Negative sound	8,660 ft.	229
1936	(First 10 months)
	Positive sound	27,226 ft.	$ 716
	Negative sound	35,699 ft.	2,133

SPAIN

Legislation—According to advice the Spanish revolution, more than anything else, prevented the establishing of a quota system on motion pictures in Spain during 1936. The proposed law in part contained the following proposals:

Protection and encouragement of national motion picture production were the aims set forth in the decree project, which was made known in January 1936 and which was to be submitted to the Council of Ministers, establishing an exhibition contingent and assurance of exportation through the application of "contingents of compensation" whereby acquisition of Spanish films would be obligatory on the part of entities importing non-national films.

The Consejo de Cinematografica (Motion Picture Council) would be empowered to issue regulations for the enforcement of the decree.

Encouragement would also be given to the development of equipment and film manufacturing activities and obligatory distribution and showing of educational films would be effected with the object of raising the cultural level.

The importer of foreign films which are not dubbed in Spanish in national studios would be quired to assign 12 per cent of his gross receipts in Spain to the purchase or production of films entitled to be classed as nationally produced.

Importers of foreign films which are dubbed in Spanish in national studios would be required to similarly devote 8 per cent of their gross receipts in Spain to such purchase or production.

In order to obviate the signing of blanket or quota contracts in advance it is provided that rental contracts shall not apply to more than a single production, the title of which is mentioned in the contract, the production having been shown to the managers of the theaters at a private showing. Rental contracts would be made on an official model of the Ministry of Agriculture, Industry and Commerce, and a separate contract would be required for each theater in which the film would be shown.

A license of importation would be required to be obtained through the Ministry of Agriculture, Industry and Commerce for the importation of foreign films, and distributors would be obliged to obtain authorization for this from the Ministry to carry on their activities as such, binding themselves to the dispositions of the decree.

The decree project above outlined is an example of a number proposed and supported by as many trade groups. Some would provide for taxes to be levied upon foreign films not dubbed in Spain, a higher exhibition tax for foreign films, a larger import duty on foreign films, but all are as one in proposing the application of a contingent system. The percentage of nationally produced films which would be obligatorily exhibited in return for the right to exhibit foreign films varies, but one suggestion is said to provide for an initial quota of two Spanish films for each 10 foreign films.

Ratification of the agreement entered into by exchange of notes between Spain and Peru on films considered "offensive" by either party is made by a decree of May 29, 1936 ("Gaceta de Madrid" of June 3, 1936, page 1989).

Each government contracts to prohibit the exhibition within its territory of films having reference to the other party and considered "offensive" by the latter. Such films are those considered derogatory or damaging to the prestige of either party. One government considering a film within the above classification as affects itself will petition the other to prevent the exhibition of the "offensive" film within its territory.

Censorship—Censorship is officially applied at Madrid in the office of the Director-General of Public Safety. Few films, however, are initiatively barred by the official censor.

Films may be withdrawn on protest of foreign embassies in Madrid and the Civil Governor of each province may ban the showing of a film deemed objectionable on instruction from the Ministry of the Interior.

Competition—Approximately 50 per cent of the films shown are of American make.

Accurate figures on competitive exhibition of foreign films in Spain are officially lacking. Customs statistics give only weight in kilograms of imported films which are subject to a duty of 25 gold pesetas per kilrogram net weight when imported from the United States and 15 gold pesetas per kilogram when imported from France and a number of other European countries. Imports are grouped in customs category No. 692 under the title, "Exposed film negatives or positives."

Copyright Relations—The Spanish Society of Authors (Sociedad de Autores) projects the musical works of Spanish authors used in sound films. The fee charged is 3 per cent of the total potential seat sale of the theater, i.e., as if every seat were filled.

Production—Production of motion picture films in Spain during 1936 was greatly curtailed as the result of the construction strike at Madrid and the unsettled political situation. Total full-length film production for 1936, it is estimated in the trade, will total only about 32 to 40 as compared to 50 last year. Capacity of Spanish motion picture studios is placed at 80 full-length films annually.

Taxes—On entering the motion picture field in Spain an exhibitor finds himself enmeshed by a maze of taxes. The principal State taxes are: The real estate tax (contribucion territorial), the industrial tax (contribucion industrial) and the workman's retirement (retiro obrero). In the first two cases, appraisals, discounts, percentage taxes and surtaxes are levied.

Theaters—Approximately 3,500 theaters in Spain.

Sound—1,600 theaters are wired for sound.

Of the unwired theaters at least 600 operate irregularly as they are clubs, cafes, etc.

SWEDEN

Legislation—There are no quota or contingent laws in Sweden on motion picture films.

Censorship—As a rule films showing suicides, terrifying scenes, and other crimes contrary to general law and morals, as well as acting that may have a bad influence, are forbidden. However, there seems to be no hard and fast rule on this subject. Children under the age of 15 years may attend the showing of certain films only. Each film which is approved for showing is classified as "children permitted" by the board of censors. Films in which murders, robberies, hold-ups, gangster life, etc. appear fall in the "children prohibited" class.

During 1935 the Swedish Film Censoring Bureau examined a total of 5,924 films (including copies) having a length of 4,304,887 meters. Of these 2,067, with a length of 1,876,538 meters, were American; 3,055, with a length of 1,689,620 meters, were Swedish, and 802 films, having a length of 738,729 meters, were from other countries. Of the total number, 3,378 films, with a length of 906,238 meters, were news reels and so called nature or travel films, comics and other "shorts."

During the first six months of 1936 (latest available figures) the total number of films (including copies) censored was 2,811, having a length of 2,104,215 meters. Of these 987, with a length of 976,014 meters were American; 1,441, with a length of 757,995 meters, were Swedish; and 383, with a length of 370,206 meters, were from other countries. Of the total number, 1,651 films with a length of 404,954 meters, were news reels and other "shorts."

All pictures, except a few educational and "nature" films distributed in Sweden during 1935 and 1936 were with sound.

Competition—About 50 per cent of the films shown in Sweden are of American make.

Copyright Relations—Established by Royal Decree No. 381, dated May 30, 1919, and amended by Royal Decree No. 74, dated April 24, 1931.

Production—27 feature films were produced in Sweden in 1935. Aktb. Svensk Filmindustri, Stockholm, made 12 feature films in its own studio in 1935, the same number as in 1934. In addition, this company produced a large number of short subjects and news reels during the year under review. The number of feature films made by the other Swedish companies, all of which are located in Stockholm, in 1935, is given below:

Name of Company	Number
Aktb. Europafilm	4
Aktb. Wivefilm	3
Aktb. Irefilm	2
Aktb. Svensk Talfilm	2
Aktb. Triangelfilm	1
Aktb. Anglofilm	1
Aktb. S.B.D.	1
Svenska Aktb. Nordisk Tonefilm	1

Taxes—During 1935 taxes levied on tickets sold by motion picture houses in town and cities in Sweden (for rural districts no statistics are available), amounted to 3,491,717 crowns (today's rate of exchange: Swedish Crowns 3.97 to $1.00 U. S. currency), against 3,050,599 crowns in 1934. The total amount of tickets sold in town and cities in 1935 was 23,278,116 crowns. (This figure is an estimate only as the exact amount cannot be calculated). Taxes are governed by Royal Decrees of May 30, 1919, No. 256, and July 16, 1919, No. 529, and are levied as follows:

Price of Ticket (Sw. Crowns)	Tax (Sw. Crowns)
0.50	0.05
0.50 to 1.00	0.10
1.00 to 1.50	0.20
1.50 to 2.00	0.30
2.00 to 2.50	0.40
2.50 to 3.00	0.50

Theaters—About 1,620 at the end of 1935; 1,641 on October 31, 1936.

Sound—About 1,620 at the end of 1935; 1,641 on October 31, 1936. There are no motion picture houses in Sweden that are not wired for sound, which was also the case at the end of 1934. The few remaining places in various parts of the country that are not wired for sound, such as lodge halls, etc., but in which moving pictures are shown, do not have regular performances. Approximately 400 of the total number of cinemas in this country operate only from one to three times a week and in several cases the sound reproduction apparatus is transported from theater to theater.

SWITZERLAND

Legislation—During the year 1936 a Committee was appointed by the Ministry of the Interior to look into the feasibility of establishing a domestic film producing industry. The principal advocates of the project were the tourist associations who hoped that a Swiss film industry would help to attract foreign tourists and various local authorities who regarded the project as a means of creating opportunities for employment. The location for this new Swiss studio to be constructed with the aid of government subsidies, narrowed itself down to Zurich and Montreaux. A sharp dispute between these two cities, resulted in the Commission which had advocated the establishing of a large domestic studio to reverse its previous decision that the Federal Government should abstain from granting a subsidy for this purpose "under the present condition." A final decision upon this question will be rendered by the planned Swiss film Chamber.

In order to prevent new cinemas from being opened, the Swiss Association of Cinema Owners has put a ban on new members. Since, by agreement with the film rental agencies, only member theaters may rent films, it is practically impossible for a new exhibitor to be certain of a constant supply of films.

Censorship—There is no Federal censorship, control being vested in the individual Cantons. While the authorities are generally liberal, restriction is more marked in the French-speaking section of the country, especially in the Cantons of Valais, Vaud, and Fribourg.

Competition—50 per cent American; German, and recently Austrian films, constitute an important source of competition to American films which still lead all other films on the Swiss market. French films which rank third in popularity are also being shown in German-speaking Switzerland in the original version, while Italian pictures are exhibited only in a comparatively small area, chiefly the Canton of Ticino.

Copyright Relations—The convention adhered to on June 14, 1934, between the "Societe des Auteurs, Compositeurs et Editeurs de Musique," Paris, and representatives of Swiss cinemas, continues in force. The convention is retroactive to July 1, 1933.

Production—Motion picture production is limited chiefly to advertising media and educational films, serial views of the Alpine regions, skiing contests, et cetera. The leading producer of such short films is the "Praesens Film A.-G.," Zurich. Attempts to establish a domestic film industry producing feature pictures have thus far been unsuccessful.

Taxes—Amusement taxes are fixed by the various Cantons, averaging from ten to fifteen per cent of the price of the ticket. The practice of taxing theater tickets has become more widespread during the past two or three years; at present only the Cantons of Schaffhausen, Glarus, Aarau, and Thurgau do not impose amusement taxes.

Theaters—The restrictions against the construction of new theaters have been tightened and, as a result, the number of theaters and their combined seating capacity declined in 1936. There are at present 334 cinemas in Switzerland with a combined seating capacity of 128,800, distributed as follows:

	Theaters	Seating Capacity
German and Italian Switzerland	215	90,500
French Switzerland	119	38,300
	334	128,800

Sound—328 theaters wired for sound. With the exception of about one half dozen theaters in small distant localities, all cinemas in Switzerland are equipped for the exhibition of sound films.

SYRIA

Legislation—There is no agitation against American motion pictures. On the contrary they are enjoying increasing popularity.

Censorship—News reels are being severely censored and scenes of the Abyssinian War, Spanish revolution and Fascist or Nazi demonstrations are cut.

Art. 1.—No moving pictures shall be produced in the States under French Mandate for public exhibition on paid tickets or invitation without prior authorization from the High Commissioner.

Art. 2.—The exportation of moving pictures produced in the States of the Levant under French Mandate shall also be subject to prior authorization from the High Commissioner.

Such authorization shall be given only after exhibition of the picture before the Censorship Commission provided for in Article 2 of Decree No. 165/LR of July 30, 1934, and under the conditions stated in that decree.

Any portions of the picture which may be cut by the Commission, shall be kept at the "Direction de la Surete Generale."

Article 2 of this decree affects to a certain extent the activity of an American concern, which has a number of times sent its cameramen to turn out news reels in Syria. Under this provision, a foreign company can no longer take pictures in Syria and ship its undeveloped negative films, since it has to exhibit them before the Censorship Commission. As there are not in Syria up-to-date studio-laboratories, such company would have either to arrange for the local development of its films or to renounce its local production.

Beirut is the only port through which films may be imported. Films may not be cleared from the customs unless a special permit is first secured from the Surete Generale (French Police). A commission established by the French High Commission previews the films censoring them as to morals, public security, respect to religions and races, and political propaganda. The censorship fee is Syrian piaster 0.32 per meter.

Competition—According to local motion picture importers, the proportion of American pictures shown during 1936 is approximately the same as during 1935, namely, about 40 per cent.

Copyright Relations—None.

Production—A Syrian and an Italian have established a motion picture studio under the name of "Societe de Cinematographie Lumnar." They have produced a sound Arabic picture (Dans les Ruines de Baalbeck), but until now no Syrian screens have shown it. However, a small sketch produced by this company was shown a few months ago in Beirut; the sound was fairly good, but the photography and acting were poor.

Taxes—The former 10 per cent gross receipts tax has been replaced by the following:

Syrian piasters

0.60 per seat (occupied or not) at every performance in first class theaters;
0.30 per seat (occupied or not) at every performance in second class theaters;
0.05 per seat (occupied or not) at every performance in third class theaters.

This tax is assessed as follows:

In full during the months of January, February, March, April, May, November and December.

Two-thirds in June and October;

None during July, August and September.

Censorship Tax:—

35 Syrian piasters per 100 linear meters of silent film;

25 Syrian piasters per 100 linear meters of sound film.

In practice, no silent films are now imported.

Theaters—There are 24 theaters in Syria.

Sound—Twenty-four theaters are wired for sound. No theaters are showing silent films.

French is the language of the talking films in Syria, although Arabic is the language of the population. However, from time to time English talking films are shown, but unless the picture is remarkably good, receipts are far less than those of a French talking picture.

Egypt is reported to have established a modern studio for Arabic talkies. When such films are produced, their success in Syria seems assured.

TRINIDAD

Legislation—Returns from film Exhibitors for the year 1935 show that the requirements of the Cinematograph (British Films) Ordinances of 1932 and 1934 have not been complied with. The following approximate percentages of British films shown at Port of Spain theaters indicate the extent of failure to comply with the law:

British Feature Films Quota 25%—about 5% shown.

British Shorts Quota 25%—about 4% shown. The unpopularity of such British films as had been obtainable and the prohibitive cost of the class of British film which could compete with good foreign films are given as the reasons for non-compliance with the law. (*—See below.)

Censorship—Public criticism of the existing system of censorship has resulted in the appointment by Government of a Board of Censors composed of 10 members. During 1935 there were 8 entire rejections, 16 deletions and 21 films classed for adults only. Films were rejected and deleted for the following reasons: predominance of criminal acts; scenes and incidents offensive to religious sentiment and national sentiment; riots, murders and shooting scenes; bedroom and vulgar dancing scenes; drunkenness and immorality, and scenes depicting gangsters and crooks. One picture was rejected because of inaudibility and one due to its unsuitability for exhibition in this Colony.

Competition—90 per cent of the films shown are American.

Copyright Relations—Same as United Kingdom.

Production—A small number of local news reels.

Taxes—No special taxes are imposed on theaters and there is no tax on theater admissions. The exhibitors continue to pay a censorship fee of $1.00 for each reel of sound length film up to 1,000 feet and 12 cents for each additional 100 feet or fraction thereof. This fee also applies to "trailers" (pre-views).

Theaters—19 theaters in the Crown Colony of Trinidad and Tobago, British West Indies; 6 in Port of Spain, 3 in San Fernando, 1 in Scarborough, Tobago, and one each in 8 smaller towns in the Colony.

"Westerns" still rank first with a large percentage of the population, with Musical Comedies running a close second. Several of the outstanding hits of the past year have been shown to capacity houses, in many cases with standing room only, and in one or two instances, people were turned away. The bringing in of the higher class of pictures can be dated from the time of the forming of two new companies in Trinidad, which operate a chain of theaters in Port of Spain as well as in the country districts. When the theaters were controlled by one company, the pictures shown were years old and the equipment was deplorable.

There are two shows daily at the principal theaters, at 4:30 and 8:30 p.m. The smaller theaters have only a night performance. Several theaters in Port of Spain have started a children's program on Saturdays, the first performance at 9 a.m. and the second at 1:00 p.m., besides the regular matinee and evening programs.

The usual daily program consists of one newsreel, either American or British, one Short, several Trailers of coming attractions, and one Feature. Programs are changed on Saturdays and Tuesdays, and on one day during the week, usually Thursday, at both afternoon and evening performances, two old features are presented, at reduced prices.

Sound—19 theaters are wired for sound.

TURKEY

Legislation—During 1935 attacks were made in the local press against an American concern which was engaged in the production of a film portraying the unfortunate lot of Armenians in Turkey during the World War. These attacks ceased after assurances had been received through official channels from the interested producers that the film would not be released without the approval of the Turkish Ambassador in Washington. Since this incident there has been no anti-American agitation.

Censorship—During the first ten months of 1936 five foreign films were "cut" and the exhibition of two foreign and one local film was prohibited by the local board of censorship.

At the instance of the Minister of Interior the Council of Ministers approved on July 29, 1936, Decree No. 2/5092 laying down new regulations for the censorship of motion picture films and scenarios in Turkey. This law which was published on August 13, 1936, and repeals previous legislation, provides that the Board of Censors shall be composed of a delegate from the Chief of Staff, the Director General of the Press, the Ministry of Interior and the Ministry of Education. It further provides that a re-examination of films approved by the Board of Censors may be ordered if and when any government department or agency objects to the film. In such cases the film is to be revised at Ankara if upon an unfavorable decision by the Board of Censors in Istanbul the interested local exhibitors make an appeal for such revision.

Article 8 of the new law prohibits the projection of the following types of films:

(1) Films embodying political propaganda of any sort.

(2) Films vilifying or reflecting unfavorably upon any nation or race.

(3) Films representing Oriental people and countries as being savage or primitive.

(4) Films contrary to good manners and morals or tending to dishonor the army.

(5) Films tending to encourage crime.

(6) Films containing religious propaganda.

(7) Films which are in such damaged or worn condition as likely to be injurious to the eyesight.

The law further stipulates that all titles and explanatory matter regarding a film shall be in the Turkish language only and shall be correctly worded and well written.

Competition—During the first ten months of 1936 a total of 112 feature sound films were exhibited in Turkey—56 American, 27 French, 22 German, 4 English, 2 Austrian, and 1 Russian. Of the 56 American films, 14 were exhibited in the English version, 2 in original French and 7 dubbed and exhibited in Turkish. Of the remaining 33 American films, 31 were exhibited in "dubbed" French, 1 in "dubbed" Spanish, and one was a silent film. In addition 52 American news reels in French and Turkish versions were released during the first ten months of 1936.

During 1936 American feature films, both in the original version and in dubbed French, continued to retain their popularity in Turkey due to the excellence of their direction, scenery, costumes, plots, music and the renown of their stars.

French films released during the first ten months of 1936 were again much better than those exhibited in 1934 or earlier and were perhaps superior to those shown in 1935. In consequence they have increased somewhat in popularity.

German musical comedies and operettas continued to retain their popularity. Although the German language is an adverse factor the majority of German films exhibited during the past ten months drew good houses.

As has been the case in previous years, films in the English language fail to draw large audiences unless they are feature products of such unusual interest that they tempt the public to disregard the language factor.

During the ten months of 1936 the patronage of the local public has been prompted largely by the considerations outlined in the foregoing paragraphs. Motion picture exhibitors report that without any marked change in the preference for films of any particular nationality the public is becoming increasingly particular in its selection of feature films. As has been previously the case films in the original French version or in dubbed French continue to enjoy a large preference over films in other foreign languages. The fact that the great majority of American feature films released during the past ten months of 1936 were in original or dubbed French accounts, at least in part, for their dominant position in this market.

The local public continued to show decided preference for good musical comedy films and for films dramatizing well known French novels. Increasing interest was also manifested in films portraying well known historical incidents. Preference for films with a happy ending continues to prevail. Good American "reviews" also continue to draw good houses.

Copyright Relations—Turkey is not a signatory of the Berne Convention for the protection of artistic and literary rights but the principal motion picture exhibitors in the city of Istanbul have an agreement among themselves whereby they forego the exhibition of pirated films in competition with members of their group who have bought the Turkish rights to a film. It is said that the conditions of this agreement are strictly adhered to and no case of infringement of membership rights has occurred during the past seven years.

Production—There are two studios in Istanbul equipped to produce sound films. During the year one of the local studios produced a film picturing national scenery, etc. The various authorities, including the army, are reported to have extended very considerable assistance to the producers of this film but upon its completion the film did not meet with the approval of the Government and the censorship authorities and its exhibition was prohibited. This prohibition has just been lifted. The preparation of this film is said to have involved two years of effort and the expenditure of about $40,000.

The two local studios dubbed into Turkish during the past ten months the Gaumont-British film "Chu Chin Chou," the German films "Artisten," and six American pictures.

Theaters—In the absence of official statistics or reliable estimates no accurate information is available on the number of motion picture theaters existing in Turkey at the present time. It is believed that there are approximately 121 active motion picture theaters with a total seating capacity of 46,600 to 48,000, including about 30 provincial theaters exhibiting "silent" pictures.

Sound—93 theaters are wired for sound.

The use of sound equipment in provincial establishments is believed to have sustained a fair increase during the first ten months of 1936. The major portion of sound equipment installed during this year was of German origin.

UNITED KINGDOM

Agitation—Agitation on the part of exhibitors during past twelve months has been directed largely against the Quota, as authorized by the Cinematograph Films Act, which came into operation on January 1, 1928 and continues until September next year. Spring saw appointment by President of the Board of Trade of a Departmental Committee to inquire into the future of the Act, and evidence has been given by exhibitors, renters, producers, and others. Findings of the Committee will form basis of future legislation, which is expected to be introduced during the coming year. Appointment of Government Commission to examine all British films, and a quota eventually rising to fifty per cent, are the main recommendations of the Committee.

Under the law, quotas are set for a 10-year period. It specifies a percentage of playing time each exhibitor must devote to British-made pictures. Under its provisions both theaters and distributors will now have to fulfill a 20 per cent requirement untitl 1938.

Exhibitors are licensed by special permit for each of their houses. They are issued by the Board of Trade. Before November 1 of each quota year, exhibitors are required to supply the government with data on the British pictures which they have shown.

Added provisions of the law prohibit blind and block booking. Renters are not allowed to sell or the exhibitor to buy unseen and are limited in advance bookings to a specific period of time.

Quotas are set as follows:

The overseating situation throughout the whole of the country has become more acute, and the C.E.A. has been unable to find a satisfactory solution. Special committee of the Association has the matter in hand, but to date its efforts have been fruitless, although opposition to new theaters, on grounds of overseating, have proved successful in a number of instances.

Campaign for further reductions in Entertainments Tax has not gone forward owing to Government's heavy program, but meanwhile C.E.A. is collating evidence from exhibitors on amounts spent in improvements to theaters since tax on cheap seats was abolished in 1935.

Competition—During 1936 over 200 British Films were released, divided as follows:

Gaumont-British Picture Corporation	21
Wardour Films, Ltd.	14
General Film Distributors, Ltd.	17
Radio Pictures, Ltd.	17
Paramount Film Service, Ltd.	17

Copyright Relations—Copyright Ordinance of 1911 as amended. Great Britain entered into copyright relations with the United States on July 1, 1891, extended April 9, 1910, further extended Jan. 1, 1915. Great Britain is a member of the International Copyright Union at Berne.

Production—See Competition. Approximate number of British films to be produced during 1937 about 240, increase being due to formation of a number of new independent production concerns.

Studios—There are now thirty-three studios in England, all wired for sound. Within a few weeks, two more will be opened at Elstree—one for Amalgamated and the other for Joe Rock.

Theaters—4,916, all wired for sound.

URUGUAY

Legislation—Since the beginning of the year 1936 importers of motion pictures in Uruguay have been granted free controlled exchange (dirigido) without any restrictions.

Censorship—None. (The Theater Inspection Department of the Montevideo City Government maintains a censorship board which, however, has failed to function as such for years).

Competition—80% Americn. 20% Foreign. (Argentine, French, German and British).

Copyright Relations—American Copyright Convention held at Buenos Aires August 11, 1910 and ratified July 13, 1914.

Production—Local production is restricted to occasional news reels on local subjects. The amount of films produced locally is considered negligible.

Taxes—Municipal tax of 6% on admissions in Montevideo.

Theaters—Approximately 128 theaters in Uruguay. (Impossible to obtain official figures). 70 theaters listed in Montevideo with 38,190 seats. (Montevideo figures are considered accurate). For the rest of the country it is difficult to make any estimate. One firm has prepred a list which shows 58 theaters actually in operation with 24,510 seats in other parts of the country.

Sound—124 theaters are wired for sound. In the interior 54 theaters of the above are wired for sound.

VENEZUELA

Legislation—There are no quota or contingent laws, duties, etc., prejudicial to the interests of American firms in Venezuela, nor is there any adverse American film agitation. On the contrary, American films are generally preferred by the public.

Censorship—There is no national censorship law in Venezuela. Pictures are supposed to be censored in each State in which they are released, but generally the original censoring in Caracas is sufficient. As a rule, the censorship is not strict so far as morality is concerned, but more so regarding communistic propaganda. Very few if any films are refused censorship, and distributors generally cut out voluntarily possibly vulnerable parts of their films.

Competition—Ninety-one per cent (in 1935) American films; the remaining nine per cent was distributed between Germany, England, France and Spanish countries (in the order named).

Copyright Relations—American productions enjoy the same copyright protection in Venezuela as local productions, in the absence of a specific copyright treaty with the United States, and in accordance with the provisions of the 1928 Pan American Code of Private International Law, especially Articles 1 and 115 of the latter (Venezuelan Official Gazette, Extraordinary Number of April 9, 1932).

The Venezuelan copyright law (Official Gazette of August 12, 1928) makes provision for the copyrighting of motion pictures along with other "Intellectual Property." Such copyright is valid for a period of 10 years. The producer or editor must indicate on each copy: the commercial signature of the company; year of publication; and whether or not registered. For registration, the Registrar of Copyrights must be supplied with the following data; (a) name, calling and address of soliciting party; (b) nationality of latter; (c) title of the work; (d) class to which it belongs; (e) name, calling and address of author or translator; (f) nationality of latter; (g) name, calling and address of proprietor; (h) nationality of latter; (i) establishment where the impression or reproduction has been made and the procedure employed therefor; (j) place and date of first publication; (k) edition and number of copies; (l) format of the work; (m) size and all other pertinent data for the identification of the work. Five copies must be deposited with the Government.

Article 180 of the same law provides that in copyrighting motion pictures of domestic origin, the registrar of copyrights need only be supplied with: (1) names of artists; (2) title of manuscript of play; (3) place and date of production; (4) a copy of the first and last scenes of each of the parts making up the film.

Production—There is no regular production of motion pictures in Venezuela. There are a few small enterprises making occasional travelogues and newsreels, particularly the Laboratorio Nacional in Maracay and Caracas.

Taxes—There is a Federal amusement tax based upon the number of seats in the theater. Each State may also impose additional direct admission taxes. In Caracas and the Federal District, where all new pictures are first released, a new tax of 10 per cent has been levied on the value of entrance tickets, entering into effect on November 1, 1936.

In the new Venezuelan Customs Tariff Law which became effective on October 23, 1936, the import duties on printed cinematographic films were increased from Bs. 1.9569 to Bs. 2.60 per gross kilogram. Rates on unprinted films remained approximately the same, while projectors and accessories were increased from Bs. 1.9569 to Bs. 5.00 per gross kilogram. The official exchange rate at present is Bs. 3.93 per dollar.

Theaters—The exact number of theaters throughout the country cannot be determined, for in the Interior, bull-rings and other open-air spaces are used, as well as vacant buildings which may be converted temporarily into a "theater." At present there are approximately 111 theaters operating in Venezuela, but this number is not fixed. In the city of Caracas and immediate environs, there are about 35, and in the Maracaibo district, about 20. No silent pictures are shown.

Sound—All theaters in Venezuela are either wired for sound or, in the Interior, possess portable sound equipment.

YUGOSLAVIA

Legislation—Under the regulations prescribed by the Minister of Commerce and Industry of Yugoslavia, the management and control of production, import and trade in motion pictures in that country has been placed in the hands of a State Film Central, whose duties will include also the sponsoring of domestic production and the airing of educational efforts and propaganda for pictures of cultural value.

Registration fees are collected by the Central as follows: (a) For pictures of foreign origin for amusement, as well as for advertising all films, an amount corresponding to one-half of the censor fees; (b) for all cultural pictures and domestic pictures, one-fourth of the censor fee. In effect, registration fees will amount to approximately $8 for each American feature brought on the Yugoslav market.

Theaters are obliged to show at every performance one or more films of a cultural nature. They must also show domestic pictures of at least 5 per cent of the total length of programs shown quarterly. For theaters giving daily shows and which change programs less than six times monthly, this percentage is increased to 10. To ascertain whether these obligations have been fully complied with, the Central will issue forms that cover each performance. For these forms one dinar is charged.

For purposes of control over the importation of and the traffic in films, the film enterprises will submit for registration and confirmation the original agreements and invoices covering films purchased abroad.

The registration of such agreements will be made by the State Film Central on special forms issued for that purpose. The film enterprise, together with the original agreements, will submit the above forms in which they will record a brief summary of the agreements. Each form must bear the seal and responsible signature of the enterprise. The State Film Central will keep these forms in its files for checking purposes.

The State Film Central will collect for these forms 25 dinars each for films up to 600 meters in length, and 50 dinars each for films exceeding that length.

Censorship—The Yugoslav censorship of moving picture films is, for political reasons, very strict. This censorship is in the hands of the Ministry of Commerce and Industry, control of the State Film Central having been transferred to that Ministry.

Competition—65 per cent of the films shown are American.

Copyright Relations—There are no copyright relations with the United States.

Production—100 films, consisting of cultural, news and advertising films, were produced during 1935.

Taxes—A special tax is assessed on films imported or produced in the country, as follows: (1) on cultural films, 1.50 dinars per meter; (2) on other films, 3.00 dinars per meter. Films produced in the country pay one-half of the above taxes until the expiration of the term of ten years, following which, presumably, they will be taxed as are imported films.

For the examination of films, either foreign or domestic, 0.45 dinars per meter, and other expenses, 0.10 dinars per meter, aggregating 0.55 dinars per meter.

Theaters—318 theaters in Yugoslavia.

Sound—263 theaters wired for sound.
